COULD I BRING BACK BUT YESTERDAY.

BY MARK MEREDITH.

The tears that now in silence fall,
The sorrow and the sigh;
Regret for joys, beyond recall,
That swiftly passed us by;
Ah! how the heart that once was gay
Recalls the rose-hued past;
Could I bring back but yesterday
Dark sorrow would not last!

Could I bring back but yesterday
The sigh, the tear, would pass away;
Life's Winter would be sunny May,
Could I bring back but yesterday!

The word that wrought such bitter woe
These lips would never speak;
The tears that I have made to flow
Had never dimmed Love's cheek;
Sweet roses now would glad Life's way
Where only thorns appear,
Could I bring back but yesterday,
So far off, yet so near!

THE LOST HANDKERCHIEF.

BY DUDLEY WINTHROP MOORE.

SAM TUCKER came whistling down the mountain path leading to Copper Creek settlement.

He was a chunky, brawny man, in the prime of life, with a pleasant, bronzed face; but there was a gleam in the dark eyes which bespoke passion.

Sam was on his way home, after the day's labor in the copper mine, and was happy at the thought of soon seeing his Sal again. He had met her a year before in the town fifty miles distant, and had brought her back with him as his bride.

It was not quite dusk when the gaily whistling miner reached the foot of the mountain, but a light already shone from a hut half hidden by the trees.

"Bill's lit up early," Sam said to himself. "Must be he's tryin' ter read a letter from his wife Molly, who went ter town on a visit; seems ter hanker arter her pretty bad!" he added, laughing.

Sam stepped to the door and knocked.

"Hello, Bill, be yer there?"

"Is that you, Sam?" called back a voice from the inside. "Come in, man, come in!"

Tucker pushed open the door and entered.

On a stool by a rough pine table, on which stood a lighted candle, sat a middling sized, broad shouldered man of about thirty, with a coarse but somewhat handsome tanned face.

Sure enough, he had a letter in his hand, which Sam, as he entered, saw him conceal with a hasty movement in his shirt bosom.

"Needn't be ashamed ter let folks know you think somethin' of yer wife, Bill," said Sam. "How is she? Comin' back soon?"

Bill's brown face colored up, and he asked surlily:

"Who said it was from my wife?"

"Oh, I'm a good guesser," returned Sam, grinning. "Ain't it?"

"Well, p'r'aps so," said the other, evasively. "But do sit down, Sam. Have a drink?"

"Wouldn't mind," replied Tucker, seating himself.

Bill rose and went to a shelf upon which stood some bottles and glasses. While his back was turned Sam chanced to look down, and his glance fell upon a gay colored cotton handkerchief, with the most fantastic figures, which lay on the floor by the table leg.

The man's eyes opened wide, as if with astonishment, and, stooping quickly, he picked up the handkerchief and thrust it into a pocket of his trousers a second before Bill turned 'round again and returned to the table with a bottle and glasses.

Bill filled the two glasses, and pushing one toward Sam, picked up the other.

"Here's yer health!" he said, heartily.

"Ther same ter you, Bill," replied Tucker, putting the glass to his lips and tossing off its contents.

Then he rose quickly.

"What, yer ain't a-goin' a'ready?" said Bill, surprised.

"Must! Sal will be waitin' fer me," said Sam, eyeing his host fixedly. "You haven't seen her today, p'r'aps?"

Bill shook his head.

"Kin yer come down my way tonight?" asked Sam. "We'll have a little game. You're sorter lonely here without Molly."

"All right," was Bill's answer, after a moment's hesitation, "I'll come, Sam. Thanks!"

The two shook hands, and Tucker hastened away.

It was already dark when Sam entered his small house in the settlement. His wife Sally, who was a good looking, but rather robustly built young woman, greeted him with loving warmth; but the next instant she asked in an alarmed tone:

"Why, what's the matter, Sam? You look so pale!"

Sam drew the wonderfully figured handkerchief from his pocket, and, spreading it out on the table, asked with evidently forced calmness:

"Be that yourn, Sal?"

Sally Tucker stared at the gaudy handkerchief, then at her husband.

"You don't answer my question, Sal," said Sam, impatiently. "Be that han'kerchief yourn?"

"Of course not!"

"Where, then, is yourn, Sal?"

Sally now drew herself up, and looked her husband straight in the eyes.

"You've got a queer way tonight, Sam! Where did you find that handkerchief! Bless me, I do believe you've got one of your jealous fits again! But that handkerchief ain't mine, I tell you!"

Sam heaved a long sigh.

"Show me yourn, Sal, an' I'll be satisfied."

"And if I won't?" snapped Sally, placing her arms akimbo, in a defiant way. "You shall not insult me, Sam Tucker!"

"Then I'll ask him!"

"Him?" repeated Sally, "Who's him?"

"Bill Brinker, to be sure! I dropped in ter see him in passin', an' I found this han'kerchief layin' on his floor. I picked it up an' put it in my pocket without his knowin' anything about it. I thought and, after resting upon the handkerchief, turned inquiringly toward Tucker and Sally.

"What's the joke?" he then queried, with ill concealed embarrassment.

"The joke is this," said Sam, knitting his brows, "I found this cotton han'kerchief on the floor of your hut when I stopped there this evenin'. Maybe you kin tell me how it got there, Bill Brinker?"

"And the stupid man is madly jealous!" added Sally, scornfully. "Do tell him, Bill, how it got there!"

"I—I—can't," stammered Bill. "I dunno!"

"You lie!" cried Tucker, fiercely. "You do know! I kin tell it by yer looks!"

Bill Brinker's face grew dark red.

I'd question you first, Sal, an' give yer a chance ter own up, if ——" he stopped short, as though the words choked him.

Sally burst out laughing.

"You foolish, jealous man!" she exclaimed. "He'll say, of course, that it belongs to another woman!"

"I'll demand proofs!"

"And if he ain't got any?"

"So much ther worse fer him—an' fer you! By God, I'll kill him!"

With these words his eyes flamed up wildly, and his face suddenly took a grim expression.

Sally recoiled, terrified.

"Yes, I'll kill him—an' you, too!" continued Sam, savagely clinching his big fists. "He'll be here tonight. I made him believe I wanted him to come an' play a game of cards."

At that moment the door opened and Bill Brinker himself entered with a careless air.

"I thought I'd come right away, Sam," he said, "seein' I was so lonely—hello!" cutting himself short, "what's up?" and he looked alternately at Sam and Sally, as if struck with surprise.

"I've been a-teasin' Sal a little," replied Sam, in a jesting way, "an' got her in a huff, an' all about this d—d han'kerchief!" he added, pointing at the table, at the same time eyeing Brinker narrowly.

Bill's eyes followed the direction of the finger,

"Be keerful, Sam Tucker, in th' choice of your words?" he growled. 'an' don't ferget that I'm a married man as well as yourself. I can't explain how th' han'kerchief got there, unless I give a certain woman dead away, who come to me fer advice, an' who, fer certain reasons that are none of your business, must keep her visit to me secret. She had a han'kerchief like that, an' must ha' dropped it on my floor when she came today. If yer won't believe me yer know what yer kin do about it! I ain't afeared of your scowls, an' kin take care of myself any time!"

"You don't tell me ther truth!" said Tucker, passionately. "You lie! you lie! Sal lies! She can't show me her han'kerchief, which I seen on her neck this very mornin'. She will probably say now she lost it in ther woods—but I won't swaller that, neither. Bill Brinker, this earth is too small fer you an' me—one of us has got ter get off it mighty quick, and we'll see who that one is before daylight comes again! D'ye understand?"

"You kin find me whenever yer like, Sam Tucker," replied the other, "but you're makin' an infernal ass of yourself!" and, turning on his heel, he stalked out of the door.

"First him—then you!" said Sam, hoarsely, now glaring at his wife, who had covered her face with her hands and was sobbing. Then he hastened out himself, slamming the door after him.

A few minutes later Tucker knocked on the door of a cabin standing on the skirt of the settlement, and when a rough voice called out "Come in!" he raised the latch and entered, to find four men seated at a table in a dimly lighted, smoky room, playing cards.

"Hello, Sam. Come take a hand!" cried one.

"No, thank you, Tom. I ain't got no feelin' fer cards this evenin'," replied Tucker; "I've got more serious business on my mind."

The gloomy tone of his voice caused the four men to look at him wonderingly.

"That don't sound like you, Sam," remarked one of them. "What the devil has ruffled you, man?"

"Me an' Bill Brinker has got a quarrel ter settle," responded Tucker, seating himself on a barrel.

The men threw down their cards and one gave a loud whistle.

"You're friends of both of us," continued Sam, 'an' will see fair play. Either Bill or me has got ter kick ther bucket, that's dead sure!"

"But what has happened 'twixt yer?" asked the one Tucker had addressed as Tom.

"None need know that—that's our secret. We'll fight before daylight, in Dead Man's Basin, on ther mountain. It's a lonely spot, an' we ain't likely ter be disturbed; an' as ther sheriff is keepin' a sharp lookout fer fights nowadays, we'll use every care ter do ther thing on ther quiet—ther one that dies must disappear forever!"

"What do you mean, Sam?"

"Just this: Go ter Bill an' tell him that it's ter be a fight to ther last breath, an hour before daybreak, in Dead Man's Basin. Tell him, to avoid all noise an' ther possibility of bein' recognized, we'll use knives an' all wear masks, an' that ther one who bites ther dust will be buried on ther spot. Although he's ther one challenged, an' so has got ther right ter kick at these terms, tell him if he don't accept 'em I'll shoot him on sight. An' be sure you tell him ter hold his tongue as ter why we're goin' ter fight—for I don't want people ter put their jaws out of j'int talkin' about what don't concern 'em. That's all I've got ter say."

The four men rose, and each grasped in turn Tucker's hand, while Tom said warmly:

"Agreed, old man, you both kin count on us! Mum's the word!"

* * * * * * * *

About two o'clock in the morning a party of three masked men left the settlement secretly and went up the mountain—Sam Tucker with his seconds, Tom Bradley and Luke Williams, the latter carrying something concealed under a long cloak. The other two of the card party that Tucker had found in the hut were to accompany Bill Brinker as seconds.

There was no moon; the stars shone faintly through a thin veil of clouds, and the three figures looked like animated shadows as they stole noiselessly up the mountain path.

On arriving in the little hollow known as Dead Man's Basin, a spot was chosen for the duel, and, throwing off his long cloak, Luke Williams proceeded to dig with the spade he had carried concealed. After half an hour's rapid work, he had dug in the sandy ground a grave six feet long, three feet wide, and about four feet deep.

It was now an hour before daylight, the time set for the mortal combat, and still Bill Brinker and his seconds had not arrived.

Sam Tucker began to walk restlessly up and down.

"By God!" he exclaimed, suddenly stopping short.

"What th' devil is in th' wind now?" inquired Tom Bradley, approaching him.

But Sam only mumbled something unintelligible and began to pace to and fro again.

The thought that had forced out his violent exclamation was this:

"What if Bill Brinker and Sal, taking advantage of the situation, had played a trick on him by running away together?"

The thought made his flesh creep, and he had almost convinced himself that it was, indeed, true, when the sight of three silent, black figures entering Dead Man's Basin, appeased his rising rage.

Like the others, the new comers wore masks. As silently as they had come they approached the grave.

"Bill Brinker," said Sam Tucker, in a solemn voice, "I hope you've kept ther cause of this fight mum. Ther one that dies, you know, will be buried in this grave!"

One of the figures nodded.

"And," continued Tucker, "if I die I want you ter swear that you will still keep ther secret."

Again the masked figure nodded silently.

"Well, then," Tucker went on, "let's get ready. We will fight in ther grave. It's a question as ter who will get out an' who will stay in. Do you agree?"

Once more the mute figure nodded.

The two adversaries thereupon took off their coats, and, still wearing the masks, sprang, at a signal from Tom Bradley, into the grave.

What a terrible struggle took place there none of the seconds could see distinctly; they could only judge by the violent movements of the dark forms and the sound of hard breathing. Not a word, not a groan was uttered by those engaged in the deadly strife.

Suddenly the furious movements ceased, and one of the combatants stood erect, the blood on his now unmasked face gleaming through the gloom. It was Sam Tucker.

"He's dead, boys!" he said, in a panting voice. "Justice is done! I've come out of it with only a few scratches!"

"We'll make sure he's dead," said Bradley. "I've got a dark lantern with me."

He handed the lantern to Tucker, who stooped and let its light shine upon the prostrate, bleeding form at the bottom of the grave.

All at once a cry of horror came from his lips.

"Great God! Sal! Sal! My wife Sal!"

Sam thereupon knelt down quickly and put his ear close to his victim's breast.

"Her heart still beats!" he cried. "P'r'aps we kin save her."

Then he lifted the motionless body in his strong arms and, assisted by his seconds, got out of the grave with his burden, which he gently laid upon the ground, and once more fell upon his knees beside it.

"Sal, speak!" he said, in a husky voice. "Oh, my God, save her! don't let her die! What have I done? How did it happen? Speak, Sal—speak—forgive me!"

As if called back to life by the man's anguish, the outstretched form moved, and a hand clasped one of Sam's.

"Take me back, home, Sam," came tremblingly from the white lips. "You are jealous without good cause. Bill Brinker and his two seconds are asleep in his hut—drugged by me with the morphine you brought me from town. He sent me word about the comin' fight, and I an' two friends—the disguised women who came here with me—went to his hut, and, while pretendin' to drink with the men, drugged their liquor. I thought you an me had better die together, so I came in his place. Take me back home, Sam, an' let me live, an' never be jealous of me again. Maybe, some day, my handkerchief, which I really lost, will be found an' prove my innocence. The one you picked up, Sam, ain't mine—it can be—proved. Take me—back—home—Sam——!"

Exhausted by her effort to speak, Sally relapsed suddenly into silence.

She was borne tenderly back to the settlement. On the way Sam's seconds stopped at Bill Brinker's hut, and there they found the three men stupefied from the drug they had unconsciously taken.

Sam, accompanied by the disguised women, hurried on, bearing Sally in his arms. On reaching home he left her in their care, mounted his horse

Although Sally's wounds were very serious, she recovered. Then, one fine day, the handkerchief which she had, indeed, lost, was found in the house of a woman whom she had visited on the morning when Sam had last seen it on her neck.

As for Sam Tucker, he became very meek; but still there were times when he forgot himself so far as to show a slight symptom of jealousy, and then Sally had simply to shake her finger at him and whisper, "handkerchief," to bring him humbly under her thumb again.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

BY EDWIN PUGH.

Cheedle and I had spent the evening alone together, Mrs. Cheedle being out of town on a visit to some relatives, and this was our crucial glass of whiskey and soda. We had been very candid with one another, and were in a fine glow of honesty.

"It's a breach of confidence, I'm afraid," said Cheedle. "And it isn't a thing you ought to know, because you are vain enough already. (No offence, of course, old man. We're being frank, you know. Hang it all, I'm vain, too). But I tell you this for her sake."

"Her sake? Whose?" I asked.

"All in good time," he replied. "I wouldn't tell you at all, Phil, if I didn't repose so much confidence in your good taste; for, whatever else you may be, Phil, you are still a gentleman."

"A colorable imitation, at least, I hope," said I.

"You know my wife's cousin?" he began.

"She has so many."

"Awful crowd! But I mean the pretty one."

"Little girl with flaxen hair? Rather—a shade—too conscious of her profile."

"Yes. Ha, ha! Miss Marsh." He sipped solemnly.

"Well?"

"It is a pity. My wife told me. I should never have suspected it myself. She's a little bit impressed by you."

"In love with me?"

"Damn your complacency! I suppose so."

"Poor girl!" said I.

"She isn't a fool, either."

"Not a bit of it!" I cried.

"That makes it all the more extraordinary."

"I don't see that."

"My object in telling you is to warn you against playing off that infernal trick of yours on her. You known what I mean? That way you have of talking to a woman as if she were the only one of her sex in the world."

"A reprehensible habit. So dangerous!" said I. "I will be careful."

"Yes, do be careful, old man."

We were silent awhile. I got up, murmuring again, "Poor girl!" bade farewell to Cheedle, and went home. I had not intended to be at the Massie's party on the following evening, but knowing that Miss Marsh would be there, and feeling anxious to begin the cruel business of disillusionment at once—that it might be the sooner over—I dressed and went.

The drawing room was very crowded. I looked about for Miss Marsh, and presently espied her in a far corner. By slow stages I made my way toward her. She marked my approach with a wistful face, and when I was close enough made room for me beside her. Poor thing! We shook hands and I noted a tender light in her eyes. My heart ached with pity.

"How hot it is here!" said she.

Oh, these hollow commonplaces uttered calmly in a gale of passion!

"Yes," said I. "I wonder if we could get out into the conservatory?"

We managed it by dint of many polite hustlings, strewing our path with apologies as we went. Our end attained, we sat down side by side under a tub palm, and looked at one another.

"How pleasant it is out here!" she murmured.

"So cool!" said I.

Conversation was certainly difficult.

"The usual rumor concerning you is out," said she.

"Indeed!" I cried. It was no time to be witty.

"They have married you again, Mr. Wroughtnight."

"Who is the unlucky lady this time?"

"It would not be fair to tell. And—two are mentioned."

Poor girl!

"You know that Rumor is a lying jade, Miss Marsh?"

"By nature—yes. But sometimes—by accident—she speaks the truth."

How valiantly women cover up their scars!

"Of course," said I, "there is no foundation for the rumor."

"I had hoped there was," said she, softly.

Brave heart! It was a dire business!

"There may be some day," I murmured. "I mean that I expect I shall marry sooner or later."

"Oh, I hope so," said she. "When you are a little older. Some strong, helpful woman with ideals. Not a poor little society butterfly—like me."

"If she were like you," said I, and stopped.

"She won't be," said Miss Marsh, quickly.

My heart was torn with pity of her.

"One so seldom marries the person one wants to," said I, breaking the truth to her gently.

"And how much better for us that is, isn't it?"

The rejoinder hardly pleased me.

"How do you mean, Miss Marsh?"

"I mean that the object of our first love is so rarely the person to make us really happy."

I remembered that this was her third season.

"First love is the only love," said I.

"Oh, no," said she.

"Oh, yes," I repeated firmly. It was no time for mawkish faltering. My duty was plain.

"Mr. Wroughtnight," said she, "believe what I am about to say. You are too young yet to know what is best for your own welfare."

It seemed an odd way to talk, as I was at least two years her senior; but I reflected that she was distraught—that she was fighting against her own happiness.

"I think," said I, "I know what is best for me, young as I may be. When my fate comes along——"

"That time is not yet, of course?" said she.

Oh, anxious, despairing heart!

"No," I cried, and shuddered in dread expectation of some tragic sign from her. But she was strangely calm. It almost seemed to me that a light of relief leaped into her eyes. The relief of the tortured soul at hearing sentence of death!

A great silence fell on us. She mused, looking at me with strange intentness.

"Mr. Wroughtnight," said she, "I have a mind to be honest with you. I have a strong prejudice in favor of honest dealing. My honesty may cost me your good opinion, but I don't mind that. I mean that I have enough faith in your good sense to believe that you won't think me unwomanly and immodest in saying what I propose to say."

I rose in great agitation.

"Miss Marsh," I said, "pause, reflect. Don't speak yet. You may save us both much pain."

"Nonsense!" said she sharply.

I was surprised and a little affronted.

"I beg your pardon," said I. "Go on."

She fluttered her fan nervously.

"I am afraid," said she, "we don t quite understand one another. At least, I think I understand. But you don't."

I moistened my dry lips. "Go on," I said again, breathlessly.

"Mrs. Cheedle has told you something about me?"

"No."

"Mr. Cheedle, then? Somebody?"

"Yes," said I.

"What have they told you?"

"I—I cannot repeat it. Miss Marsh, let me implore you to say no more. Let us go back."

"No," she replied. "I will tell you what they said. They told you that I—I am—am in love with you?"

"They were mistaken!" I cried, still willing to spare her.

"Yes, they were," she responded calmly.

I gasped and leaned back in my chair.

"They told me," said she, "that you were in love with me."

A bitterness of humiliation flooded my soul.

"I have no doubt they meant well," said she.

"Oh, there is no doubt of that," I agreed, sourly.

"Perhaps they thought they might make a match between us that way. Young married couples are always the busiest matchmakers. And really, do you know, I think they showed some knowledge of poor human nature in this instance, at any rate?"

She smiled. I felt too sick to smile.

"I am sorry," she said, "if you feel at all hurt by this revelation of truth.

Then I saw the absurdity of my position, and summoned my sense of humor to the rescue. It was not possible to remain insensible to Miss Marsh's magnificent command of her own dignity.

"I was a fool," said I.

"I, too," said she. "But it does not matter, now it is all over, does it? And, anyway, nobody will know. We shall both keep the secret inviolate, I dare say, for our honor's sake."

"I am afraid you must think me rather a conceited ass, Miss Marsh?"

"Don't be silly," said she; "you thought as I did."

"But with less reason," said I, bowing.

She looked reproachfully at me.

"I have been sincere with you, Mr. Wroughtnight."

"That is why I pay you compliments. I want to restore the balance of things."

"We seem to understand each other now. I think we might be friends," she said.

She gave me her hand and I clasped it warmly. But whenever I recall that absurd interview my whole body blushes.—Black and White.

WILL H. FOX, "PADDYWHISKI,"

Whose claim to be the originator of the comedy piano specialty is well established, is now in America. His success in this country and Europe has won for him a place among the topliners. He has only lost thirty weeks' work in the past eight years, and half of that time has been consumed in making jumps. Mr. Fox was born in Baltimore, Md., Oct. 19, 1858, and moved with his parents to Louisville, Ky., in 1864. He made his first appearance on the stage as a Dutch song and dance artist in 1869. In 1870 he appeared in the concert with Hemming, Cooper & Whitby's Circus. He next joined a Dutch comedian named Charley Fox, and remained with him a short season, afterwards appearing at the Washington Varieties, Providence, R. I., under the management of Col. John D. Hopkins and Archie Stalker, for the entire season. He next joined E. S. Washburn's Last Sensation, doing his Dutch specialty, character songs and duets with Lillie Washburn. He then joined Fish & Benson's Moral Show, doing his specialty, "The Old Man's Drunk Again," sketch with James Roach, and "The Little Frauds," with Marguerite Fish. He afterwards joined M. B. Leavitt's Minstrels for a short season, and played dates all over the country. In 1877 his voice failed him, and he retired from the footlights. He then played the piano at concerts, and eventually produced a piano specialty, giving imitations, trick playing, etc. When Paderewski came to this country Mr. Fox originated his "Paddywhiski" act. He will shortly return to Europe, where he is booked up solid.

"HAMLET" AS A BALLET.

The subject is not one that seems adapted to such treatment, but it is a fact that "Hamlet" was the subject of a ballet, a serious ballet, at that, which did not burlesque the play, but told the story of the tragedy by means of pantomime and dancing. This happened many years ago. "'Hamlet,' a tragic ballet, in five acts, devised by Franz Clerico, ballet master in actual service at the court theatre," was performed at Vienna on July 6, 1798. It was given as an interlude, and followed the first act of the opera called "The Apothecary and the Doctor." The theatre programme contained a synopsis of the tragedy in these words:

"Hamlet, King of Denmark, was poisoned by his brother Claudius and his wife, Gertrude, who was in love with her brother in law and had made a resolve to place him on the throne and marry him. This treachery remained undiscovered, and the death of the king was regarded by the court as the result of illness. After the crime was committed Gertrude, troubled by a guilty conscience, sought to make her guilty lover retire, in order to place young Hamlet, the only son of her and her husband, on the throne. The queen, still trembling in uncertainty, selects Amelia, the daughter of Claudius, to give to the rightful heir of the throne as his wife, and as a proof of the fatherly affection of Claudius, who the more willingly gives up the promised crown.

"While the guests were celebrating this festival of the marriage they were interrupted by the appearance of the ghost of Hamlet, who urges his son to avenge his murder and accuses Claudius. Then Claudius organizes a conspiracy to get the young king out of the way. The intercession of Amelia to save her father, Claudius, the efforts of the traitors, the death of Queen Gertrude and of Claudius, these are the principal incidents of the ballet which commences with the crowning of Hamlet."

It will be seen that "Hamlet" as it was danced turned out to be something quite different from the tragedy, or even the weird opera that Ambrose Thomas wrote a score for. The ballet was not popular. It was given half a dozen times and then disappeared completely from the repertory A second effort to use "Hamlet" as material for a ballet proved more successful. In November, 1832, at the same theatre in Vienna, this second ballet was produced. It was also in five acts, and was devised by a Frenchman who had been at the head of the ballet at the opera in Paris, as well as in Naples. The music for this effort, which attained as many as seventeen performances, was by Gallenburg.—N. Y. Sun.

A NOTED VETERAN SINGER.

The retirement of a Cathedral singer at the ripe old age of seventy-two ought not to be a matter for surprise, although as Deans and Chapters seem to have a rooted objection to devote their fast diminishing funds to the pensioning of elderly singers, many choristers are obliged to linger on when they are long past ability for work. The Dean and Chapter of Westminster have, however, granted John Foster, the alto, his full salary for the rest of his life, and therefore, makes way for a younger man. He was born in 1827.

Mr. Foster was sixty-two years ago a choir boy at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, Eng., under Sir George Elvey, and in 1847 he was organist of St. Andrew's, Wells Street, long before Barnaby made it a prominent musical church. In 1856 he joined the Abbey choir, of which he has been a member for nearly forty-three years. In 1864 he published a book of Hymn Tunes, and in 1872 the "Choral Harmonist," while long after he was three score years old he took up 'cycling.

Theatrical.

E. C. HEDMONDT,

Who made his appearance here on April 10, with the Castle Square Opera Company, as Don Jose, in "Carmen," is a native of Portland, Me. While a youth he went to England, where his vocal abilities attracted the attention of Princess Louise, who, recognizing the possibilities of a fine career for the young singer, became interested and provided the means for instruction. This circumstance, and the fact that he has been so long identified with the London musical world, has given rise to the supposition the he was of English nativity. Mr. Hedmondt first began his studies in Berlin, and afterwards in Leipsic, where he was placed under the guidance of the best masters. He made his debut at the Royal Opera House in Berlin, but, being unsatisfied with his achievements, returned to Leipsic for a further period of study, which finally extended to seven years of unremitting work. During this time he prepared the tenor roles of one hundred and twenty operas. In 1886 he took part in a performance of "Die Meistersinger" at Bayreuth. Mr. Hedmondt was the first to sing Tannhauser and Seigmund in English. After his continental experience he went to England. During the season at Covent Garden one of the tenors was taken ill, and Mr. Hedmondt filled his role of Tannhauser at short notice. Several directors of the Carl Rosa Opera Company were present and they engaged him for the season. Mr. Hedmondt has sung Tannhauser over one hundred times, and has appeared in all the principal tenor roles in the extensive repertory of the Carl Rosa Opera Company. He became a great favorite in London, and in the Autumn of 1895, in conjunction with the late Sir Augustus Harris, undertook a season of opera in English. He produced there Franco Leoni's "Rip Van Winkle," securing a great personal success in the leading role. Mr. Hedmondt was previously seen in this country in the support of Emma Juch, with whom he sang in all the leading tenor roles. His best known roles are Don Jose, Faust, Romeo, Raoul, Tannhauser and Seigmund. The tenor's excellent enunciation has had great influence in disputing the arguments against the English language as a medium of expression by singers.

FOREIGN CIRCUS NEWS.

CHIT CHAT FROM BARNUM & BAILEY, LTD.—Our fifth week under canvas closed at Burton, the city famous for its ale, on May 13. Sheffield, celebrated for its cutlery, gave us four splendid day's business, despite the fact that the elements and Lord George Sanger's Mammoth Collection of World Wonders were both in opposition. Friday, at Derby, the patronage was excellent and Burton gave us two splendid houses to finish the week. Last Monday we opened at the Cottonopolis of England (Manchester) for a two weeks' stay. Owing to a hard rain on Monday it was impossible to give the usual street parade, but considering the unpleasant weather no fault could be found with the opening day's attendance. Tuesday morning the sun came out bright for a couple of hours and the street pageant started over the route. Before its return to the grounds, however, a heavy thunder storm came up and everybody received a thorough drenching. Today (Wednesday) Old Sol is smiling upon us, and the indications are favorable for good audiences. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey leave us today for a flying visit to the States. The stock market continues to boom the B. & B. Ltd., shares, and it will not surprise us at all if they are double the issuing price before Friday night. Last week, Wednesday, at Sheffield, the Press Club tendered a reception to our press department and gave them a royal good time. In order to add to the enjoyment of the evening several of our prodigies went through their performances in the club rooms and made a decided hit. Among those who participated were Sol Stone, Delmo Fritz, Billy Wells, Fry Brothers, Herman, Tomaso and Horace Pickett. An invitation has been received for a similar night at the Manchester Press Club rooms next Tuesday, and if it any way compares with the night we had there last season no one will regret being present. While the show was resting at Winter quarters last Fall, prior to our London opening, some of our working forces conceived the clever idea of organizing a benefit society with the show, the title of which should be the "Benevolent Protective Order of Tigers," with a membership confined exclusively to showmen. The first meeting was held at Stoke-on-Trent, Dec. 1, 1898, when the following officers were elected for a term of six months: Jake Posey, president; George Ferguson, vice president; Al. Johnston, recording secretary; James Call, financial secretary; Charles Stock, treasurer; Ed. Buckley, sergeant at arms; Theo. Brookman and Ira Campbell, first and second assistant sergeants at arms, respectively, and a board of directors consisting of James Doyle, Al. Johnston, John O'Brien, Chas. Lindsay and James Rushenburg. On its inception the membership roll contained fifty-two names, but so popular has the order become that at this writing it can boast of two hundred and fifteen members, composed of employes from every department of the big show. Constitution and by-laws have been adopted for the better government of the organization, and each member is supplied with a printed copy of the same. A nominal initiation fee of one shilling, making it within the reach of all, entitles all successful applicants to all the rights and benefits of the order. Weekly dues are assessed of six pence each, and the treasurer now holds a balance of some £45 ($225) to the credit of the society. It is in no way a secret order, its objects being purely benevolent, and meetings are held in the big top every Sunday night. Article 16 of the by-laws more clearly defines the objects of the society, as follows: "In case of sickness or accident, where a member is unable to work, twelve shillings per week shall be granted him for a period of four weeks, subject to a continuation of the same upon the action of the members at a regular meeting." No member is entitled to benefits who, through his own immoral actions or intemperate habits, brings sickness upon himself, and no member shall be entitled to benefits for a period of two months after his initiation unless by special consent of the members at a regular meeting. A standing fund is at all times maintained, and, if by reason of disbursements the amount required by the constitution to be maintained is not in the treasurer's hands, then an assessment is made to cover the deficiency. The order has already contributed to the relief of several members who have been on the sick list, one case in particular being that of James Rushenburg, a driver, who was a charter member and officer. For several weeks past he was confined in a London hospital, suffering from a complication of diseases, and at the end of each week the full allowance under the constitution was forwarded to him. A week ago last Saturday a telegram was received from the hospital authorities that he could not possibly live many days, and President Jake Posey made a special trip from Sheffield to London to see that everything was done for him during his last days, and, in the event of death, make all necessary arrangements for his proper interment. Last Friday a telegram arrived stating that he had died, and, while the society stood ready and willing to bear all of the funeral expenses, Mr. Bailey himself assumed the responsibility of seeing that an old and faithful employe had a fitting burial. At a meeting of the society last Sunday night a series of resolutions were drawn up and unanimously adopted expressing their sympathy to relatives and friends of the family of the deceased, copies of which have been forwarded to them. The society well deserves the success with which it is meeting, and the members of the B. P. O. T. are looking forward to the time when similar organizations will be established with other tented institutions on both sides of the Atlantic, so that a permanent society may be established, which will undoubtedly be the means of great and lasting good, and bring all members of the circus profession together in such firm bonds of friendship that, no matter with what show a member may be traveling, he may feel sure he will be well cared for in case of sickness, and that the outstretched hand of goodfellowship and fraternal love will ever be extended to him by those whose avocations bring them beneath the white tents of the traveling circus. Should any of the members of other circuses desire particulars regarding the objects and methods of the order President Jake Posey will be only too happy to supply them with full particulars. Virginia Newsome, daughter of Sig. Newsome, the well known English circus proprietor, joined our force of menage riders last Monday. Rohelia Judge has been on the sick list for the past two weeks, with an attack of pneumonia, but reports received this morning are most favorable, and we hope to have him back with us ere many weeks. Juan de Zamora, of the Watsons-Zamora aerial troupe, left for London last Monday, suffering from water on the knee. On Thursday he underwent a surgical operation, and last accounts are that he is rapidly recovering. Considering the wretched weather we have had ever since our opening the health of the company is splendid, and a few days of sunshine will bring everybody around in good shape. Your valuable paper reaches us regularly every week, and its arrival is watched for with great eagerness.

GERALD GRIFFIN began a tour of the Keith circuit at the Union Square Theatre, this city, presenting Ida and May Ward's sketch, "Silence is Golden," assisted by Lydia Knott and Wm. Frederic. He has four weeks on the circuit, and may continue the sketch at other houses during the Summer season.

JOHN AND EUNICE PATTEN.

Mr. Patten was born in Attleboro, Mass., in 1861, but his youth was spent in New Haven, Ct., where he received his education. He entered the profession in 1878. The following year he joined the Fish Family, of Providence, R. I., with whom he was associated for a year. In 1880 he left the stage to go into the jewelry business in Attleboro. Here he met and married Eunice A. Smith. In 1885 Mr. Patten returned to the stage, and, with Andy Reen, made up an Irish comedy team, playing leading houses. Season of 1886–87 they joined Hi Henry's Minstrels, Mr. Patten being featured as a clog dancer. In 1888 the team separated, and the following year Mrs. Patten joined her husband in his stage work, making her first appearance at the Grand Opera House, London, Ct., in a double dancing act with Mr. Patten. The team met with success from the start. In 1892 ill health compelled Mrs. Patten to retire from the business, and Mr. Patten worked alone, doing an Irish act with "A Jay Circus" Co. and later with Harry Williams' Own Co. The season of 1895–96 Mrs. Patten rejoined her husband in a sketch written by Mr. Patten, and the following season they were with H. W. Williams' Meteors. For the past two seasons they have played dates through the East, appearing at most of the leading vaudeville houses.

O. K. SATO writes: "I am at present filling an engagement of two months at the Folies Bergere, Paris, Fr., and my act is even a greater success here than it was in Germany. My wife, Mlle. Marguerite, is also here at the Ambassadors, which is a very beautiful place; in fact, one of the finest in the world. Geo. Liman and wife were our guests for several days last week and we indulged in sight seeing galore. They are already getting the Exposition grounds in order for the big Paris Exhibition of 1900, and it will be a great boon to vaudevillists, as there will be upwards of a hundred variety houses in operation during next year. The expense of living here threatens to be tremendous, and the performers should be careful in making contracts for 1900 and put ten more on their figure, or it will be a difficult problem to "break even." I was offered a handsome figure to go from here to Madrid, Spain, to the Circus Parish, but I declined, and will be home in New York by Aug. 1. There is to my certain knowledge one American vaudeville act at present playing in Madrid, Spain, namely, Arneson, hand balancer, and reports coming from there say he is a big success. Marinelli, the great contortionist, who was such a sensation in the States a few years ago, has retired from active service and is conducting an agency here in Paris, booking for a number of the best establishments in Europe. Alburtus and Bartram are at Milan, Italy. The Braatz Bros. have gone to St. Petersburg, Russia; Paulinetti and Piquo to Blackpool, Eng., and there is not a nook or corner in Europe where one cannot meet a few American performers. Truly the field of the actor is as broad as it is long. A word about German pirates in conclusion. I was introduced to a German juggler in Berlin, who was a regular visitor nightly to the Apollo Theatre, where I was appearing. He said: 'That's a very novel act you do, Mr. Sato, and I think I will do one like it for a change.' I thought he was joking. Judge my surprise when, less than a month later, I had friends forward me programmes from a second rate theatre in Mannheim, Germany, where he was not only doing my entire act but billed himself as 'O. K. Sarto, the American juggler.' Pirates here take not only acts, but name and all. Have you got anything in America to beat that?"

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—The dramatic season of 1898-99 is here almost at an end. Saturday evening last the Park Theatre "put up its shutters," and the Boston Theatre and Grand Opera House will follow suit at the close of the performance at each house on Tuesday evening, Memorial Day, while the majority of the other amusement resorts will hold out but a short time later.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.—Kellar, the magician, begins here May 29 a date of a single week, during which he will present some of his latest mysteries. Among his occult feats are those he terms "Creation Revealed," or the production of human bodies from empty space; "The House and the Brain," "The Flight of the Adept" and "The Passing of Man." On Thursday night, 1, Treasurer J. F. Wagner and Ticket Agent V. T. Fetherstone will benefit jointly. Last week, Andrew Mack.

BOSTON THEATRE.—Leon and Adelaide Herrmann played to a week of big business at the Boston last week and will remain here until Tuesday night, when his date, and the theatre also, will close simultaneously.

TREMONT THEATRE.—"Prince Pro Tem." is in its last week here. On Monday evening, 29, it will have its 200th presentation in Boston, and on that occasion every lady seated on the lower floor or in the first balcony will receive a souvenir. Next week, Francis Wilson and company, in which are Lillian Russell and Thos. Q. Seabrooke, will be seen in "Erminie."

BOSTON MUSEUM.—Viola Allen begins 29 the thirteenth week of her engagement in "The Christian" at this house. The life of the play here, however, is drawing to a near end, and the final performances are announced for June 10. On Friday evening, 9, Miss Allen will be seen for the one hundredth time here as Glory Quayle, so that the closing shows on Saturday will foot up one hundred and two for the entire run. The house will then close.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager Magee retains for the first two days of the current week—giving three performances—the Black Patti Troubadours, whose last appearance will be on Tuesday evening, after which the big house will be dark for the Summer season. At the closing up of the house Mr. Magee will visit New York.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.—"A Temperance Town" has made a strike here evidently, hence Manager Emery hangs to it and announces its third week to begin May 29. Large and well pleased audiences have seen it during the past fortnight, and it has won in good money for this popular south end theatre. "A Midnight Bell," another of Mr. Hoyt's pleasant plays, is announced as in preparation, and will probably be staged next week.

BOWDOIN SQUARE THEATRE.—"Muldoon's Picnic" is the card Manager Lothrop plays for patronage here this week, with John McVicker, Sadie McVicker, T. F. Thomas, Florence Hale, Frederick Ormonde, Henrietta Rich, Frank H. Allen, Gussie Hunt, James Levering and Mamie Harnish in the cast. Next week, Monday, afternoon and evening, the house season will close with a performance of "Oliver Twist," for the benefit of Jay Hunt.

GRAND THEATRE.—"The Gold King," after a successful run at another house last week, takes a week at Managers Watson & Thomas' South End house, when it will be staged with virtually the same cast as before at the downtown theatre.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Manager Batcheller will offer his patrons, for one week only, the Sporty Widows' Burlesque Co., who will be seen and heard in a programme of melody, mirth, music and dance, and specialties by the Three Gardiners, comedians; Udell and Pierce, Baker and Lynn, the Trio of Wright Sisters, in song and dance; Marie Rogers, Ruby Raymond, Loretta Claxton, Maggie Height, Alice Woods, Ida Walling, Pauline Sledge, Gertrude Crane, Fanny Woods and Ada Lane.

KEITH'S THEATRE.—Mr. Keith's headliner for the current week announces the favorite comedians, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Nobles, in the funny one act comedy, "At Bilgeville Junction," in which Mrs. Nobles' sweet voice will be heard in a catchy "coon" love song. On the specialty roster are: James Morton and Maude Revelle, Hilda Thomas and Frank Barry, Kelly and Ashby, Tramp Juggler Harrigan, the Whitney Bros., Bud Snyder, trick cyclist; Mazuz and Mazett, the Manhattan Comedy Four, Brown, Harrison and Brown, comedy team; Lew Palmer, the Casino Comedy Quartet, the Bernards, in German comedy; the Harpers, "real coon" vocalism; Maxwell and Dudley, Earl and Wilson, Edward L. Boyle, blind vocalist and musician, and a series of new local scenes as portrayed by the American biograph. Next week, Ching Ling Foo, the Chinese magician.

HOWARD ATHENEUM.—The Royal Burlesquers are here this week, opening the entertainment with the snappy travesty, "An Alderman's Election." In the variety provided are the Cosmopolitan Three, Wm. Galpin, Adele Reno and Arthur Yule, Elmer Tenley and Teddy Simonds, the Mignani Quartet of Musical Street Pavers; Emma Weston, vocalist; Falk and Lillian and the Moore Sisters, soubrettes. Boyd, Howard and Stirk, "Happy" Dick Turner and his singing dog, the Holbrooks, the Turner Sisters, singers and dancers, and the Cake Walking Paynes.

PALACE THEATRE.—For the current week manager Waidron presents as an opener the amusing burletta, "Uncle's Visit," in which the entire troupe of Parisian Belles will be seen. This is an original company of really high class vaudevillists, and have won favor wherever they have been booked. The well known young comedian Jack Crawford heads the organization, and he is backed up in his mirth making by a number of very capable people. An olio follows the opener and in that will appear: Nolan and White, comiques; Hickey and Nelson, acrobats; Bessie Taylor, vocalist; Cessy Grant and Rita Durand, and the programme ends with laugh making burlesque, "A Night's Pleasure," in which the entire troupe will take part.

AUSTIN & STONE'S MUSEUM.—The principal attraction here this week is a company of dwarfs, who have been secured by Mgrs. Stone and Shaw at a large expense, and who will be seen in their peculiarly novel ballets, pantomimes, and vaudeville acts. They are certainly a genuine novelty, and will, no doubt, draw big business. On the stage this week are the varieties: Herr Dohlen, the famous glyptoscope; Leonard and Fulton, Minnie Lee, Markoe Brothers, Boulden and Griffin, Agnes Evans, Whitney and Bell, Jones and Sutton, John Mack and Stella Lee.

NICKELODEON.—"Close up?" said Manager L. B. Walker in response to a query to that effect, "not while business holds as it is now. But I suppose there will be a falling off by and by, and, really, I won't regret a great deal the opportunity to close the doors for the Summer season. There are many improvements I contemplate making, and when I do reopen my patrons will find one of the brightest, cleanest and coziest of houses in its class that there is in the city." For the present week in the curio halls can be seen a contest on bicycles between a half dozen young women; Mons. and Mme. Vernelo, wonder workers; Alexander, in his sensational spirit cabinet act; Decobra, "king of the black art;" Leona, the Parisian danseuse, and ten other novel features. On the theatre stage is the Fanny Burgess Vaudeville Stars, in bright sketches and living picture poses. Next week, the female pillow fighters.

GYPSY CAMP.—Business here picked up remarkably well during the past six days, and Manager Burgess reports having an excellent week. The interior of the camp has been thoroughly renovated and decorated, a cold air blast plant put in, and when the torrid weather—due now in a short time—sets in the place will be one of the coolest resorts in the city.

CHUTES.—This popular outdoor Summer resort is now in full blast and crowds flock there early in the day and remain—coming and going—until the closing hour at night, enjoying to the fill the pleasure of "Shooting the Chutes," donkey and pony riding, boat sailing and other diversions. The grounds, on Huntington Avenue, have been greatly improved and beautified by Manager Hyde, at a heavy outlay of cold cash, and the place is proving, as it did last year, one of the most popular and pleasant resorts in and around Boston. There is always something novel and pleasurable to be found there.

NOTES.—Among the bookings to be seen at Keith's in the near future are Willis Sweatnam, Ching Ling Foo, the Chinese magician; Ray L. Royce, rural character impersonator; Caron and Herbert, acrobats; Lavender and Tomson, comedians; Nichols Sisters, black face comiques; Romalo Bros., acrobats, and the Four Emperors of Music..... Andrew Mack's season closed Saturday night, 27, and he has retired to his Summer cottage at Onset.....Edgar Davenport has been engaged to support Viola Allen, in "The Christian," next season, appearing as Horatio Drake. The adaptation is the work of a woman's pen.....Effie Elisler's husband, Frank Weston, will play Horatio Drake in the special company that will present "The Christian" next season.....Viola Allen is booked for a forty-two weeks' tour next season, one of the longest on record, and even that time may be still further extended. Miss Allen had planned to sail for Europe June 17, but the prolongation of her engagement at the Boston Museum compels a postponement to June 21, and she will leave New York on that date.

Worcester.—At Lothrop's Opera House large audiences were the rule last week, when the King Dramatic Co., in repertory, was the attraction. The company closes the season at this house, presenting "The Cotton King" and "The Last Stroke," May 29-June 3.

RHODE ISLAND.

Providence.—At the Providence Opera House the closing week of the season was certainly a very brilliant one from every point of view. The attraction for the first three nights was E. H. Sothern, in "The King's Musketeer." The supporting company was good. The scenery was probably the best that has been seen at the house this season. The business was fully as good as could possibly be expected at this time of the year. On May 25 Maude Adams came for one night only, and presented "Romeo and Juliet." The whole house had been sold for days before she came, and there were many people who could not get admission. Miss Adams made herself a prime favorite here early in the season, when she presented "A Little Minister." Her Juliet was well liked, although it differed from any performance of the role seen here before. The local press said unkind things about the show as a whole, but that did not alter the receipts at the box office any. On 26, 27 we had the pleasure of witnessing a new play, which was put on the stage for the first time. The title of the play was "All's Fair in Love and War." Leo Ditrickstein played the principal role, and the supporting company was the same that supported Mr. Sothern the first half of the week. The first performance was especially interesting, and there were many professional people in the audience. With this engagement closed the most successful season that the Providence Opera House has ever had. The house will open again in September.

KEITH'S NEW THEATRE.—On last week's bill Papinta led in the honors, and her myriad dances certainly caught on, and she has been held over this week. Business was good and everyone seemed satisfied with the week. This week there is another strong bill, made up as follows: Rose Melville, in her sketch, "Sis Hopkins." Papinta has been engaged for the second week. Idalene Cotton, in her imitations of Anna Held, Mrs. Fiske and other well known people; Nick Long, character comedian; the American biograph; Falke and Semon, musical team; Coulter and Starr, Raymond and Clarke, C. Southers Thompson, Hilton, William P. Sweatnam, John Kernall and Ray L. Royce.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—Week of 22 wound up the regular season of variety and burlesque. The attraction was Clark Bros.' Royal Burlesquers. This show has been here three times this season, and has done good business on each visit. The show nor the business was hardly up to the last visit, but that cannot be expected. The company has been changed somewhat, but Tenley and Simonds were still with them, and presented a new turn, which scored well. This week Manager Spitz inaugurates a season of light opera, with the Stoessel Opera Co. as the attraction. For the opening week "The Mikado" will be given. The theatre will be decorated with potted plants and ferns, and a new cooling apparatus has been put in, and it is thought that the scheme will be a success from the start. The public is at liberty to vote on any opera, and the one receiving the largest number of votes is the one that will be presented on the following week.

WESTMINSTER THEATRE.—Week of 22 the Sporty Widows Co. sported all the week, and gave a pretty good show, to a very good business. The business was increased very much by the reduction of prices, and the effect was seen the very first day. The popular prices will continue throughout this week, which will wind up the season at this house. The offering this week is the Parisian Burlesquers. The show is a new one here. On the following Monday the treasurer of the house and the head usher will have a benefit.

NOTES.—Adam Forepaugh-Sells Bros.' Shows are booked for June 1.....The city seemed full of theatrical people last week, partly on account of a new production by Daniel Frohman, and there were several of them entertained in royal shape by friends and admirers of this city. The principal ones entertained were Maude Adams and Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sothern.....The down the river is well on here now, and daily boats are plying between this city and all the shore places, and things have taken on a very summerish look about here. Crescent Park and Rocky Point will, of course, be the chief places, and the managers of these two places are doing all that can be done to pull in the crowds and are succeeding very well for so early in the season.

CANADA.

Montreal.—Her Majesty's had a most successful week May 22-27, both in attendance and nature of the attractions. For the first time in some years Frank Daniels appeared here 22-24, presenting, to general satisfaction and big houses, "The Wizard of the Nile" and "The Idol's Eye." Mr. Daniels was ably supported by A. C. Wheelan, Norma Kopp and Helen Redmond, with a good chorus. Sousa's Band came 25, to the record houses of the year. "The Grandee" will receive its initial production week of 29. It is a comic opera, the music by Prof. Jules Hone, and the libretto by Capt. Forsyth, of Montreal.

FRANCAIS.—The business here week of 22, and particularly on Queen's Birthday, 24, was away up. "Harbor Lights" was the bill, and the scenic and general effects were excellent. The vaudeville bill embraced Wm. Davis, Prof. Laberge, Masse and the Kingsley Sisters. "Ours," for week 29, with "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" following.

ROYAL.—The Little Egypt Burlesque Co. presented a show much above the ordinary here, 22-27, the olio containing some good turns. The Chicago Burlesque Co. week of 29.

SOHMER PARK.—Besides a burlesque of the "Drum Major's Daughter," Chas. Whelan, Thomas Hegron, and the band were on the bill 28.

NOTES.—The big benefit to Ed. Varney takes places at the Queen's 31. The programme prepared is an excellent one.....The large auditorium, the area erected last year for hockey, etc., will open as a Summer garden June 5, with the Asbeys, Gaspard Bros., Toozoonin Arabs (7), Sisters Rappo and a permanent military band, under the leadership of Prof. Pulvron, the well known leader of the Victoria Rifles' Band.

Toronto.—At the Grand Opera House James O'Neill, in "The Musketeers," played to the capacity of the house May 22-27.

TORONTO OPERA HOUSE.—"Coontown 400" had good business 22-27, and the house is now closed for the season.

PRINCESS THEATRE.—The Cummings Stock Co., in "Arabian Nights," had fairly good business 22-27.

BIJOU.—Last week a good show drew light business. The bill: W. E. Horland, Wrothe and Wakefield, Ida Russell, La Petite Grace, and the Bros. Bright, concluding with "An Affair of Honor," in which Junette Perie and Pauline Elliott took the leading roles.

THE EMPIRE.—This house continues to do a good business with Tom Shea, the Herne Bros., Babe Riel, Barr and Benton, Fanny Granger, Master Racycle Lawrence, Frasees and Little Ida Glace, closing with a burlesque, entitled "A Vain Princess."

Winnipeg.—At the Winnipeg Theatre Young Bros.' "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was presented May 19, 20. The attendance was good on the first night, but rather light on the second. Chas. H. Yale's "Devil's Auction" opened 23, for two nights, to a fair house. The 24th being the Queen's Birthday and a holiday, two very large houses are expected. The Neill Co. will open a nine days' engagement 25, and, as they are Winnipeg's especial favorites, they are sure of big business.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—John L. Sullivan was the attraction 22-24, and proved a great drawing card, doing very large business. The Metropolitan Opera Co. is booked for week of 29.

St. John.—At the Opera House "Side Tracked," billed for May 18, failed to reach here in time to give a performance on that date. However, the company appeared 19, to standing room only, gave a good performance, and had good houses matinee and night of 20. E. H. Connor, in the part of the tramp, was very good. The W. S. Harkins' Co. opened 22, for two weeks, in "Why Smith Left Home," to a good house. The company gave a matinee 24, to a large house, and at night had to put the orchestra on the stage. Repertory for the rest of the week: "The Butterflys" 25, 26, "What Happened to Jones" 27. "Town Topics" is due June 14-

"The Club's Baby" Acted in Chicago for the First Time in America—The Summer Park Season Now in Full Swing.

[Special Dispatches to THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.]

CHICAGO, May 30.—With warm weather and occasional thunder storms as adjuncts, the Summer show season began this week in earnest. McVicker's was filled to overflowing at the first American production of "The Club's Baby." The theme of this farce is broad, but it is handled in a harmless sort of a way, and the audience extracted a great deal of hearty and wholesome amusement from the performance. Harry Brown, in an old man character part, did some clever work. Ethel Knight Mollison, in the leading feminine role, wore a dress suit with becoming modesty and grace, and carried her part fairly well, despite nervousness. Hope Ross was hardly accustomed to the atmosphere of farce, but she carried off a share of the honors, as did all the rest of the competent company. Arthur Forrest and Max Figman, in two of the more prominent masculine roles; Percy Brooke, R. A. Roberts, Mamie Dupont, Ada Craven and the rest From the way the piece was received by the audience it looks as if it was in for a good run.....The Sans Souci Park had unusually large crowds for a new resort. Bessie Bonehill headed the list of vaudeville. Vaudeville & Minstrel

FRANK DUMONT writes: "I have purchased an old time instrument called a melophone, and thought it would be of interest to old timers in minstrelsy and music matters in general. This instrument was made in the early "fifties" by Brown and Leclerq, Paris. It is in the shape of a guitar, with a short neck, and seventy knobs or keys in it. A pair of rods at the lower end furnish wind to the bellows, which are concealed within the instrument, and act upon steel reeds. Chords and rapid notes can be evolved from it in the hands of a skilful player. This melophone was originally in the possession of Fred Buckley, of the famous Buckley Serenaders, and thence I think was owned by Donniker. It came into Morris D. Edmonds' possession in 1859, who was leader here for Sam Sanford and this opera house until 1864. It is in good shape, perfectly in tune and can be played upon in every key. I believe it to be quite a curiosity and will doubtless attract much attention. There were but few imported to this country, as the price was quite a sum in those days, and the instrument a very difficult one to master."

LEVINE AND CLEMENTINE SNOW were engaged to take part in the cadets' cake walk at Utica (N. Y.) Park on Decoration Day.

They are constantly improving their property, and when it is completed expect to have an ideal suburban home.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling.—The Waite Opera Co. broke the record in attendance at Wheeling Park May 21-27, and gave excellent satisfaction. The weather was fine during the entire engagement, and every performance was witnessed by a large audience..... The Mozart Singing Society will give its annual concert at Mozart Park June 4 Among those who will appear are: Lillian Carlismith, contralto; Dora Valesca Becker, violiniste; Flavie Van Den Hende, 'cellist, and Celia Schiller, pianist. Two concerts will be given, afternoon and evening.....Quite a crowd went from this city to Moundsville 26, to take in John Robinson's Circus.....The scouting corps of the Forepaugh-Selis Bros.' Shows came in during the night of 25, and in the morning the dead walls announced that it was policy to "wait for the big show, coming soon." The date here is Saturday, July 15..... Manager Charles A. Feiner is busy taking care of the advertising and press department of the Elks' street fair, which holds forth June 23 and week.... One of the big weeks next season here will be the second week in October, when the K. of P. Grand Lodge assembles. It will be more in the nature of a tri-State gathering than a grand lodge, and the local committees are offering fabulous cash prizes for the largest attendance of foreign lodges and for the drills by the uniform companies. It is anticipated that Wheeling will have its largest crowd to entertain during that week, as this is quite a Pythian centre.

KENTUCKY.

Louisville.—At the Temple Theatre a benefit performance was given Anna MacGregor, formerly a member of the Meffert Stock Co., on May 23. A splendid programme was presented and passed off without a hitch. Oscar Eagle and Esther Lyon came from French Lick Springs, Ind., and appeared in a one act play, "Drifted Apart," which was received with hearty applause. A two act comedy, entitled "Naval Engagements," was participated in by Miss MacGregor, Margaret James and Messrs. Eagle, Griffith, Warren and Webb. If Miss MacGregor had any doubts as to her popularity during her two years' stay here with the Meffert Co. they were quickly dispelled when she faced the large audience present, and received the hearty applause and showers of flowers bestowed upon her.

NOTES FROM THE J. W. SHIPMAN'S "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" CO.: Our season opened at East Syracuse, N. Y., May 11, and notwithstanding the unfavorable weather we have not yet had a losing stand, the big top being packed every evening. We have found it necessary to already enlarge our tent, and a new middle piece and ten lengths of seats have been purchased, which will give us a seating capacity of two thousand. The parade is the distinct feature of the show and is nearly a quarter of a mile in length. There are two bands, white and colored, a drum corps, ten mounted people, a handsomely carved Eva float, two tableau wagons, a pack of genuine bloodhounds, and a string of ponies. The giant horse ridden by Legree is also a striking feature. Everything this season is brand new, and the uniforms and wardrobe the finest to be procured. We are using at present a 70ft. top, with a 30ft. middle piece. We have thirty head of stock, three passenger and twelve baggage wagons. J. W. Shipman is proprietor and George A. Eades, late business manager of the Grand Opera House, Syracuse, business manager. Harry C. Robinson is stage manager and leader of the big band, and Ed. Espey leader of the colored band. Tim Hayes is boss canvas man, Sam Hammond in charge of stock, and Guy Woods chef. The advance brigade is in charge of J. C. Connors Jr., and he is doing splendid work ahead. The route is taking us down the St. Lawrence River and through the New England States. He reports prospects the brightest, and the outlook is certainly most favorable for the Summer. The dramatic contingent is strong, and hits are made nightly by Ed. Espey as Uncle Tom, Mattie Downie as Topsy, and Baby Marie Connors as Eva. The band, under the leadership of Harry Robinson, and the orchestra, in charge of Prof. Frank W. Streator, are winning praise everywhere. At Clayton, N. Y., by special request, the former gave a sacred concert, to a large and appreciative audience. Business has warranted the addition of a company of cake walkers, and this will be added as a special feature of the concert. Decoration Day the company will be in Canton, and the band has tendered its services to the G. A. R., and will furnish music for the customary parade. Proprietor Shipman and his assistants are doing all in their power to make the company the strongest and best now before the public, and he is reaping his reward in a succession of packed tents.

Much credit is due to the Park manager, James W. Kean, who not only has his eyes everywhere, keeping fine order, but manages to get new attractions for afternoons, picnics, mesmeristic seances, etc. For four nights we had S. R. O. signs out, which is considerable as the seating capacity is three thousand.

WM. BEROL, of Berol's American Mystifyers, writes: "We closed a successful Winter season at Amarillo, Tex., to open our Summer tour on May 16, at Trinidad, Col. The difference between the 'sunny' South and the 'cooly' West is illustrated on my own person by a sunburnt and frostbitten nose. The fire poker is as much in use here as the fan in Texas, making Colorado the ideal Summer territory."

Y., on their return engagement, week of May 22, and their benefits of "That Girl from Texas" and "The Old Lime Kiln" on Friday and Saturday nights were record breakers. Both plays are by C. T. Dazey, who, occupied a box for both performances and complimented the stars on their conception of the parts. The demand for seats justified Manager Clark, of the Stone Opera House, and Manager Spooner extending the engagement for three nights. The stars were the recipients of a large number of bouquets and handsome presents during the week.

— Notes from the Keystone Dramatic Co.: Lawrence B. McGill will be sole manager of this company next season, having bought Geo. B. Howard's interest. Contracts have been made with Fred. My 'Midnight in Chinatown,' which, by the way, was written and given a name last Winter, before the other opium plays were produced, and which is the work of Adelaide Melbe, who also adapted my comedy of 'Perkins' Night Out,' will have a production the coming season. Next season Mr. Mantell will devote all of his time to the presentation of a new play, "The Dagger and the Cross," a romantic drama, in a prologue and four acts, a dramatization by W. A. Tremayne of Joseph Hatton's novel of the same name. OUR LONDON LETTER.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

LONDON, Eng., May 13.

This has been a dull week so far as entertainment novelties in the West End are concerned, the Empire's new ballet, "'Round the Town Again," being the single important production. "A Court Scandal" has been transferred from the Court to the Garrick, and "Carnac, Sahib" gave up last night and will this evening be followed at Her Majesty's by a revival of "Captain Swift," followed by the farce, "The First Night." "A Court Scandal," by the way, is preceded by Eden Phillpotts' little play, "For Love of Prim."

"'ROUND THE TOWN AGAIN," the Empire's new ballet, is a renewal of the same idea previously used in the ballet, "'Round the Town," at the same music hall some years ago. That was a very great success, and its successor just produced gives every evidence of running just as well, or, at least, being a very good second. It is described as a "characteristic up to date ballet," and as "arranged by George Edwardes," but I have heard well informed persons say it is the work of Lt. Col. Newnham-Davis, a gallant soldier-journalist, who knows as much about going 'round the town as any man in London, and who knows how to make the round very readable when reduced to cold types in a "warm" weekly paper. His superior attributes in this direction may be judged when I say that he "did"—in a descriptive sense only—the restaurants of London so well in a series of articles, called "Dinners and Diners," for W. W. Astor's afternoon paper, The Pall Mall Gazette, so very well indeed that the best of them are about to be published in book form. "'Round the Town Again" opens at Charing Cross Station in the evening, where Colonel Hampton and his family have gathered to welcome home the Twenty-first Lancers on their return from chopping up Dervishes at Omdurman. Daisy Hampton loves Captain Culver of the Twenty-first, and is annoyed by the attentions of a "man about town," one Dudley Loftus. Two of Daisy's pretty cousins are waiting just as anxiously for two younger officers of the regiment, and her maid, Nora, is not far behind in her desires to welcome the Captain's soldier-servant, Binks. The Mayor and Mayoress as well as other local "bigwigs" of Marshston, the captain's native place, are also on hand to welcome the hero. The story from that point has to do with the jealously of Daisy for a burlesque actress, Mlle. Fifi, and the jealousy of Nora for Fifi's French maid, Lisette, and there are scenes in Bond Street, Hyde Park, and two in the Covent Garden Opera House before the lovers are all made happy and the Green Eyed Monster gets its quietus. There are dances of all sorts, from straight ballet to cake walks, and the very large number of well trained people employed are most splendidly arrayed in a remarkable variety of costumes. The principals are Mlle. Zanfretta as Fifi, Mlle. Adeline Genee as Lisette, Mlle. Cora as Nora, Miss Vincent as Daisy and Harry Bishop as the comic Trooper Binks. The dances were arranged by Katti Lanner, and Leopold Wenzel wove the miscellaneous music into a melodious whole.

Other recent productions worth a few lines have been "On the Continong," a farcial comedy in three acts, adapted by Max O'Rell from "Le Voyage de M. Perrichon," which was produced for the first time in the London district, I, at the Queen's Opera House, Crouch-end; "His Majesty's Musketeers," a five act play, by Frederic Carl, "after" Dumas, produced at St. George's Hall 9, and "San Lin," an opera, founded on "The Cat and the Cherub." The libretto is the work of Heinrich Blau, and the music by Victor Hollaender. The latter was produced at Manchester 11. "On the Continong" is a new version of an old French farce that has been used before on the English stage, under several titles. Max O'Rell has made the leading character a pompous and wealthy manufacturer of glue, one Jean Perquet, who takes his family to Switzerland on a vacation tour. There are the usual love makings and comic misadventures, winding up with the usual pairings of the various young lovers. O'Rell himself, who is hardly more than a novice on the stage, played the leading role with considerable skill and humor.

Of "His Majesty's Musketeers" I need only say that it can hardly be described as filling a long felt want, nor that Mr. Carl's D'Artagnan is likely to throw down the reputations of certain other actors who have essayed to portray that daring young soldier.

"SAN LIN" as an opera closely follows its story as a play in "The Cat and the Cherub," and was noteworthy because it was given by the Carl Rosa Opera Co. The music is said to be full of fine effects and to be in keeping with the quaint and weird touches of the story. Dr. Osmond Carr conducted, and the composer was called for and heartily applauded.

The annual general meeting of the Music Hall Home Fund was held 10 at the York Hotel, with R. V. Simons in the chair, in the absence of Jas. Chappel. The annual report showed receipts during the year of £144, considerably less than the expenditures, but there had been a balance to draw upon. There is at present a balance of £49 odd in hand. Dan Leno was re-elected president and Douglas White treasurer, while Tom White, T. Wootwell, J. P. Dane, G. Douglas, H. Maxam, W. Henderson, J. Higgins, Sam Samuels and H. Glynn were made new members of the committee, the old members being re-elected in a body. John Higgins promised two prizes of five guineas each for jumping contests at the sports for the benefits of the Home's Fund and of the Music Hall's Benevolent Fund. The home is to benefit June 7 and 8, at the New Lambeth Baths, when a novel entertainment will be given in the tank. Eleven events have already been arranged, including races for "all comers," "artists," ladies, children, managers, musicians and waiters. Dan Leno is going to swim a match with Marie Lloyd, and if some of the heavyweights will enter for the diving contests the affair will undoubtedly make a big splash.

NOTES.—Mrs. Beerbohm Tree recited Kipling's "Soldier, Soldier," at the Whitefriar's Club dinner last week, Gilbert Parker being in the chair..... Kyrle Bellew denies with vigor the report that he and Mrs. Potter are going into management in a theatre in the West End. He says the rumor has caused both Mrs. Potter and himself much inconvenience and annoyance.....A faint rumor is hovering about to the effect that Charles Frohman will try to get Her Majesty's from Mr. Tree for a short season, for Maude Adams as Juliet. Mr. Frohman, John Drew and William Gillette are due here in a day or two, but the latter pair are not going to do any acting..... The Telegraph's dramatic critic finds fault with the Empire management for keeping turns too long in its bill.....Carl Hertz has shown a new illusion at the Metropolitan, called "A Fair Knave." He places a square shaped and apparently empty wooden frame on a couple of brass uprights, and from the paper sides of the frame there at once bursts out a young woman (Mlle. D'Alten), dressed as the Jack of Spades, a card which has previously been drawn from a pack of cards by a member of the audience. .....Daniel Frohman has sold his American rights in "The Gay Lord Quex" and John Hare has arranged to take a company to the States, including Irene Vanbrough, to exploit it in the Autumn and Winter of 1900-1901. Mr. Hare has stated that the report that Miss Fortescue has a financial interest in the play is "perfectly monstrous." Just where the perfect monstrosity of the story lies is hard to discern. .....But dramatic authors are as sensative apparently as actors, and since Gabrielle d'Annunzio's play, "Gloria," was hissed off the stage by the Neopolitans the author has issued it in book form, dedicated "To the dogs who hissed it at Napies." Had the dedication been "to the Geese who hissed" it would have been more in keeping with natural history, as well as more polite.....London share holders in the Barnum & Bailey show are hearing cheerful reports from its provincial tour.....Ernest Martin, a member of the Lyceum Co., has written a book called "Shadows, or Glimpses of Society." .....Wilson Barrett has said in a talk on theatrical matters that the actor's mind must be divided into three parts, "feeling," "willing" and "understanding."..... The late Mrs. Fuller (Rose Leclercq) died intstate and her son, Fuller Mellish, has been appointed her executor. The estate is valued at £1,170..... "The Manœuvres of Jane" reached its 200th performance at the Haymarket 8. Both "Under the Red Robe" and "The Little Minister" ran as long or longer at the same house.....Mr. and Mrs. Haviland (Amy Coleridge) have gone on tour with "The Only Way," by arrangement with Martin Harvey.....Weedon Grossmith has bought "The Lion and the Unicorn," a play of the Charles II period, by Laurence Irving and Thomas Hasselwood..... The Kendals have bought a play by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, the novelist....."Sesostri's," an Egyptian opera by Mrs. Seiden William, with music by Charles Franklin, which was produced in Cairo last Winter, is to be given in London.....George Rignold, once well known in England and the United States, recently made a success as "Othello" at his own theatre in Sydney, N. S. W. He has been in Australia for about fifteen years.....One or two inconspicuous London papers are complaining that the critics are too prone to praise American plays and players here....."Samson," the strong man, at one time Sandow's London rival, will summer in St. Petersburg, Russia.....The coming fight for positions on the Board of Directors at the Oxford Music Hall is between Geo. Adney Payne and Henry Sutton on the one side, and Harry Lunder, the late manager, and Hugh Ashly. If the former pair win the Oxford will join hands with the Tivoli, the "Met," the Canterbury, the Paragon, and the new and as yet unopened music hall on the Euston road. If Ashly and Lundy score, it will join hands with the Pavilion in rivalry with all others..... Clarkson, the costumer, and wig man, has again got the fine contract for dressing the Royal Military Tournament.....Sam Long, of "The American Flashlights," received the news of his mother's death while he was in South Africa. He and his brother are said to have inherited considerable money.....The Gattis may "do a panto. on their own" at the Adelphi next Christmas..... H. Arnold's "Circus Girl" Co. on tour. The good old "gee-gee" is twenty one years old.....Nellie Farren is contemplating a return to the stage, and Violet Cameron, who will play a male part in the forthcoming "review" at the Crystal Palace, will, now that she has "returned," confine herself to that line of work.....Fraulne Geirs, the famous German tragic actress, may play a short season here in the Autumn.....The story that Madame Calve is having herself sculptured as Ophelia on a tomb, to be erected over her when she is dead is emphatically denied by the great singer herself. She is being made in marble as Ophelia, but the statue has nothing to do with a tomb. Sarah Bernhardt's grave—or the one she owns—in Pere la Chaise, in Paris, is already covered with her tombstone, a heavy block of granite, on which her name appears in gilded letters..... Hardy, the American Blondin, was very badly hurt this week at the Alexandria Palace. He concluded his tight rope performance by his "long dive" into the net, landed fairly and rebounded, but on his coming down the second time the net gave way and he was dashed against the orchestra seats. One leg was broken, and very serious injuries sustained to the head and body.....W. H. Rowe, known to variety people as "Sequah," has been fined £3 and 23 shillings costs for assaulting Tom Pacey, an agent who had won a suit against him.....Miss Eastlake, the actress, remembered in the States in connection with Wilson Barrett's earlier tours, is to sell her household effects next week. The amounts were given in francs, and I quote them reduced to American money....John Hart, proprietor of the Star Music Hall, Bermondsey, has been found guilty of slandering a woman named Skinner, and the jury assessed her "damages" at £50. The woman had been ordered to keep out of the hall, but came in notwithstanding. In the exchange of repartee which followed Mr. Hart seems to have hermetically sealed the safety valve of his discretion in the way of vitriolic phraseology, and the woman sued for injured feelings. It seems really to have been a dead heat so far as verbal abuse went, but the jurymen were chivalrous and the plaintiff scored..... Mrs. Charlotte Ann Pearce, known on the stage as Lottie Pearce, has secured a divorce from her husband, Stephen Newton Pearce, an actor. Her grounds were misconduct and desertion.....The baby incubators at the Crystal Palace, a "privilege" run by Adolph Lowenstein, have been ousted. Lowenstein sued a doctor for not doing what he had been employed to do for the babies and the C. P. Co. closed the show, claiming that the baby incubators were not a suitable feature, as the doctor said they could not thrive there. The doctor won his case..... Archibald Nagle, an advertising agent, who for thirty years has been a director of the Alhambra Music Hall, died this week.....Mr. Faber, who recently sold the Covent Garden Opera House lease to a syndicate, is to finance De Koven's opera, "The Fencing Master," on tour. Florence Monteith will play the part made known by Marie Tempest. Henry Mapleson will probably manage the tour, which will begin in Dublin. News from the far East includes the note that the Flying Jordans reached Siam March 29. On the voyage from Singapore to Bankok, the Siamese capital, the company's baggage was overhauled by a thief in the storage room, and Lewis Jordan lost a diamond ring, Manager Geach a gold watch, and Olaf Schrader—a "tramp 'cyclist"—a considerable sum of money.....A row has occurred at the Theatre de la Monnaie, Brussels, because the management kept the house so dark during the performance of Wagner's operas that the audience could not read the words in their librettos. Some struck matches and one brought a candle, and then the management weakened.....M. Delonnel, the Parisian song writer, left 700,000 francs, and had written 7,000 songs. Another songster recently dead is Bond Andrews, who wrote music as well, and set several of Chevalier's best known songs to music. He was forty-two years old.....William Burress, who came from New York to take J. E. Sullivan's part of the Polite Lunatic, in "The Belle of New York," when it was thought Mr. Sullivan would not renew his contract, is now playing the part on tour. The laws are very weak as regards copyright of the titles of songs and will doubtless be amended..... George English, proprietor of the Seabright Music Hall, Hackney Road, has been fined £1 for allowing a boy under eleven years to appear on his stage. One will be a skit on the class of songs employing a boy located in a box or the balcony, or elsewhere off the stage, to sing the chorus as a solo. Alec. Hurley will sing "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," and "Big Ben Brown," dressed as an Eton boy, will bellow from the balcony. The prime cut of the programme, however, will be the Doo Da Day Minstrels, organized for this occasion only by "Pony" Moore, the father of the game over here. He will be "first bones," and Harry Randall and Tom McNaughton will also operate in a like manner. The "tambos" will be Dan Leno, Joe Elvin and Eugene Stratton. Herbert Campbell will be the interlocuter, and the "sit rounds" will be Bransby Williams, Alec Hurley, Harry Tate, Fred McNaughton, Pat Rafferty, Walter Belonini, George Lashwood and Harry Freeman. The act will be done in black face.....Apropos of minstrels, the death of Roland Oliver, of the Mohawks, was very tragic and sudden. He was the principal bass of the company, and had just sung "Blow, Blow, Thou Wintry Wind" with splendid effect, when he staggered to his dressing room, where he swooned and died in a very few moments from heart failure. He was a temperate and popular man, and leaves a widow. The sad occurrence took place at the Aston Lower Grounds on the night of 7.....The experiment of taking the Rousbey Opera Co. to South Africa is an expensive one, Herbert Flemming, the manager, and his partner, Mr. De Jong, having to pay £3,000 for steamship fares. She has been a vice president of the club for several years.....At Teplitz, Austria, the other day, a crowded house rewarded the announcement of a music hall manager that "an unusual sensation would form the main attraction of the evening performance." At eleven o'clock he walked on and said; "Ladies and gentlemen, I am now about to give you the promised sensation," drew a revolver, shot himself in the head and fell unconscious to the stage. The wound is not considered mortal and he may recover. He told the doctors that, business being bad, that he resolved to kill himself, but that if he got well the act might be a good enough advertisement to restore his hall's fortunes.....Arthur Lloyd, the comedian and vocalist, will celebrate his sixtieth birthday tomorrow. He has been singing in public for forty-five years.....The late Harry Greenbank, whose lyrics were in such demand for musical plays, left an estate valued at £3,439.

OHIO.

Cincinnati.—At last the lid has been pried off and the Summer season has been revealed to the gaze of the clan hungry for amusements. Both Coney Island and Chester Park will open May 28, to remain rivals in the field for public favor until the Fall. There is a whisper heard that the war is nearly over at Ludlow Lagoon, and that an armistice at least will be declared. That Kentucky resort is expected to open some time in June. Last week the story was in circulation that the vaudeville bookings made for the Summer theatre at the Lagoon would be transferred to some other suburban point, but it remains singly to the credit of Dame Rumor, and she is not always reliable.

CHESTER PARK.—Harry Howard's performing ponies, Robetta and Dorretta, the Kleist Brothers, Newhouse, and Woodworth, Julian Rose, Vouletti and Carlos' and the Craig Family are the cards for the variety theatre in the German Theatre, 28.

SUMMER CHAT.—W. F. Fennessy is home on the Kentucky farm, and reports that his season with "A Cheerful Idiot" was the greatest he has enjoyed in four years.....The Newport Players' Club put on "Alabama" at the Auditorium 24.....S. W. Brady is in town.....Heck's Wonder World has already put up the label, "Season opens Sept. 4.".....Charles S. Knight is spending some time here.....Edwin T. Elliotte and Edythe Elliotte have returned home after a successful season on the road.....Eddie Winterburn, treasurer of People's Theatre, was married a few days ago to Lizzie Hoffman, a non-professional..... Willert's Pavilion will open a series of Summer concerts June 6.....The first of the Zoo's musical fetes is booked to take place on the evening of Memorial Day.....The Garrity Sisters are at the Buckeye Theatre.

Cleveland.—All of our Summer resorts, with the exception of the Garden Theatre, are now open and waiting for the long expected warm spell to set in. The Garden Theatre will be the last to open—the opening date being set for June 12. Many changes have been made to beautify this resort, among which may be noted a large and imposing fence with turrets and towers enclosing the grounds and theatre. The old entrance and box office have been replaced by an entire new and beautiful structure. A new feature is a covered way, reaching from the entrance to the auditorium of the theatre proper. Another improvement will be the removal of the canvas curtains formerly used as a protection against bad weather, these being replaced by sliding glass frames, with which the entire theatre will be enclosed.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Week of May 22 was certainly a banner one at this theatre, big crowds being turned away at nearly every performance. This is certainly something remarkable in the theatrical history of Cleveland, but may, in a measure, be accounted for by the extremely good bills of entertainment which Mr. Hennessey is providing for his patrons. Marshall P. Wilder was the particular attraction during the week, and was given quite an enthusiastic reception. The rest of the bill was also very good, and was as follows: The Todd-Judge Family of Acrobats, who performed some remarkable feats; Lillie Western, in musical turn; Harry Edson and his dog, Doc; the Fremonts, in a sketch, and Keno and Welch, black face comedians; Irene Franklin made a favorable impression in her songs and Blanche Seymour completed the bill in a song and dance act. The bill for week of 28 is: Ezra Kendall, Wm. H. Windom and his Blackstone Quartet, the Four Emperors of Music, Mr. and Mrs. Farrel, Adele Purvis Onri, the Randalls, Dawson, Caville and Dawon, and Annie Whitney.

EUCLID BEACH PARK.—On account of considerable rain, the opening day, 27, was more or less spoiled, but indications point to a very prosperous season at this well named "Coney Island of the West." Elaborate preparations had been made to make the first week an auspicious opening for this season. A most excellent bill has been prepared for the opening at the theatre, same being as follows: Alice Raymond, the cornettist; Wilson and Lorain, comedy sketch; Ernie Veronee, singer and dancer; Edna Basset Marshall and street urchin quartet; Snyder and Buckley, musical team, and the Morellos.

CUES.—Forest City Park is doing very nicely, the reproduction of the Battle of Santiago being the special attraction for week of 29..... "The Confederate Spy" was presented by the Ladies' Military Escort Society at the Opera House, 26, 27, a novel feature being that all the characters were assumed by the ladies....."Garcia Moreno" was presented by local talent at the Cleveland Theatre 22-24.

Columbus.—Olentangy Park Theatre opens its season May 28 as a new factor in the amusement world of this city. Money has been spent lavishly, and in equipment, decorations, etc., it surpasses anything in its line in this section of the country. The auditorium has a seating capacity of upwards of 2,000, and is fitted with folding chairs of the latest design. The stage is 60x40, proscenium arch 30x24, height of grooves 60ft. Geo. L. Chennell is manager, and has gathered around him the following assistants: Vern Ramsey, treasurer; A. C. Carson, press agent; A. C. Collins, bookkeeper; Bert Cooms, stage manager; W. J. Vail and W. Richards, advertising agents. Prof. Fred'k Neddermeyer will lead both the band and the orchestra. The park being situated but twenty minutes' ride from the city, with a five cent street car fare and free admission to the grounds, the ultimate success of the enterprise is assured. Popular prices will rule. Following is the opening bill: Robert Downing and company, Will H. Fox, McPhee and Hill, Harry and Eva La Reane, Prof. Abt and the Abt children.

MINERVA PARK CASINO had a good week's business, notwithstanding the extremely cold weather, week ending 27.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE closed its season 27, "A Parisian Romance" proving a splendid card. It is to be regretted that the Valentine stock close season so soon, as the patronage certainly warranted a continuance to a later date.

THE GREAT SOUTHERN THEATRE and High Street Theatre are closed for the season.

Sandusky.—At Nielsen Opera House the season closed May 24, with Al. W. Martin's "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

CEDAR POINT PLEASURE RESORT.—The Summer season will be ushered in May 27, when the following bill will be put on: Carmen Sisters, musical act; Palmer Cox, "Brownie" Band; Ada Rich Collett, prima donna soprano; Joe Conlen, monologuist; Adell Russell, dancer and whistler, and the Saville Sisters. WEST SHOW GROUNDS.—Walter L. Main's Circus came 24, to fine business.

Akron.—Summit Lake Park opened the season May 21, to large business. Many improvements in the theatre have been made. The bill was very pleasing, the work of the Harbecks being especially well liked. LAKESIDE PARK CASINO.—This place will open the season 28. The bill: Harry Edson and his dog, "Doc," Ladazie, Ely and Harvey, Rosaire, Fields and Salina, and Zimmer.

RANDOLPH PARK PAVILION.—J. W. Carner's Stock Co. opened to good business 21.

Toledo.—At the Casino the opening week was all that the management expected in patronage, and the first day exceeded any previous year. Arthur Deming and Will H. Fox were the top liners of a clever list. The Faust Family, Young and Devole, Howard and Bland, Merriel and Newhouse, Iler, Burke and McDonald, Forman and Frazier, and Kolb and Dill open 28, for one week. Bookings for week of June 4: Robt. Downing and Company, McPhee and Hill, Three Goldsmith Sisters, Burton-Runkle Trio, Prof Abt and Family, and the cinematograph.....The People's Theatre will be sold at sheriff's sale June 3.....The cinematograph people have taken some local pictures which will be very interesting, especially the return of the Sixth O. V. I. from the war on May 26, as this regiment went from Toledo. These pictures will be exhibited shortly.

Dayton.—The Meier Family of divers and swimmers were drawing good crowds at Fairview Park week of May 22. The performance at the Pavilion has been up to the standard, and good business was the rule. The bill for week of 28 includes Dick and Alice McAvoy, Ahlgrim Bros., Breton, Runkle Trio, Geo. H. Fielding, juggler, and Mr. and Mrs. William Robyns.....The Grand Opera House, Park and Soldiers' Home Theatres are closed.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.—This week we have the final flicker of the candle before it goes out. The delayed engagement of Olga Nethersole and the Maude Adams production of "Romeo and Juliet" serve to end the season at the only two prominent houses remaining open. There seems to be no reason to doubt that these two attractions will largely stimulate patronage for the time being, and with their end, and the simultaneous closing of the two houses, the theatrical field here will be very limited indeed.

BROAD STREET THEATRE.—The postponed engagement of Olga Nethersole occurs at this house this week, when she is seen in the following repertory: Monday and Tuesday evenings and Saturday matinee, "The Profligate;" Wednesday evening, "Carmen;" Thursday evening, "Camille," and Friday evening, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." This is the first time Olga Nethersole has appeared here in "The Profligate," though the play itself was presented by Marie Burroughs at another local theatre several seasons ago. There was no regular attraction at this house last week, and with the end of the current engagement, which is for one week, the house closes for the Summer.

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE.—Local theatregoers have an opportunity to see the Maude Adams production of "Romeo and Juliet" this week at this house, and that they will avail themselves of this opportunity in large numbers is assured by the big advance sale. Only four performances are given, the first three evenings of the week and the Wednesday matinee. "The Cuckoo" played an engagement last week, with fair returns. There is little to commend in this comedy. It is not clever or amusing and is salacious to the last degree. The current attraction ends the season of the house.

FOREPAUGH'S THEATRE.—For this, the last week of the season at this house, Mrs. Forepaugh tests the versatility of the stock company by presenting three plays. "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is presented for the first two nights and matinees. This is followed by two afternoon and evening performances of "Camille," and the last two matinees and evening performances are given to "Carmen." George Learock, Carrie Radcliffe and the other members of the stock company are thus given plenty of opportunity to add to the favorable impression they have made during the long and prosperous season. The patrons, who crowded the house last week, were well pleased with the performances of "Don Cæsar de Bazan," and with the little one act melodrama, "V. C.," which preceded the main bill. "V. C." was written by Sutton Vane, and this was its first production in this country, though it was produced in 1891 in England. It presents an interesting story in good style.

GIRARD AVENUE THEATRE.—This house is now closed for the Summer. "Carmen" was revived last week and duplicated its former success, the S. R. O. sign being brought into use many times during the week. Many of the present members of the stock company will return next season. George Barbier Edwin Middleton, Gilbert Ely, Emma Maddern, and Alice Pennoyer will return. It has not been definitely decided who the leading lady will be, though it is quite probable that Valerie Bergere will again fill that position. Max Von Mitzel, who was formerly a member of the company, will be next year's juvenile. The past season has been a particularly prosperous one.

STANDARD THEATRE.—The stock company is this week appearing in "The Plunger." The company did satisfactory work in "The Danites" last week, and, considering the warm weather, the attendance was quite good.

KEITH'S.—The advent of Summer weather has not diminished the attendance at this popular house, and the patrons are always sure of excellent entertainment, as witness the following current bill: Arthur Dunn and Clara Belle Jerome, in "The Messenger Boy;" Joe Welch, Pantzer Brothers, Gerald Griffin and company, in "Silence is Golden;" Wartenburg Brothers, Ladell and Francis, Signor Alberti, Hill and Hill, McBride and Goodrich, Baby Lewis, Mardo, Engleton, Anderson and company, Three Constantine Sisters, the biograph and the stereopticon.

AUDITORIUM.—Manager Gilmore's house bill for last week proved a fitting finale for a season that was satisfactory to both management and patrons. A long list of pleasing vaudeville features was presented, which was ended with Fred Macari's clever and interesting troupe of trained animals, and the public patronized in goodly numbers.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—For this week the company presenting the amusement for the patrons is styled the French Folly Company Beauty Show, in which the olio includes May Taylor, Hoyt and Neff, the Davenport Sisters, Billy Williams and Kelly and Dorothy. The Giad Hand Burlesquers was seen in several amusing skits and an attractive olio last week, which were witnessed and enjoyed by well filled houses. The announcement for next week is the Blonde Beauties.

TROCADERO.—The Hot Air Club Burlesque Co. is the offering this week, the programme including the burlesque, "A Hot Time at the Club," and an olio introducing Violet Thorndyke, Mitchell and Cain, Burman and Van, Blakely and Lewis, Leroi and DeVoe, Kine and Gotthold, the Grahams and the Madisons. The Monte Carlo Girls appealed to the patrons with success last week, the performances being attended by well filled houses. The current week ends the regular season.

NINTH AND ARCH MUSEUM.—In the curio hall this week are Dunbar's caprine paradox, the Georgia Minstrels, Prof. Morella and Mons. Javette. The performance in the theatre is headed by Larry Tooley and company, in the comedy, "The Murder at the Old Toll Gate." Following this come Bert Kennedy, Howley and Leslie, Paddy Murphy, Cross and Glee, Blanche Drew, Violet Wynne and the cineograph. The attendance last week continued at a profitable point.

WILLOW GROVE PARK.—This park opened for the Summer season Saturday, May 27, and had a good sized crowd, though the attendance, like that at the other parks opening on the same day, was somewhat diminished by the prediction of showers, which materialized late in the afternoon and evening. The park has a beautiful location among the Chelten Hills, some ten or fifteen miles from the city, reached by the cars of the Union Traction Company, which company manages the park. The usual amusements are in evidence—shoot the chutes, merry go rounds, toboggan, and an excellent bicycle track. On the opening day the Banda Rossa began a seven weeks' engagement, and in the afternoon and evening they discoursed music of the best class in a manner beyond criticism. Too much cannot be said in praise of this organization, which plays as one man under the perfect leadership of Maestro Eugenio Sorrentino, and plays in a truly artistic manner. The auditors were enthusiastic on the opening day, and when the band ended the programme by playing "The Star Spangled Banner," with every player standing, the entire assemblage rose to its feet and gave the Italians an ovation.

WOODSIDE PARK.—A successful opening was accorded this park on Saturday, 27. The park is reached by a beautiful ride through Fairmount Park. Much work has been done in the way of improving the resort since last Summer, and a magnificent new band stand has been added. This band stand was occupied by Innes and his band, who began their engagement on the opening day. The crowds accorded the popular organization and leader (who spent a previous Summer here at another park) a warm welcome, and the afternoon and evening concerts were received with enthusiastic applause. The usual outdoor amusement features afforded the public ample opportunity for whiling away the time.

WASHINGTON PARK.—This park is located on the Jersey shore, a short distance below the city, and is reached by a cool and pleasant boat ride on the Delaware. The opening on Saturday, 27, was attended by a good sized crowd, and all the regular amusement features were liberally patronized. Liberati's Band begins its engagement on Decoration Day.

NOTES.—The retirement from business of Sharpless Brothers, and the consequent vacancy of their property at the corner of Eighth and Chestnut Streets, has revived the rumor of a new theatre here, to be located on that corner. The names of Proctor and Keith were associated with the venture, but George E. Bogle, resident manager of Keith's Theatre, denies that Mr. Keith is contemplating the purchase of any property in this city, and gossip now has it that Proctor is negotiating for the property with the view of erecting a continuous performance house there. In this connection it may be stated that if there is any truth in the report Manager Proctor could not secure a better location anywhere in the entire city.....Prof. George Parry, for several seasons leader of the orchestra at the People's Theatre, and formerly occupying the same position at the Eleventh Street Opera House, died on the 22d of this month, at Siegfried's, a Summer resort near Allentown, Pa., of consumption. He was thirty-two years of age. The remains were buried by the local lodge of the Elks, of which the deceased was formerly a member, in Mt. Moriah Cemetery, on Thursday of last week.....On Saturday of last week Byron C. Harlah, Grace Warren, Jennie Dean, Joseph Herdic, Louisa Smith, Hattie Garrison, Lydian Dean, Robert Lanson, Lillie Dumont, Daisy Dumont, Thomas Garrie and Lillie Taggart, of the Monte Carlo Girls Co., issued an attachment against their manager, James C. Fulton, and garnisheed all money due the company in the hands of Manager Lauman, of the Trocadero Theatre. The plaintiffs allege that they are not only employes of the company, but have an interest in the profits in conjunction with Fulton. They also allege that when they engaged to play at the Trocadero there was a verbal agreement with their manager that they should share in the profits; but that Fulton now does not propose to live up to this agreement, and has notified them that they will be paid their salaries and nothing more. The suit instituted is made returnable on the first Monday in June.....Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show exhibits all this week at Twenty-ninth and Columbia Avenue, where, no doubt, big crowds will be attracted to see the many interesting features. The week opened with a big parade on Monday morning.

Harrisburg.—Business last week showed a change for the better, and the season will close well.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The Clair Patee-Russell Co. closed the week and their season May 27, to good business. The company was one of the best that has been here this season. The audiences were made up of a better class of theatregoers than usually attend popular price performances. The Velper Stock Co. will open a week's engagement 29. The aggregation includes a number of Harrisburg favorites, and big business is anticipated. It will be the closing week at the Opera House.

PAXTANG PARK.—The opening of this popular Summer resort, 25, was auspicuous. Big crowds attended the concerts by the Steelton Band daily. For week of 29 the Boston Ladies' Military Band will be the attraction.

MIXED DRINKS.—Manager Nathan Appell returned home 26, from Sandusky, O.....The King Dramatic Co. will close at Wooster, Mass., June 3. The scenery will be shipped to this city for overhauling.....General Agent Charles Carpentar, of the Opera House, after the completion of his arduous duties will take a brief vacation. His success this season has eclipsed all previous records in the history of the house. Because of the elaborate preparations for next season he will not be able to enjoy a long rest. Edgar Carpentar, a brother, who has been assisting him, will leave June 15, to take charge of his duties on the steamer Republic, running between New York City and Long Branch. .....The Welsh Brothers' Circus will be here week of May 29. Big business is looked for. With this aggregation is W. Morrow Tait, of this city, with the business end of the show, and H. H. Whittier, formerly with the Second Tennessee Regiment Band, is one of the solo instrumentalists with the Welsh Brothers' Band. .....A warm welcome is awaiting Gilbertie Learock, a prime favorite, who is with the Velper Stock Co. Harry Lester is also with this organization.....Dr. Blue Mountain Joe reports big business at Middletown.....The Harris "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co., under tents, at Middletown, 24, drew a big crowd in the evening. Only one performance was given because of the delay in arrival..... Harry Dare's Minstrel Aggregation left 28, for Carlisle, where they will open the season at the Park at that place 29.....Mrs. M. C. Allen, clarionet soloist with the ladies' orchestra with the Clair Patee-Russell Co., will ride to her home in Worcester, Mass., by wheel.....With the exception of the ladies' orchestra, the members of the Clair Patee-Russell Co. will go to New York. The orchestra, under the management of Clair Patee, will go to Tumbling Run Park, near Pottsville, for the Summer. The company, which has had a most successful season of thirty-seven weeks, will open in August, at Pottsville. Mrs. C. W. Russell, of this company, who has been very ill, is convalescent. Her roles were well handled by May McAbe. The Clees (Gerald and Geraldine), who were obliged to close the season at Scranton because of the serious illness of the mother of the latter, will rejoin the orchestra at Pottsville. In the absence of Miss Jewell, leader of the orchestra, Georgia Robertson has been in charge and proved herself a most capable leader. The orchestra is to be greatly strengthened at Pottsville.

Read'ng.—The season for amusements at our local play houses has been closed for some time, with the exception of the Academy of Music, which was open May 30 for "'Way Down East."

In the company are: Bryant and Saville, musical comedians; Taylor Williams, vocalist; Collins and Collins, comedians; Lewis Franklin, tenor singer; Jas. Dunn, mimic. Performances will be given every afternoon and evening, with concerts on Sundays.

Mr. Leyburne was leading man in the Meyers-Leyburne combination.....The small boy was in his glory May 26, on the occasion of the visit of Buffalo Bill and his Wild West show. It is estimated that fully 20,000 people witnessed the performance. The Battle of San Juan was the crowning feature. Col. Cody was suffering from sore eyes and could do but little shooting. On the evening of 25 his attendant, by mistake, put ammonia into the right eye, instead of a lotion. Dr. W. J. Hain, of this city, was called and treated the eye six times on Friday, and also performed a slight operation on the lid of the left eye.

ALVIN THEATRE.—"The Chimes of Normandy" for the first half of the current week, and "Martha" for the latter half are the announcements for the Jaxon Opera Co. The attendance thus far has surpassed the expectations of the management, and the season bids fair to be prolonged far into the Summer.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—This being the last week of the season, and the one in which good bye must be said to the many favorites of the dramatic stock company, it is not inappropriately styled a week of farewells and flowers. Martha Morton's play, "Geoffry Middleton, Gentleman," has been selected for the bill. In compliance with the request from their many admirers to set apart a night for a special farewell to each member of the company, Manager Davis has done so, and there will be a "Jim Wilson night," a "Lizzie Hudson Collier night," etc. "A Fair Rebel" drew large houses last week.

They gave the finest show we have ever had the pleasure to witness. They play the Colorado circuit and go West.

NEW YORK CITY.

Review and Comment.—The season is gradually waning here, but, owing to the continued cool weather, there is still sufficient entertainment offered to meet the demand. About half a score of houses have closed, but, at the time of writing, most of the Broadway houses are still open, although a few hot nights will soon make them dark. The week that has just closed offered but little novelty, but was by no means devoid of interest. Its most important event was the first presentation in this city of Pinero's play, "The Profligate," for which we are indebted to Miss Nethersole, who appeared on this occasion in the role which she created in London, Eng., ten years ago, when the play had its first production. As was stated in our last issue, Marie Burroughs was the first to present the play in this country, but she did not bring it to the metropolis. The American rights to the play are claimed by Daniel Frohman, and, with his permission, one act of it was presented here during the current season by pupils of a dramatic academy. The theme of the work is somewhat unpleasant, and although the play shows the impress of Mr. Pinero's genius, it does not rank among his best works. His admirers, however, have much reason to claim for him pre-eminence among English playwrights, and while he is not always to be commended for the selection of his themes, all of his works are in some way worthy of serious consideration and of praise.....Unfortunately another comparative novelty offered last week proved in every way unworthy, and received an almost unanimous verdict to that effect. This was "My Cousin," which was presented here by Mlle. Pilar-Morin, and which, under the title of "Ma Cousine," had been done here in the original French by Mme. Rejane. The thoroughly artistic work done by Mlle. Pilar-Morin in pantomime upon the occasion of her first appearance in this city won for her the instant appreciation and high esteem of all lovers of art, and it is with genuine regret that we view her subsequent career, in which she elected to appear in an immodest pantomime exhibition, and finally in a coarse play, in which she assumed a speaking role with disappointing results. Mlle. Pilar-Morin's career has fallen far short of the promise of its dawn, but it is only fair that judgment against her should be suspended while we consider the cause of her fault, and whether or not she is alone responsible for her course. In "L'Enfant Prodigue" she gave us a performance characterized by rare artistic finish. The play was unique, for up to the time of its production here we knew nothing of pantomime used as the sole means of interpreting serious drama. Our previous knowledge of the art had been confined to its use in comedy or farce, and its possibilities were not even dreamed of. Hence the work of Mlle. Pilar-Morin was a delightful revelation, but, unfortunately, only to a few. That intelligent and cultured few hailed her advent with delight, and found in her performance a fullness of enjoyment rarely derived from the conventional methods of the dramatic stage. To the public at large, however, her exquisite art was but foolishness, and the popular verdict concerning it was shown in the lightness of the box office receipts. The actress had come to this land seeking for a new home, where the well known liberality of the people might enable her not only to make a living, but provision for the rainy days to come. She brought and gave to us the best she had, but discovered, with equal surprise and dismay, that her offering lacked appreciation, and that penury and want were likely to be her portion instead of the fame and abundance she had confidently expected. She had appealed to the aesthetic sense of the community, and the response came not; therefore, upon closer acquaintance she discovered the potency of other appeals, and chose to lower her standard of endeavor and live, rather than uphold it and starve. In view of these facts it is pertinent to inquire upon whom the burden of the blame should fall, upon the actress or the public, upon her who was ambitious to lift others to her level, or upon those who insisted she should come down to theirs. We do not hold the actress entirely blameless, but the public has certainly helped her to a good defense.....It is worthy of note that upon the evening of May 24, the eightieth anniversary of the birthday of Queen Victoria, the orchestras in several of our local theatres played "God Save the Queen," and the audiences arose, and remained standing till its finish.....The continued attractions for the week ending May 27 were: "Zaza" at the GARRICK, "The Man in the Moon" at the NEW YORK, "Erminie" at the CASINO, "The King of the Opium Ring" at the ACADEMY OF MUSIC, "The Great Ruby" at DALY'S, "A Reign of Error" at the VICTORIA, De Wolf Hopper at the FIFTH AVENUE, "Shenandoah" at the BROADWAY, "An Arabian Girl and Forty Thieves" at the HERALD SQUARE, "We-Uns of Tennessee" at the AMERICAN, and "Helter Skelter" at WEBER & FIELDS', the five last named having closed upon that date.....The one week stands closing May 27 were: "Gettysburg" at the STAR, Stuart Robson, in "The Meddler," at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE; Olga Nethersole at the HARLEM OPERA HOUSE, and "Too Much Johnson" at the COLUMBUS. .....Variety entertainment was furnished at TONY PASTOR'S, PROCTOR'S, the UNION SQUARE, the PLEASURE PALACE, KOSTER & BIAL'S, the LONDON, the OLYMPIC, HURTIG & SEAMON'S, and MINER'S BOWERY and EIGHTH AVENUE....."His Excellency the Governor" moved from the LYCEUM THEATRE to the EMPIRE THEATRE, where it was on view May 22.

THE UNITED STATES MORTGAGE AND TRUST CO. filed a judgment for $34,567 in this city May 26 on a suit brought Feb. 10 last against Koster, Bial & Co. The claim is for instalments due on a loan of $225,000 made to Koster, Bial & Co. on Aug. 26, 1895, at the time the interest of Oscar Hammerstein was purchased, secured by a mortgage on the leasehold property on which the music hall stands. The loan was to mature on Aug. 28, 1898, and monthly payments were to be made on the principal, interest, etc., of $4,168 each. The suit is for the monthly instalments from July 28, 1898, to Jan. 28, 1899, which, it was alleged, had not been paid. The summons in the suit was served on President John Koster on Feb. 14. Judgments aggregating $5,300 have recently been entered against Koster, Bial & Co.

JUSTICE O'GORMAN, in the Tenth Municipal Court, on May 24 handed down a decision in favor of Anna M. Davidson against the Hammerstein Amusement Company, requiring the company to vacate the premises at Nos. 207, 209 and 211 West Forty-second Street, adjoining the Victoria Theatre. Mrs. Davidson declared that the Hammerstein Company had squatted upon part of the premises, a lease upon which George M. Jansen says he holds.

FRANCIS WILSON will open the Knickerbocker Theatre Sept. 11, with a new opera, libretto by Harry B. Smith and music by Victor Herbert, the name of which is not announced. Mr. Herbert will remain in New York during the entire Summer in order to complete the opera, and the others which he is composing for Alice Nielsen and Frank Daniels.

JEFFERSON DE ANGELIS will appear in the title role of "The Jolly Musketeer," which is to follow the run of "Erminie" at the Casino.

ED. F. RUSH has taken offices in with Mark & Reich.

Star Theatre.—Paul Gilmore's production of "The Musketeers," a five act version, by Paul Kester, of Dumas' "The Three Guardsmen," was offered on May 29, for the first time in this city. Although this season has been most prolific in its dramatizations of Dumas' famous novel of thrills and dramatic interest, the public's desire to witness the various plays which have come from this source seems to have in no wise abated as yet, and people flocked to this down town house in great numbers on the opening night. That the production was immensely enjoyed by the majority of those present was clearly apparent, and the star and his assistants surely had considerable stimulus given to their acting by the generous applause accorded them. Paul Gilmore was the D'Artagnan, and that celebrated character of impetuosity and daring had an entertaining interpretation at his hands. He thoroughly looked the part of the stripling Musketeer, and he acted intelligently and with satisfactory effect. He seemed fully at his ease, his movements and gestures were graceful, his dueling and quarreling episodes were carried with convincing fire, and his love making and the lighter portions of his work were deftly handled. This romantic role is beyond question a triumph for him. As Anne of Austria Ione Matthews easily led the feminines of the cast in point of merit. There was in her work a fervor that carried conviction with it, and she depicted the emotions of the anxious Queen well. Mary McKenzie made a sweet and lovable Constance, and Florence Kahn played Milady with good results. The Three Musketeers were capably acted by Brinsley Shaw, J. A. Nunn and F. H. Livingston. The others of the cast were good. The cast: Louis, Macey Harlam; Cardinal Richelieu, W. V. Ranous; Rochefort, Stanley Jessup; George Villiers, A. R. Whitelock; D'Artaguan, Paul Gilmore; Athos, Brinsley Shaw; Porthos, J. A. Nunn; Aramis, F. H. Livingston; Captain De Treville, H. Tony Pastor's Theatre.—Manager Pastor continues to display commendable enterprise in the selection of the entertainers introduced at his popular non-stopping vaudeville resort, and business continues at an encouraging and gratifying standard. The bill for the week of May 29–June 3 will especially commend itself to lovers of melodious vocalisms, lively comedy and dancing of all varieties, as there is hardly an act in the list which does not present some of these features, and in a few instances all are happily combined. Topping the bill, the four Cohans scored their accustomed hit, afternoon and night, Monday, with presentations of Geo. M. Cohan's liveliest skit, "Running for Office." Not a dull moment ensues during its production, and the house was in uproars most of the time. Sadie Cushman and Herbert Holcomb scored one of their usual hits in the introduction of their bright sketch, "A Business Transaction." Miss Cushman was resplendent in appropriate costumes, and the vocal efforts of both participants in the act won merited approbation. Their bit was deservedly pronounced. Saxon and Brooks offered an operatic comedy sketch, which won for them a recognition. Johnson and Deane exemplified their abilities of their race in their clever comedy sketch, and won a hit thereby. The Brownings were received as old favorites, and repeated the bit scored during their several previous visits. Dot and Ford West also repeated past successes with their clever act, and the bill was completed by Harry and Sadie Fields, whose act scored heavily for them; Gilbert Girard, Kitty Bingham, Sam and Josie Fowler, and Bingham, ventriloquist. To review the show without recording Tony Pastor's achievements in the line of singing comic ditties would make the work incomplete. He was a great favorite, of course.

Pleasure Palace.—Manager Proctor's uptown continuous vaudeville home held large crowds all day Monday, May 29, to welcome a grand holiday week bill headed by Cissie Loftus, who presented her impersonations of stage favorites, including several new imitations, seen for the first time in this city. Miss Loftus made a pronounced success. Another novelty at this house was Carl Nillson's aerial ballet, the act winning hearty applause, which was well merited. The Dresden Trio, in the one act operetta, "The Queen's Fan," scored heavily. The Polly Trio, Ward, Bradburn and Murphy, were favorites in a pleasing comedy sketch. The Seven Reed Birds repeated their success of former occasions in their bright combination of songs and dances. Mr. and Mrs. Wilczek charmed with their masterly performances on the violin and piano. Among the other standard attractions on the bill, all of whom were successful in pleasing, were Geo. C. Davis, in an original monologue; Leavitt and Nevello, jugglers and equilibrists; Dryden and Leslie, in the comic skit, "Here's Your Hat;" Delaphone, entertaining mimic; Lawrence Crane, the Celtic fantasist; Adelina Roattino, operatic soprano, and Tobey's art views. Sunday's concert introduced Foreman and West, Brannan and Collins, Marie Heath, Raymon Moore, Morrell and Evans, and many others attracting well filled houses afternoon and evening. Next week Jos. Hart and Carrie De Mar, and Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew are among the attractions billed.

Koster & Bial's.—A good bill was presented night of May 29, for week, and it was well appreciated by a good sized gathering. The Griffiths Brothers, with their Blondin donkey, were continued favorites. Monroe and Mack, in their always funny black face act, were good mirth provokers. Harry Gilfoil, in his imitations, found great favor. Stinson and Merton, in their travesty sketch, were well up among the popular numbers of the bill. Others were: Josie De Witt, violiniste; Mme. Alniotis, strong woman; the Pantzer Trio of contortionists; Prof. Leonidas' troupe of trained cats and dogs; Louise Gunning in Scotch ballads; Frederick Clarenze's Quintet, Froebel and Ruge, the Hale Sisters, Nellie Burt and Hanson and Nelson. The Sunday concert, 28, was well attended.

Huber's Palace Museum.—Business here continues at top notch, the excellent programme furnished by Manager Anderson keeping crowds interested at all shows. On Monday, May 29, the change in bill brought Soubahdah, a man impervious to pain as the curio hall feature. Other attractions in that department for the current week are: Uno, snake enchantress; May Bonnie, club swinger; the Meezas, contortionists; Wing Tu, opium joint, and Ada Briggs, a woman of averdupois. The stage programme introduces Ada Jones, illustrated songs; Fred Roberts, Clayton and Dashon, Clifford and Brown, Prouty and Rodriguez, Cline and Clifton, Burke and Gray, Mlle Beatrice, Chas. Chrystie, Minnie Ardel and others.

London Theatre.—The regular season closed May 27. Thos. H. Ward is putting on the show this week for a supplementary term, under the title of the "Queens of the Tenderloin." The olio includes the Keegans, Forces and Quinn, Jack Welch, Gertie Collins, Halliday and Ward, Revere Sisters, Harry Walters, Murray and Alden, and Post and Rowe. "A Night in the Tenderloin" concludes the show in approved burlesque fashion.

Miner's Bowery Theatre.—The London Belles is filling in the week and the programme gave entire satisfaction at the opening performances, May 29. "Widow Wynne's Reception," with Rose Sydell in the title role, Hilton, Hanson and Drew, Reiger and Chatham, Richmond and Clements, Francis J. Bryant, the Weston Sisters, and "Behind the Scenes" made up the bill. Next week, Dick Ward and a vaudeville and burlesque company.

Empire Theatre.—"His Excellency the Governor" entered on May 29 upon the second week of its run at this house. It has proven to be one of the most enjoyable plays of the season, and had it been presented earlier it would undoubtedly have secured a lengthy run. J. H. Gilmour replaced Guy Standing 29.

Casino.—"Erminie" started on May 29 upon the third and last week of its engagement. It will be followed June 5 by the Jefferson de Angelis Comic Opera Company, in "The Jolly Musketeer."

Academy of Music.—"The King of the Opium Ring" entered on May 29 upon the fourth and final week of its engagement.

Keith's Union Square Theatre.—Ten numbers, which might properly be classed as feature acts in any bill, make a strong showing for this house week of May 29, and, proving that good shows attract merited attention, it can be recorded that the phenomenally big business noted here for the past few weeks continued unabated at both performances on Monday. With the extra rush attendant upon the Tuesday holiday, the week gives promise of rounding out a new record in the way of box office results. Ching Ling Foo continued into his fifth week, interest in his remarkable feats of legerdemain being unabated. Carou and Herbert's clever comic acrobatic act also held over for a second week, continuing to be uproariously appreciated, but otherwise the bill was entirely changed, save the perpetuation of the every popular biograph, from which animated views of the Brooklyn Handicap were projected with excellent effect. Felix Morris and supporting company returned for presentation of "The Vagabond," and repeated former successes, and Albert L. Guille's operatic solos brought him into renewed favor. One of the pronounced hits of the show was scored by Edmund Hayes and Emily Lytton, a talented pair, who never fail of appreciation at the hands of these audiences. "A Wise Guy" is still a sidesplitting interlude, acted to the limit of its possibilities. McIntyre and Heath furnish their accustomed cyclone of fun in "A Georgia Minstrel," keeping the audience convulsed with laughter throughout their time upon the stage. Their bit was immense. The return to local fields of clever Florrie West was marked by a repeated and merited hit by that "comedy brilliant." Her songs are excellent, and her methods and magnetism were appreciated. Fisher and Carroll gave their inimitably comic Irish conversation, to pleased listners, and the Three Polos gained approval for their remarkable high bar performance. Aside from the above mentioned, the bill was given further impetus in the line of excellent entertainment through specialties furnished by the Raymond Musical Trio, Giguere and Boyer, in a new act; Hackett and Davis, Maude Amber, Marsh and Sartello, and the Military Trio.

Proctor's Theatre.—Joseph Hart and Carrie De Mar top this week's bill at this house, and in their favorite sketch, "Dr. Chauncey's Visit," met with their usual good success at the opening performance, May 29, before an audience that filled the house. Crowding pretty hard for first honors was Flo Irwin, who, with the assistance of Walter Hawley, presented a pleasing comedy sketch, and the generous applause indulged in by the audience was evidence of their appreciation. Wright Huntington and company presented a sketch, entitled "A Stolen Kiss," and came in for a good share of approval. Joe Flynn, with his budget of parody songs, seemed to give the utmost satisfaction. The Hayes and Bandy Trio won new friends by their exceptionally clever dancing turn. Stuart, who styles himself the "Male Patti," appeared and was well received. Eva Mudge, sang herself into favor, and Morrell and Evans, in a singing and dancing act, were well liked. Derenda and Breen, in their clever club juggling act, scored well. Others were: Lew Wells, musical comedian; Kessler and Carrick, illustrated songs; the Guises, in a black face act, the bill rounding up with Tobey's Art Views. The Sunday concert bill, 28, included: Henry Lee, Joe Welch, E. J. Heron and co., Joe Flynn, Williams and Adams, Cyr and Hill, Steve Jennings and Carrie Alto, Wilson and Leicester, Révere and Fields, Lawrence Crane, Crane Bros., Dryden and Leslie, Anna Wilmuth Curran, and Winstanley and Sullivan.

After the performance a dinner was served to members of the company. Speeches were made by Peter F. Dailey, John T. Kelly, Charles Ross, Leo C. Teller, Joseph Weber and Lou Fields.

THE CENTRAL OPERA HOUSE, at Sixty-seventh Street and Third Avenue, which has been kept open as an assembly hall for the last six years by Jacob Ruppert, the brewer, will be closed permanently on June 1. Mr. Ruppert says that the building is too large, and that he has given up all hope of its ever becoming a paying investment as an assembly hall.

THE AERIAL MAGNOLIA GROVE is the new name bestowed on the roof garden of the New York Theatre, which is scheduled for opening Monday night, June 12. The name, Manager Lederer says, is derived from the abundance of magnolia trees transplanted from the South. The Casino roof garden will open Saturday night, June 10.

Brooklyn.—From present indications it looks as if the Castle Square Opera Co. might lengthen its stay at the Montauk Theatre into the hot days of July or August and still meet with success. This is its fourth week here and its popularity is on the increase. "Il Trovatore" is the selection for the current week. A large audience was present opening night, May 29, when an excellent performance was given. Joseph F. Sheehan, who sang Manrico, won many favors. He was in fine voice and entered into his work with considerable zeal and earnestness. Adelaide Norwood, as Leonora, was earnest, intelligent and painstaking, and won honors for her vocal skill. The chorus was exceedingly good and merited the applause it received. Next week, "Carmen."

STAR.—Sam A. Scribner's Gay Morning Glories is in full bloom here this week, and made a pretty and attractive picture for the two large audiences present 29. It is a return engagement of the company, which has been strengthened since its last appearance in this borough. In the olio part of the programme are Webb and Hasson, acrobats; McCabe and Sabine, two clever comedians, who, assisted by Jeannette Courtney, presented a new sketch called "The Irish Contractors and the Typewriter." Wills and Brown, in a comedy skit; McCloud and Melville, in a musical act; Preston and Belmayne, in illustrated songs; Madeline Franks, who sings some good songs, and Grant and Grant, a clever colored team, in a new specialty. The entertainment closes with a musical burletta, entitled "The Red Birds at the Seashore," which serves to introduce the whole company to good advantage. The piece is handsomely mounted and has some fine scenic effects.

The house closes its season June 1 with a testimonial to Bert Johnson, advertising agent; Joseph A. Pile, treasurer, and Tony Turner, stage manager.

NOTES.—Maude Adams appeared as Juliet at the Columbia Theatre in three performances given 26, 27. The house was packed even to the standing room at each performance. SUBURBAN.—The vaudeville bill included the Risley Family, Reno and Richards, Julien Rose, Harry Leighton, Gordon and Gilmore, Plantation Four, and the Suburban Comedy Co., headed by Fred Warren, in a sketch. This week the bill is changed to give a minstrel first part, with Carroll Johnson in the lead. Attendance was rather slim.

NEWS.—The big benefit, 27, at the Columbia, given to Managers Chas. P. Salisbury and Frank Tate, was a decided success. The bill was entirely of volunteers, and included about fifty people..... The long expected divorce suit between Minnie Seligman (Mrs. Cutting) and her husband, Robt. L. Cutting, has been filed in New York City. Miss Seligman was leading lady here in the Imperial Stock Co., and later in the Grand Stock Co., last season, and it was rumored several times that proceedings would be instituted. They have each filed charges alleging infidelity, if report is true..... The question of the management of the Grand for next season is undecided, newspaper reports to the contrary notwithstanding. The lease is held by the Tri-State, who are evidently ready to dispose of it. It has been rumored that the Imperial, hitherto stock, would play combinations next season, leaving the stock field free to the Grand. If this is carried out the house should make good money. Manager Gumpertz, of the Imperial, undoubtedly wants to, and if he gets it will probably follow the above policy. If it fails to another manager, and the Imperial plays stock, another profitless season is due for each house. Frank Tate, of the Columbia, is understood to be after it, and rumor reports that Col. Hopkins has his eye on his old stamping ground, but nothing is determined.

Kansas City.—This week will see the finish of the local houses. The vaudeville season at Fairmont Park will be opened June 4 by the Orpheum management, and that will be our only Summer announcement.

COATES' OPERA HOUSE.—Jay Strawn de Silva, treasurer, benefited May 22. Mr. Silva gave Shakespearean readings and a one act sketch. The Apollo Club, a local musical organization, will give their concert 29, instead of 25, as formerly announced.

ORPHEUM.—Sunday business was big, as usual, last week, and the attendance continued fair throughout the rest of the week. The bill was: Ruf and Retto, in an eccentric grotesque comedy act; Lizzie and Vinie Daly, in expert dancing. They do one of the most finished terpischorean acts we have seen in quite a while. Bronson and Lewis, in a sketch, called "A Midnight Call;" the Nichols Sisters, in their good old familiar black face singing turn; Taciano, a German female impersonator, who was really clever in his femininity; Wm. M. Cressy and Blanche Dayne, in "Grasping an Opportunity," one of the most delightful sketches ever put on the Orpheum stage. The sketch is described as a New Hampshire incident, and it was true to nature in every particular. Special scenery and "props" are used, and the artistic character work of both the people make the sketch thoroughly enjoyable. The Lamonts, equilibrists and acrobats, had a good closing act and one that held the audiences. This week will be the finish of the season at this house, and the people who have the honor of closing a very successful season will be Favor and Sinclair, Four O'Learys, F. W. Dale, Gardner and Gilmore, Cooke and Clinton, Edith Craske, Lopez Haskell, Eva Tonquay, and Reno and Richards.

AUDITORIUM.—In spite of the lateness of the season business still keeps up and packed houses continuing to be the rule. On last Thursday evening the State Bankers, who were in convention here, took 400 seats. This week will be the final one at this house. "The Wife" will be put on and a great production is promised. The company will lay off for a month and then open in Omaha for a midsummer season, commencing the first week in July, returning here in September for the regular season. Last week "The Arabian Nights" was played, and it went with a rush. It was the first comedy the company had put on in many weeks, and it gave the members a chance to show their versatility, and they were not found wanting. Jane Kennark, Inez Macauley, Jennie Dunn, Willis Granger, James Fulton and Hal Davis all deserve mention. The show was preceded by a new curtain raiser, entitled "Too Late," written by Robt. W. Clarke, a local newspaper man. It proved to be an unqualified success. It is very sombre in thought and action, and it had a severe test when it received its premier before a Sunday matinee audience, but it proved itself and made good. After the fall of the curtain their was a moment's silence, and then the applause was deafening. There were loud cries for the author, but Mr. Clarke did not show himself. It was cleverly played by Willis Granger, Wilson Enos, Harry C. Long and Eleanor Franklin, who made her first appearance with the company.

CLIPPERINGS.—W. Meyerfeld, president of the Orpheum circuit, and Col. Beck, the Eastern representative of the company, were in the city last week in consultation with Manager Lehman in regard to the opening of their vaudeville season at Fairmount Park, June 4.....Ernest Hogan, the negro song writer, arrived here last week and joined forces with M. C. Smith and his Pickaninny Band of twenty-five negro boys, all under eighteen years of age. They are under the management of W. B. Curtis, and will be known as the Afro-American Minstrels. They left Kansas City 26, for Vancouver, where they sail, June 1, for Australia. The tour includes a six weeks' engagement in Sidney, then to Melbourne, and through to China and Japan. The company goes to Paris during the Exposition, and concludes with an eight weeks' stay in London. It will be gone twenty-nine months. .....Sam Benjamin, chief usher at the Orpheum, and Gertrude Snelling, were married here 24..... James Fulton, of the Woodward stock Co., will produce, for the first time, his four act melodrama, entitled "The Man Behind the Gun," at the Auditorium about June 14. The production will be for the purpose of raising funds to entertain Funston and his staff when they arrive here.....Sharks and Sylvan have just returned from playing the Texas circuit and are laying off here this week. They appear at Brown's Pavilion, at Joplin, Mo., 28..... Charles Marsh, the trick cyclist, is in the city this week building his structure for his opening at Fairmount Park June 4.....The Tuxedo Stock Co., under the management of R. B. Burgess, has been playing the suburban towns with "My Uncle from India."..... Specialties are introduced between acts by Burgess and Broughal.....Manager Hudson, of the Coates, is in New York.....Local talent will put on "The Woodman's Oath" at the Gillis' Opera House, the week of June 4.....The annual National Convention of Modern Woodmen will be held here that week.....Doherty's Equine, Canine and Feline Paradax opens here May 27, instead of Kansas City, Kas., as previously reported.

Springfield.—At the Baldwin Theatre the Elks Minstrels (home talent) had crowded house May 22. The Andrews Opera Co., in "Martha," "Girofle-Girofla" and "The Pirates of Penzance," gave excellent performances, to good business, 23, 24. No further attractions are booked for this house.

ZOO PARK.—Capt. Bob Cook's "Battle of San Diego" continues to draw large crowds. Next attractions Prof. Shores in high diving and balloon ascension 28.

ILLINOIS.

Chicago.—Summer comes apace. Several steps toward the inauguration of the warm weather season are taken this week. The Columbia closes for the Summer, Alice Nielsen having completed her engagement in "The Fortune Teller." She did a splendid business during the last week of her stay, and Manager Will J. Davis says that the entire season has been the best the house has had since World's Fair year. The Summer gardens are now nearly all in full sway. The Masonic Temple Roof Garden has been running a couple of weeks. The new Sans Souci Park, the Chutes and Ferris Wheel, and the Bismarck and Thielman's Gardens are open this week; to remain so during the hot season. Business has been fair at a majority of the houses. The new attraction this week is "The Club's Baby," given its first American production by Jacob Litt, at McVicker's. Hopkins' stock puts on "The Pauper Millionaire," the Dearborn gives "The Charity Ball," and "In Old Virginia" comes to the Bijou.

MCVICKER'S.—The first American production of "The Club's Baby" was made Sunday. The farce, which is the work of Lawrence Sterner and Edward G. Knobiauch, was imported from England by Manager Jacob Litt. It was produced at the Avenue Theatre, London, a year ago. The plot hinges on the finding of a baby on the doorstep of the "Cork Screw Club," its adoption by that organization, and the suspicions that are aroused as to its parentage. R. A. Roberts, who sinzed "Shenandoah" and "Sporting Life" for Mr. Litt, is in charge of the new production. The cast is as follows: Jeremiah Larkins, Harry Brown; John Orgood, Arthur Forrest; Arthur Chamberlain, Max Figman; Bertie Law, Percy Brooke; Major Flunkett, Clayton E. Waite; Mr. Small, W. H. Pascoe; Hon. Cecil Idleby, R. A. Roberts; M. Gaie, A. Law Gisiko; Mr. Barker, Geo. Honey; Mr. Rogers, Eugene Sanger; Mr. Fox, Douglas Wood; Mr. Watson, Douglas Oliver; Mr. Humphreys, M. Fitz Roy; Mr. Blackmore, L. Ellesley Winn; William, W. P. Sprague; Boy, Bob Albart; Inspector Ward, J. W. Cope; Edith Orgood, Ethel Knight Mollison; Florry Larkins, Hope Ross; Mrs. Law, Isabelle Urquhart; Emma Green, Mamie Dupont; Kate, Ada Craven. The piece will be put on for as long a run as it will stand. West's Minstrels have wound up their engagement and their season. The last week's business was not all it might have been.

GRAND.—"A Runaway Girl" begins its second week. The first has been one of satisfactory business and popular approval. The spectacular and musical features have caught the public fancy, helped out by the comic work of James Powers, Harold Vizard, Frank Ceili, Tom Hadaway, the songs of Marie Cahill, Ethel Jackson, Virginia Earl and Cyril Scott, and, in fact, by the ensemble. The musical comedy will remain until June 12, when Fred R. Hamlin and Kirke La Shelle will put on their production of Augustus Thomas' "Arizona."

POWERS'.—The Lyceum Theatre Company keeps "John Ingerfield" the first part of the week and then goes back to 'Treiawny of the 'Wells'" for the rest of the engagement, which ends Saturday evening. The former play picked up and did quite a business during the week, more than "Treiawny," in spite of the fact that it is a quiet and intellectual rather than a dramatic play. Following this engagement Maude Adams will arrive June 5, to appear for one week, in "Romeo and Juliet," with William Faversham as Romeo and James K. Hackett as Mercutio. The advance sale leaves no doubt that she will do a tremendous business.

STUDEBAKER.—"The Bohemian Girl," last week's offering of the Castle Square Opera Company, made a new record for business at this house. The house could almost have been sold out twice over at nearly every performance. This success decided the management to retain the opera another week, deferring until next week the production of "Pinafore" and "Cavaleria Rusticana."

DEARBORN.—The stock puts on another play this week which has been weighed and found not wanting—"The Charity Ball." The piece is so well balanced that it is fitted for an all around stock organization like this one, over which Manager James Jay Brady presides. "The Mysterious Mr. Bugle" was well put on last week, and the public appreciated it in its attendance and enthusiasm.

GREAT NORTHERN.—The Ward & Vokes Company is still dishing up travesty, which does not seem to pall on the popular taste. "The Floor Walker," "The Three Must Get There's" and "Sponging Life" are the three burlesques, which enter upon their third week. In preparation is a take off on the Baxter sensational investigating committee, which is looking for municipal corruption in Chicago. It is called the "Back Stair Investigation."

HOPKINS'.—An English melodrama is offered by Col. Hopkins this week. It is "The Pauper Millionaire," and additions to the stock have been made for its production. Charles C. Burnham takes the title role. The biograph is brought back as an attraction, and the vaudeville bill includes John T. Tierney, Jessica Duncan and Signor Ernl.

BIJOU.—Hal Reid's new play, "In Old Virginia," with the author in the leading role, is the attraction for the week. Bertha Belle Westbrook leads the support. St. George Hussey, in "Mrs. B. O'Shaughnessy, Washiady," drew well last week.

MASONIC TEMPLE ROOF GARDEN.—Manager J. J. Murdoch is getting down to business, and getting business. Laura Burt is a feature this week, being introduced to Chicago in vaudeville. She sings songs interspersed with talk. Minnie Palmer appears in a different sketch, and then there are Goldin, Trovollo, Martinet and Sutherland, the Whiting Sisters, La Petite Esmeralda, and Stover's electro scenic topics.

CHICAGO OPERA HOUSE.—"Ned" Harrigan, who has entertained a generation of playgoers and won their hearts, is the top liner this week, putting on a sketch, a condensation of "Old Lavender." Chas. A. Gardner is another old favorite. He comes with new songs. The rest of the bill is made up of Lizzie and Vinie Daly, Florence Bindley, Lawler and Perry, Fred Niblo, Murphy and Hall, Antonio Arcaro, Three Franklin Sisters, Laredo and Blakard, Zoe Mathews, Johnson and Stanley, the Mathew Duo, Katherya Pearl, and the Two Clifford's.

OLYMPIC.—Bert Coote and Julia Kingsley head the bill this week, with the sketch, "Supper for Two." Others are: Clarisse Vance, Dolph and Susie Levino, Jessie Merrilees, Harris and Fields, Esmeralda, Maximillian and Shields, La Petite Tina, Lewis and Elliott, Mason and Francis, Gus Cohan, Carsello Sisters, Dallon and Gordon, Frank Comar, and the McClockin Trio.

HAYMARKET.—The Sunday bill at this house was composed of Harris and Walters, Charles A. Gardner, Almont and Dumont, Gertie Cochrane, Lawrence Sisters, Prince Kotaro, Smith and Cross, Lorraine Dreux, Crosby and Clifton, and Jennie Pride.

SAM T. JACK'S.—Karina, the French singer, with her risque songs, comes as an added feature of the bill, the Chow Chow Co. holding over. The Fonti Boni Brothers are also on the list, and the oriental pas ma is dancers appear.

SANS SOUCI PARK.—This new amusement resort, which is managed by W. H. Carter, and backed by the Chicago City Railway Co., opened Saturday night. There was a fair crowd in spite of threatening weather. The park, which is located at Sixty-first Street and Cottage Grove Avenue, offers a variety of attractions. Yule's Sans Souci Band furnishes the music. There is an electric fountain and other features. Refreshments are served in the club house. In the theatre Bessie Bonehill heads the bill, and Fox and Allen appear in their sketch. There are several other numbers. Admission is 10 cents afternoons, except Sundays and holidays, and 25 cents in the evenings.

CHUTES PARK.—This resort, which netted a handsome sum last year and seasons before that, is reopened this week by E. P. Simpson, also of the Academy. Improvements have been made on the grounds, among the new features being a theatre for the accommodation of the vaudeville performers, who formerly did their turns on the floating stage in the middle of the pond. The current bill enlists Mattie Vickers, Monroe and Hart, Elmer Jerome, Carlos and Voletta, Dalton and Franklin, Leland and Cary, and E. H. Oakley. The side attractions include some new amusements, chief of which are the giant swing and the miniature railroad train. All the best outdoor features of last year are retained. The admission is 10 cents, as of old.

FERRIS WHEEL PARK.—The Swedish Fair, under the auspices of the Swedish Singing Society, has been holding sway, but it closes June 1, and the regular vaudeville season opens at this north side resort with a bill made up as follows: Edith Craske, St. Clair and Loreno, Condon and Norando, Mabel Hite, Brandon and Clare, Gilbert Sisters, Dolline Cole, Harry Moore, Billie Baxter, Leisearing Children, Johnson and Holmberg, N. Washington, Mareno, Kotaro.

CLARK STREET MUSEUM.—The Ashemas tripteix, girls' swimming contests, Borneo spotted family, Lola Cotton, child mind reader, and Mlle Ritti, are among the features of the curio hall. In addition there is a vaudeville programme and the Midway dancers.

WHITE'S LONDON DIME MUSEUM.—The following are at this house: The Westa, fire act; Prof. Otis, magician; J. Page, musical act; Millie Dot, snake charmer, a specialty company and the Midway dancers.

GOSSIP.—May Hosmer was given a highly successful benefit last Friday, at the conclusion of her fourth year as leading woman of the Hopkins stock. In the afternoon the house was packed, and in the evening seats were occupied on the stage, and hundreds were turned away. After the matinee performance Miss Hosmer held a ladies' reception on the stage. She was the recipient of a number of gifts on the occasion. Each performance, in which a large number of volunteers took part, concluded with the fourth act of "Camille," with Miss Hosmer in the title role..... June 2 is the date for a benefit to Sam Morris, the comedian of the Hopkins Company.....The Castle Square Opera Company's engagement, according to an agreement between proprietor Henry W. Savage, of the company, and manager Kirby Pardee, of the theatre, has been extended for the entire Summer.....Nine male members of "The Fortune Teller" Company swept down upon a like number of "Runaway Girls," and smote them Friday upon a diamond at Lincoln Park by a score of 12 to 11.....Seaman Glover, formerly with Dewey, gives a descriptive lecture at the Battle of Manila cycloramas, and Mrs. C. S. Epperson sings national songs.....Jack Williams, formerly of Lester and Williams, was given a benefit at the Gaiety Sunday night. His health is in a very serious condition.....Among those announced as engaged for the production of "Arizona" at the Grand, June 12, are Robert Edeson, Arthur Byron, Theodore Roberts, Clarence Holt, Lionel Barrymore, Olive May, Mattie Earle, Walter Hale, Vincent Serrano, Franklin Garland, Mabel Bert and Mary Andrews.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington.—The crowds of strangers which the National Peace Jubilee was expected to bring to town did not materialize to any considerable extent during the three days last week in which the jubilee was held. Consequently the playhouses were not as well patronized as they undoubtedly would have been had there been no unusual "doings." The week opened big, however, but Pain's elaborate fireworks on the three following nights left but a "corporal's guard" to seek indoor amusement. Two noteworthy events, however, transpired during the week. The launching of a new play, and the preliminary trial of continuous vaudeville, occurred. The new play, "Private John Allen," achieved but an indifferent success, notwithstanding the title role was played by one of our own townsmen, Charles B. Hanford, who was most ably supported by the Frawley Stock Co., which has won an unbroken chain of pronounced successes for the past seven or eight weeks. Continuous vaudeville, however, was well patronized, and it was demonstrated that with good people constituting the bill continuous vaudeville will pay in Washington during the regular season. Last week also marked the final closing for the season of two houses, which leaves us but one legitimate house open, besides one playing combination variety and one playing vaudeville. Glen Echo, a suburban resort, opens with the present week with a fine vaudeville bill, which will undoubtedly cause an exodus of our vaudeville patrons, as the days and nights in town have commenced to be uncomfortably warm.

RAPLEY'S NATIONAL THEATRE has closed its regular season, but will be open one night this week for Maude Adams, in "Romeo and Juliet," June 1, for which engagement nearly the entire house is already sold, at advanced prices. Last week "'Way Down East" fared well, notwithstanding the counter attraction of the National Peace Jubilee, both house and company management announcing themselves as well pleased with the financial outcome.

LUCKETT & DWYER'S COLUMBIA THEATRE.—The Frawley Comedy Stock Co., in a revival of "The Dancing Girl," with Blanche Bates and Augustus Cook in the leading roles, supported by all the favorites of the Frawley company. Violet Kimball, a Washington girl of much promise, makes her stage debut as Sister Beatrice. Last week a new play, "Private John Allen," received its premier at this house, with Charles B. Hanford in the principal character. The new play deals with political life in the South during the few years following the War of the Rebellion, but only casually refers to that period, as the play is not in any way a military one. The incidents of the play did not seem to excite any particular interest in the audience, and were it not for the fact that the principal, as well as his support, were all personal favorites, the play would have fallen flat. Next week (June 5-10) will be the last of the Frawley Stock Co. season at this house. The closing play has not yet been announced, but the management promises that the last week shall not be the least of the eight weeks of pronounced successes, such as Washington has never heretofore been treated to by a stock company—in fact, anything coming to Washington here after with the Frawley trademark upon it will be received without question.

KERNAN'S LYCEUM THEATRE.—The Monte Carlo Girls this week. The Roeber-Crane Co. had fair business last week. Next week, June 5-10, opens with a grand testimonial benefit to Manager Hughey Kernan by the Hot Air Burlesquers and a host of volunteers. The Burlesquers finish the week and the season of the house.

BURKE & CHASE'S GRAND OPERA HOUSE, which had already closed its regular season of vaudeville a couple of weeks ago, reopened temporarily last week to accommodate the expected Peace Jubilee crowd, and at the same time try the experiment of continuous vaudeville. The result was entirely satisfactory. The house will reopen Sept. 18, renovated from lobby to fly gallery.

GRIEVES'-BIJOU-THEATRE has this week Sisters Leon, Williams and Adams, Barton and Ashley, Emma Carus, Price and Watson, Abbott Davison and the augmented Bijou Stock Co.

BRAWNER'S GLEN ECHO AMPHITHEATRE.—Under the direction of Rock & Keit, this resort opens its season this week with free concerts in the park by the Fifth Maryland Veteran Corps Band of forty pieces, a village of real Arabs and a camp of English Gypsies. A prime vaudeville bill in the Amphitheatre is being offered, with Fred Hallen and Molly Fuller, in a comedy sketch, as the top liners, followed by Snyder and Buckley, the Marshall Quintet, Dougherty Sisters, the Three Navaros, Elenora Falk, Arnim and Wagner, and the American vitagraph.

NOTES.—William Dupont, of Crane's Co., has closed his season and retired for the Summer to the seclusion of his farm, in the vicinity of Washington. He is re-engaged for the next season with the same company.....James Lackey, of the Sol Smith Russell Co., has returned to his Washington home for the Summer, as has also James Murphy, of his brother's (Tim Murphy) company.....Augustus Cook, the original Quaker father in "the Dancing Girl," was specially engaged for the part by Manager Frawley for the present week's presentation of the play at the Columbia.

MASSACHUSETTS.—(See Page 263.)

Taunton.—At Sabbatia Park the season opens May 29, and the attraction for the week is Raymon Moore and his vaudeville stars, which include St. Onge and Clay, Rose Carlin, the Wilsons and Fred Bowman.

CANADA.—[See Page 263.]

Galt.—At Scott's Opera House the Emerson Stock Co. was booked for May 24, the Queen's birthday, but outside attractions proved too much for the attendance, which was light. The performance, however, did not merit any better fate.

Under the Tents.

NOTES FROM BALLENGER FAMILY PAVILION SHOWS.—This leaves us in our third week in Virginia, and business could not be any better at this time of the year, simply doing fine, everthing running smoothly, except one accident which happened to Chas. Stone, who fell from the double traps May 29 and severely hurt himself, disfiguring his face and hands and breaking one rib. His partner, James Warner, who also fell with him and hurt his hip, has resumed work. It will be a few weeks before Mr. Stone can be able to work again. Roster: Matt Ballenger, manager; Frank Warner, superintendent; S. Freeman Botts, assistant; Homer Kelly, advance, with two assistants; Verna V. Ballenger, leader of brass band of eight pieces; Howard, Daly and Yaeger, triple bar and three high acrobats; James Warner, single trapeze and Spanish rings; Wm. Yaeger, slack wire; Edward Daly, high dives; Johnnie Howard, principal singing, talking and knockabout clown and high stilts; Yaeger and Verna Ballenger, double contortionists; Stone and Warner, double traps and breakaway ladders; Matt Ballenger, ventriloquist; Mrs. Lizzie Ballenger, iron jaw and teeth slide; Matt and Verna Ballenger, musical act with Fido, their trained dog; Prof. G. A. Klinter, leader of orchestra; Watt Colston, buck and wing dancing; Jasper McVicker, boss canvas, seven assistants; Joe Brown and Frank Arnold, props. The show travels overland by wagons, and we get THE OLD RELIABLE every week.

WELSH BROS.' NEWEST GREAT CHAT.—A continuous wave of prosperity is still encircling the tour of the "Newest Great," and the sixth week of the present season finds us finishing a portion of the anthracite coal belt of Pennsylvania. Despite the fact that several big shows were heavily billed against us in the towns of Pottsville, Tamaqua, Minersville, Lykens and Tremont we did "capacity" business. The big show programme is now in first class shape, and is running with clock like precision. The silver tongued oratorical announcements, descriptive of the various acts, by Prof. Newton, are received with much favor at each performance. The musical department this season is unusually strong, and includes fourteen musicians, with the following roster: Prof. C. Carrette, band master; Chas. W. Gerlach, orchestral leader; H. H. Whittier, JAS. E. Ebersole, C. H. Jacoby, David Moore, Jacob Schaeffer, Wm. Hess, Chas. Harris, J. J. Trumbull, Harry T. Palmer, Jos. Adams, Henry Snyder and John McNamara. We are now heading for a flying visit to the Southern country.

NOTES FROM CAR NO. 2 OF RINGLING BROS.' Shows.—In a game of baseball at Junction City, Col., May 21, the knights of the brush of this car defeated a local team by a score of 35 to 28. Mikesell and McLeod were the paste throwers' battery, and they did their work well. The day before, at Leadville, we had a heavy snow storm all day. When we left there were three inches of snow on the ground, but there is none in sight here. Quite a change, overcoats one day and baseball the next. Everyone on the car is well and happy. Roster: Geo. Goodhart, manager; "Rip Van Winkle" Knox, boss bill poster; Chas. Bostwick, lithographer; Lester McLeod, lithograph boards; Frank Mikesell, programmer; E. C. West and Wm. Clayburn, banner men; bill posters, Ben Deschane, Jas. Kicker Tucker, P. F. Murphy, Louis Twesne, Dick Leslie, Frank Colbert, J. P. Miller, Jas. Gouran, Wm. Hemphill and Big Road Daub Porter.

NOTES FROM SIG. SAUTELLE'S NEW BIG 25 CENT SHOWS.—We have entered upon the second week of our season, to uniformly good business. The rainfall has been unusually heavy, and we have seen but two fair working days. Wet and cold, however, does not keep the people away, and Mr. Sautelle's ledger shows a most comfortable balance upon the right side. The program of the big show contains twenty-four acts, and that each is pleasing is evidenced by the plaudits of public and press alike.

HARRY AND MAY HOWARD have been engaged for the concert with Howe & Cushing's Railroad Circus.

C. A. HIBBORD is now in his fifth week with Cullins Bros.' Big Shows.

RAYMOND BRIGGS is again with the Powelson Shows, in the capacity of amusement director and business manager, and is accompanied by his wife.

The show travels by rail and everybody with the show looks forward to a long and prosperous season.

THE GREAT EASTERN 25C SHOW opened its season at Willimantic, Ct., May 25. The show is brand new from top to bottom, under the management of J. H. Gray and H. C. Wheeler. They carry an 80ft. round top, horse tent, cook and dressing room top, twenty-five people and fourteen head of stock. Shorty L'Heureux is leader of band. The show is only playing in the State of Connecticut for an eight or ten weeks' tour before Manager Gray opens the opera house season.

CHAS. O'BRIEN is doing principal clown with Welch Bros.' Circus, and doing a double turn in the concert with Harry F. West.

NOTES FROM C. O. TAYLOR'S BIG REFINED 10 AND 15 CENT SHOW.—We opened at Columbia City, Ind., May 20, and gave two performances. The show made a hit on the opening and Mr. Taylor will close his season at that place. We carry a 60x80 main top, a 30ft. top, six horses, one baggage wagon, one property wagon, one ticket wagon, one three seated spring wagon, and one buggy. We make two days' stands and we are doing the best of business through Indiana. Roster: C. O. Taylor, proprietor and manager; Harry Bell, stage manager; Claud Lewis, Chas. Olderfer, Harry Burton, Albert Boyer, Wm. E. Wagoner, leader of band, with eight in band. We carry eighteen people in all. We are having fine weather at present. All are enjoying themselves and look for THE OLD RELIABLE every week.

ELTON BROS.' CIRCUS NOTES.—Business continues big, and all indications point out a successful season. The wind blew down the top at 5 P. M., May 16, doing considerable damage and preventing us showing for two nights. The weather has been good since then, and everything runs smoothly. We visited the afternoon performance of G. W. Belford's Circus at Lucyville, Pa., May 26.

HARRY LE GRAW and Bob White have formed a partnership, and are with Cooper & Co.'s Circus for the Summer.

JOHN ROBINSON SHOW NOTES.—In our roster last week the names of Chas. W. Davis, in charge of candy stands; Tom Ambrose and Geo. Steel, inside ticket sellers; Monk Wilson, in charge of privilege car, and Wm. Fowley, special officers, were omitted. The old adage, that all good things are three is appropriate with the John Robinson Shows. John G. Robinson, our manager, and the third generation of the family to handle this aggregation, is meeting with nothing but success, as the business so far in stands that were made by the show in years gone by is almost double. On Friday night last, at Moundsville, we were compelled to wire for a large cage wagon to hold the big consignment, or herd of Elks. Moundsville Lodge, 282, B. P. O. Elks, having had the matter in hand some ten days previous to our date they initiated the following gentlemen to membership, having obtained a special dispensation from Exalted Ruler Burley: John G. Robinson, Robert Stickney, J. C. Wilson, Chas. W. Davis, George Atkinson, Harry Greene, Warren Irons, Tom Finnegan, George Steele, Thomas Ambrose, Chas. W. Taylor, Philip Ellsworth, Lou Moore. After the ceremonies a collation was served and a general good time indulged in until train hour. William Dutton, of No. 1, New York City, and Capt. F. B. Wilson, of No. 412, Pittsburg, Kan., were visitors. Professor Rogers and his band lent their harmonious and kindly aid to the occasion.

FLETCHER S. SMITH did not go with the Sig. Sautelle Show as press agent, but was secured by James W. Shipman, and is with his pavilion "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Company.

DEATHS IN THE PROFESSION.

GEORGE PARRY, a violinist and orchestra leader, died May 22, at Siegfried's, near Allentown, Pa., in the thirty-third year of his age. He was born in Manchester, Eng., and earned his living with the violin from his thirteenth year. In England he played with Hague's Minstrels and with the orchestras at various music halls. Coming to this country, he went to the Dime Museum, Philadelphia, in 1890, and remained there one season. The following two seasons he led the orchestra at Carncross' (Eleventh Street Opera House), in the same city, and from there went to the People's Theatre, and remained there up to the time of his death. At the death of the latter, in 1849, he returned to Brussells and followed the classes of Leonard at the Conservatoire Royal, where he carried off the first prize at twelve years of age, and the first prize for harmony at the age of fifteen. At sixteen he made his debut as a virtuoso and went on a tour of Germany, Austria and Poland in company with Meyerbeer. He played before the royal family at Berlin, and at Coburg the Grand Duke decorated him with the Cross of a Knight of the Order of Ernestine de Saxe in 1857. He then went to Russia, and performed before the imperial family, and organized a series of concerts at St. Petersburg and Moscow, in which Rubinstein and Jenny Lind appeared. After a three years' stay there he visited Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and then accepted an invitation to perform before the court of Holland, in 1861. On returning to his native country he had a triumphal tour and was finally appointed violinist to Her Majesty. He followed Maximilian to Mexico, where he had a special engagement at court. While there he took part in the Mexican war and was successively created Knight and Officer of the Imperial Order of Mexico, in 1864. NEW PLAYS.

"Aberdeen,"

A four act domestic comedy, by Lawrence Russell, received its first production on any stage May 2, at the Turner Opera House, Menominee, Mich. The story: During the civil war Daniel Hyland, a Union, and Col. Andrew Denville, a Confederate officer, met and loved the same woman. Hyland is the successful suitor. Later he is detailed with a force of men to destroy the home of the Denvilles, whose activity for the Southern cause has aroused the ire of the Union forces. At the opening of the play Col. Denville and Daniel Hyland, who are now old men, are neighbors in the little village of Aberdeen, O., and a personal hatred, resulting from these incidents, coupled with a sectional prejudice, render them bitter enemies. John Hyland, a son of Daniel, and Agnes Denville, the colonel's niece, have fallen in love, and the match is bitterly opposed by the colonel, who favors the suit of Chas. Beck, a journalist. Agnes pays a visit to the Hylands, and learning of this the colonel repairs to the Hyland place and orders her home. While there he meets Daniel, hot words follow, and a tragedy is narrowly averted by the timely interference of Marina (Daniel's wife) and Agnes. Daniel gives the colonel to understand that the quarrel will be resumed at their next meeting. The colonel accepts the challenge and the act ends. The second act is laid in the village of Aberdeen, rumors of the impending war with Spain are rife and John decides to enlist. Meeting Agnes, he tells her of his decision and also of his affection for her. Though she returns his love, she tells him she can never marry without her uncle's consent. The scene is interrupted by the colonel's appearance, who orders Agnes home, and informs John that his attentions to her must instantly cease under the pain of personal injury. News is received that war is declared; John starts for Tampa. On the way to the ferry he meets Agnes and they exchange farewells. The colonel enters, and becoming enraged at again finding them together, attempts to shoot John. Daniel makes his appearance, and takes up the quarrel, and the colonel fires at him, and Agnes, who has run between them, receives the bullet. The third act is laid in Cuba. John, who is on the skirmish line at San Juan, receives what is supposed to be a mortal wound. He is discovered by Beck, now a war correspondent, who conceives the idea of cabling to his paper an account of John's death, and, without waiting for results, by returning immediately to Aberdeen with a letter supposed to have been dictated by John while dying, succeed in marrying Agnes. He informs Hyland of his plan, and leaves him on the field, where he is found and succored by James Henry Sloop, a farm boy on the Hyland estate, who, with John, enlisted in the army. The fourth act is laid in the home of the Hylands in Aberdeen. Daniel reads of his son's death, the colonel hears of it, all his prejudice and hatred is swept away in admiration of the son, and pity for the father, he enters, tenders his sympathy, Daniel accepts it, and they become friends. Beck returns, and meeting Agnes, who is yet ignorant of the news, tells her of the death of her lover, and the letter supposed to have been dictated by him while dying, asking her to marry Beck. Rev. Carson comes in to offer his consolation to the stricken family, and Agnes, who is dazed by the news, and bewildered by Beck's representations, consents to a marriage. Beck has previously provided himself with a license, and the ceremony is performed. John, who has partially recovered from his wounds and has hastened home, enters, and is so surprised by the scene before him that he is unable to interpose until too late. The ceremony concluded, Agnes' gaze wanders over the room and, resting on John, she sinks to the floor in a swoon. When consciousness returns her mind is wrecked. The colonel enters and learning the facts attempts to kill Beck, but is prevented by Rev. Carson. In a scene between Beck and John the former voluntarily relinquishes all claim to Agnes and leaves for Cuba, intimating that as John is a lawyer he will know how to remedy matters. Agnes is under age, and the colonel, her guardian, expresses his intention of having the marriage annulled. The cast: Daniel Hyland, Albert J. Juttner; John Hyland, Chester Lewis; Col. Andrew Denville, Will H. Litts; Wm. Augustus Devine, Leo D. Pangborn; Chas. Beck, Ralph S. Gram; Silas Stone, August Pinette; Rev. Carson, J. CARDS.

S. W. B., Boston.—When the dealer, in the deal, accidentally exposes a card the player to whom such card was given must take it; but if the card is exposed in the draw the player cannot accept it, but must be given the next card from the top of the deck, and before any player to his left has been helped to cards.

W. C. G., Brooklyn.—The hand composed of the six, five, four, three and two of spades beats that made up of the five, four, three, two and ace of clubs. The ace may either commence or end a straight.

A. R. D., Chicago.—The talon having been exhausted, and each player having taken into his hand all the cards he had exposed, suit must be followed, if possible, otherwise a trump must be played; if neither is possible, any card may be played. The second player to a trick must take the trick, if he can, failure to do so constituting a revoke.

A. AND B., Cleveland.—A. having made 66, and B. conceding the correctness of the count, the former takes the point.

D. H. C., Philadelphia.—Any straight flush is what some persons choose to term a "royal" or "tiger" flush, the hands varying in value according to the cards they are composed of.

G. S. L., Portland.—In seven up, when there is a tie for game, the elder hand, or non dealer, scores the point.

C. L. F., Cincinnati.—THE CLIPPER has always ruled that in euchre only that player who assumes the responsibility of the trump, by either ordering it up, taking it up or making it, is entitled to play alone.

J. P. A., Philadelphia.—B. is entitled to a run of four for the last card in 6, 6, 5, 4 and 7.

P. M. R., Albany.—A hand of four 3's and a 9 in cribbage counts twenty-four.

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

J. A. B., Minneapolis.—You win. All bets on the result of ball games go with the umpire's decision.

R. E. H., Brooklyn.—The game of baseball is played under a set of rules which are carefully revised each year by a competent committee selected for that purpose. The rules are so very plain and comprehensible that it is hard to understand how even a theorist can misconstrue them. Had the magnates intended that the rules should be interpreted "by the spirit," "common sense," or any other method than just what they imply, they would certainly have said so. No one should anticipate their thoughts, but rather let them express their own views. It would require too much time and valuable space to explain all the questions you ask.

A. J. B., Lowell.—In all cases where a base runner is retired by being hit by a batted ball the batsman is credited with a base hit.

C. H. S., Philadelphia.—The choice of innings is given to the captain of the home team.

ATHLETIC.

T. H. T., Charleston.—After rolling off their tie A was entitled to first prize and B to second. C had no claim on a prize.

J. H. S., Hartford.—Write to the secretary of the National Interscholastic Association, in care of this office. You will find the winners at the championship meetings during the past three seasons on page 83 of THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1899.

RING.

C. E. A., Butte.—We prefer not to express an opinion regarding the matter in this column; use your own judgment.

J. A. R., Cadillac.—The bare knuckle fight between John L. Sullivan and Charley Mitchell took place in France, March 10, 1888, and lasted thirty-nine rounds, terminating in a draw.

TURF.

O., Bath.—We do not know the present whereabouts of the party inquired for.

AQUATIC.

H. G.—Do you mean the forthcoming races for the America Cup?

MISCELLANEOUS.

J. M., New York.—The fact of his having engaged in a match with a professional would debar him from thereafter competing in amateur contests, of course.

W. H. J., Frostburg.—Write to C. S. Lawrence, 88 Centre Street, New York City.

PROF. M., Hanover.—1. Governor's Island is located in New York Bay, and is reached by boat from the Battery, this city, after a short trip. 2. Yes, that being the headquarters of the commander of this department.

W. V. G., Lexington.—Write to the Scott Coin and Stamp Company, 18 East Twenty-third Street, New York City.

J. F. K., Ottawa.—We do not know anything about the domestic affairs of the party mentioned.

O. K. L.—Ad. would cost one dollar.

News of the Game.

The latest thing in books is "Flora Temple, No. 2," by Preston Ketchum. It is neatly gotten up, and quite an acquisition to anyone's checker library.....The Draughts World for May is at hand. The prominent features are: First, an article on the late international match; second, a sketch of Wyllie and his matches, containing an acknowledgment of Wyllie's match with Yates being for the world's championship. This is but just to the memory of Yates, as Melvin Brown, of Brooklyn, has in his possession the original articles of agreement, signed by both Yates and Wyllie, and they distinctly state that the world's championship was involved; third, Swan and Adamson's Cross revised up to date; fourth, plenty of good problems.....The Messrs. Bryson & Co. are soon to issue a memorial volume of the life and work of James Wyllie. This will indeed be a rare work, and should be in the hands of all.....D. A. Brodie has won the New Zealand championship and $100.....S. Seigel expects to visit Europe this month. Pillsbury has already gone to England, and is entered for the chess tourney. James McEntee thinks that if he can get on one or two more matches with Collins he will be able to take a trip across the pond also.....Joe Maize says that "The Scottish draughts columns hint that Willie Campbell had better suggest terms for the proposed blindfold match with Willie Gardner or else renounce his pretensions to the blindfold championship." This is severity tempered with justice, and is as it should be, for Gardner has awaited a long time.....H. D. Lyman, the celebrated problematist, is now the president of the American Surety Co.....Harry Freedman and J. A. Kear Jr. are to have a subscription match.

A double vote of thanks is due The Orillia Packet for this spirited game; first, as from a lady player of whom we had not previously heard; and, second, as revealing a star candidate for the coming Ladies' International Tourney.

James D. Seguin, Esq.

Am. Ch. Mag., much condensed.

Mr. Seguin is a native Orleannois, born Sept. 11, 1853; learned the elements of chess, probably in '65; won his first prize in the old Orleans C. C., in '79. In 1880 he, with Hon. Chas. F. Buck and Chas. A. Maurian, conceived the plan and organized the now world famous New Orleans Chess, Checkers and Whist Club.

During its first decade Mr. S. participated in nearly all the leading contests at chess. He won first prize in the tourney of 1886—score, 7½ to 2½; in 1883, second, 20½-4½; L. L. Labatt first, 22½. In '84, first, 17½-4½; in '86, which year our subject thinks marks the apex of his chess strength, after losing his Q, and thereby the initial game by an oversight at the eighth move, he won 24 out of the succeeding 26 games, and first prize vs. one of the strongest fields ever entered in a tourney of the club. In 1888-89 he won third prize with 13½-3½. Mr. S. also participated in a number of handicaps, as a player of Class I; but survived through to first prize only in that of 1890, after a tie match with Hon. L. L. Labatt and Frank Dameron, both of Class I.

Since then Mr. S. has taken part in no more tourneys of the club; and, in fact, regards himself as quite a back number in over the board play.

On March 17, '92, he participated in the telegraphic match vs. the Manhattan C. C., facing D. Graham Baird. Here he achieved the unique feat of drawing his game at 19.. not a piece or P having been removed from the board!

The world famed chess department of The Times-Democrat was opened Feb. 4, 1883; and Mr. S. pays a high and deserved tribute to the zeal and ability of his colaborer for the first eight years, Chas. A. Maurian, Esq. Bro. Seguin holds an honorable rank as a jurisconsult in his native city and State.

It may be added that, during his sixteen years of chess editing Mr. S. has formed one of the finest chess libraries and collections extant; special features being the collection of chess magazines approximating 500 volumes and a unique section devoted to chess exchanges, now aggregating 350 gr. oct. volumes. We have seen somewhere, we think, that Brother Seguin sets his chess library at about 1,500 volumes.

Drillings.

We have a most satisfactory piece of information anent the A. C. M. Dr. L. D. Broughton is again at the editorial helm. If anything can argue for its continued prosperity and acceptability, this fact does so. We look for the next issue with increased interest.....As we write, the world's chess masters are gathering in London, and the list of entrants will soon be known. The American contingent is a great one. Steinitz, a free lance: Marshall and Pillsbury, for the Brooklyn, and Mr. Showalter for the Franklin C. C. "Our Jack" is booked for the heartiest kind of a welcome over there, and from no one more assuredly than from Mr. Atkins. Mr. Marshall, as is well known, enters the secondary or one-round tourney, and we'll agree to be disappointed if he does not distinguish himself..... In The Sun's current problem tourney, "Middle Weight Section" three moves, the first prize has been awarded to Conrad Erlin; the second divided ex æquo between Messrs. J. C. Wainwright and R. G. Thompson. In the "Heavy Weight Section" Mr. Mackenzie comes in first and M. Pradignat second. The Sun will soon give a complete summary..... The leading Philadelphia item is the final victory of Bro. Kemeny for the Franklin C. C. championship. It will be remembered that the F. C. C's. annual tourney, after a most close and exciting struggle, came out a tie between H. G. Voigt, last year's champion, and Emil Kemeny. This tie was to be broken by the first two victories; but the deadlock continued through four drawn games! Then it was that Bro. Kemeny rose to the necessities of the occasion and captured the statutory two games, winning for the year the George W. Childs Cup, third time; the Dr. Persifor Frazer Cup; and, for his own, a $50 gold medal. We note the closing game for speedy appearance.....It is very pleasant to see The Ch. Pl. Chronicle, with warm interest, take up the Ladies' 2d International, on the same lines as recently advocated in THE CLIPPER. If one may read between the lines, Mrs. Berry, the Irish lady champion, could easily be induced to come. One English writer pointedly recalls Mr. Pillsbury's energetic and successful efforts in behalf of the 1st Ladies' Congress, and confidently expresses the opinion that the English amateurs will not be found less active or efficient in supporting the American undertaking.

MAJOR LEAGUE.

New York Plays Well at Cincinnati—Results of Games Elsewhere.

Cincinnati vs. New York.

Well! Well!! Well!!! Where were the prognosticators, and where are the "I told you so's?" The unexpected really did happen, and that, too, without being previously announced. Cincinnati was taken into camp by the despised New Yorks on May 23, at Cincinnati, O., which goes to show that its victory over the Gothamites of the day before was more on the order of a gift than clever playing. Every Porkopolitan enthusiast laughed heartily over the way New York lost the first game of this series. It was Captain Gleason's fault that the home team won. It was his "error of judgment" in holding a base runner at third in the last half of the ninth inning, instead of sending him home with what would have proven the winning run. It was evident that he was not going to take any chances of "errors of judgment" in this contest, for New York went at the locals for keeps early in the struggle, and left no chance for doubt at the close of the proceedings, and to fully vindicate himself Gleason threw all the action at his command into the game. As is generally the case, the home team started off with a rush, by scoring two runs in the opening inning, but when the second inning was over the score was even. Cincinnati took the lead in the third inning, but New York evened matters up in the fourth. In the fifth inning the visitors collected a number of hits into a group and chased four runs over the plate, and that settled the result as far as the locals were concerned, although they did make two feeble efforts after that to win. Cincinnati presented Pitcher Taylor and counted on him to pull them through, but it was a case of misplaced confidence. As long as he presided at the rubber New York feasted on base hits. The locals began to realize that they had drawn to the wrong number, and at the beginning of the sixth inning Dammann was substituted for Taylor, but the change came too late to avert defeat. Not another run was scored by the visitors after Dammann came into the game, but no more were actually needed, as enough had been made while Taylor was on duty to give New York a victory. Meekin was as wild as a hawk in his delivery, and more liberal in giving free passes than a charity commissioner. In fact, it looked as if some trick had been sprung on Meekin, and he was compelled to pitch at a movable plate. Still, the locals' stick artists were just as much at sea in trying to connect with Meekin's delivery as the latter was in trying to locate the home plate. In fielding both teams did exceedingly well at times. A few costly errors were made, but not enough to give either side a great advantage. However, the sharp, fast plays followed each so rapidly that the fumbles were lost in the scrimmage. There were five double plays, Davis and Doyle being mixed up in three of them. It was a Davis day, and he carried off the fielding honors, having all of fourteen accepted chances to his credit. Wilson played finely in left field. His work was as good as the best of them while there, but he wasn't there long. He got tangled up in an argument with Umpire Warner in the third inning, and, while he may have been right, the official did not take the same view of the matter that he did, and the result was that he went to the bench to think it over, while Foster was substituted in his place. Meekin was batted safely seven times, including double baggers by Beckley and Taylor, gave six bases on balls and hit two other batsmen with pitched balls. New York made thirteen safe hits, including double baggers by Doyle, Gleason, Grady and Meekin, off Cincinnati's pitchers. Taylor gave three bases on balls and hit another batsman with a pitched ball. New York was charged with making three fielding errors and Cincinnati one. Doyle's resignation as captain came as a surprise. It was his own free action and solely on account of his being out of the game so much with his bad ankle. Gleason succeeded Doyle as captain. It required two hours to play the game. The score:

New York.....	0	2	0	1	4	0	0	0	0—7
Cincinnati.....	2	0	1	0	0	1	1	0	0—6

Pitcher Seymour's inability to get the ball anywhere near the home plate was the chief cause of New York's defeat on May 24, although it required ten innings before the result was reached. The Cincinnatis should have made twice as many runs as they did, for Seymour started thirteen for them by giving as many men their base on balls, and, as they made seven safe hits, including two triples and a double bagger by Beckley, off him, there should have been no need of playing an extra inning to win had they ran the bases with any vim or dash. What Seymour lacked in pitching he made up to some extent in batting, having four safe hits, including two double baggers, to his credit. Hawley started in to pitch for the home team, but he proved the easiest thing they had in stock, and during the four innings of his sojourn the New Yorks made seven safe hits, including two double baggers, off his delivery. At the end of the fourth inning a consultation was held, and it was decided to retire Hawley and substitute Phillips in his place. Phillips did better work in the pitcher's position, allowing the visitors only two safe hits and as many runs in the remaining six innings. Hawley gave two bases on balls and struck out one man, while Phillips hit one man with a pitched ball. Davis and Gleason, of New York, carried off the fielding honors, accepting all of sixteen chances at short and second base, respectively. New York made only one fielding error, and Cincinnati two. Time of game, 2h. 15m. The score:

Cincinnati.....	1	0	2	0	0	0	3	0	1—7

Louisville vs. Brooklyn.

The Brooklyns still retain first place in the pennant race, but whether they will be able to do so when they finish up this series of games in the West is yet to be seen. They defeated the Louisvilles on May 23, at Louisville, Ky., in a canter. True, for five innings it was exceedingly interesting, with not a run in sight for either team, but the last four innings the visitors set such a hot pace that the locals were left at the post. Daly, Anderson and Keeler led in batting, Daly driving in four runs and scoring himself. Only one of Keeler's three hits was wasted, while two of Anderson's produced runs. Wagner got the bulk of the hits made off Kennedy, making three of the five credited to his team. The game was a spirited one throughout. Dowling was batted safely in nearly every inning, but had a faculty in the early innings of getting out of tight holes. Captain Clarke, of the home team, sprained his ankle during the first inning, and was compelled to retire, Hartzell replacing him. A fielding feature was a long and accurate throw from deep left field by Kelley to Farrell, on which Wagner was doubled up at the home plate. The batting feature was the stick work by Daly, who made four safe hits. No scoring was done until the sixth inning, when two runs were made by Brooklyn after two hands had been put out. Anderson bunted and made second on Dowling's poor throw. McGann was hit by a pitched ball, Daly hit to centre, and Hoy fell in going after the ball, Anderson and McGann scoring. Hoy scratched a double in the last half, and scored on a single by Wagner. The visitors kept it up in the seventh inning. Kennedy, Keeler and Dahlen made safe hits between outs, and on the latter's hit Kennedy scored. In the eighth, after Anderson and McGann had hit safely, Daly drove the ball to right centre field for a home run, and in the ninth Keeler singled and stole second; Kelley followed with a drive to the left field fence for three bases, sending Keeler in, and scoring himself a moment later on McGann's single. Daly bunted safely and Farrell singled, sending McGann in. Farrell injured himself trying to reach second base, and Grim caught the last half of the inth inning. Kennedy allowed the locals five safe hits, including a double bagger by Hoy, gave five bases on balls, made a wild pitch and struck out one man. Dowling was batted safely seventeen times, including a home run and a double bagger by Daly, a triple by Kelley and a two baser by Anderson, gave one base on balls, hit two other batsmen with pitched balls and struck out two men. Brooklyn made one fielding error and Louisville two. Time of game, 2h. 10m. The score:

Brooklyn.....	0	0	0	0	0	2	1	3	3—9
Louisville.....	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0—1

The final game of this series, played May 24, went to the home team, thanks to Messrs. Casey and Grim. The former made a wild throw, and the latter committed a very stupid blunder in the ninth inning, that gave our locals three runs, and, of course, a victory. The score stood 5 to 3 in the visitors' favor when the Louisvilles went to the bat in the last half of the ninth inning. Hartzell, who batted for Woods, was given a base on balls, Dexter beat out on his infield hit. Kittridge went out at first, advancing the two runners each a base. Powers batted in place of Magee, and sent an easy bounder to Casey, who, in trying to head off Hartzell at the plate, threw the ball far over Grim's head, letting in both Hartzell and Dexter, and tying the score. Hoy then flied to Anderson, and Powers, who had reached second base on Casey's wild throw home, went to third. There were two hands out when Clarke came to the bat, Pitcher Yeager got instructions to give Clarke his base on balls, the scheme being to play for Ritchey, the next batsman. However, in taking the fourth wide ball Grim stepped out of the catcher's position and committed a balk. Umpire Emslie promptly allowed Captain Clarke's claim, and called Powers in with the winning run. But for the blunder on the part of Grim an extra inning would probably have been played, and a different result might have been chronicled. Yeager, of Brooklyn, pitched a much better game than did Magee, of the home team, and with perfect fielding he would have been credited with a victory. The locals batted Yeager safely eight times, including a triple bagger by Hoy. He gave three bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out three men. Magee was batted safely eleven times, including a two baser by McGann, gave three bases on balls, hit five other batsmen with pitched balls, made a wild pitch and struck out one man. Brooklyn made one fielding error, and Louisville two. Time of game, 2h. 20m. The score:

Brooklyn.....	0	0	0	0	3	0	2	0	0—5

St. Louis vs. Boston.

St. Louis lost nothing in the percentage table by Brooklyn's victory over Louisville, as it also gained a victory by defeating the Bostons on May 23, at St. Louis, Mo. Killen was on the rubber for the visitors, and his "curvelets" were pounded into all manner of shapes and sent to all points of the compass. After the third inning St. Louis was never in danger, and wound up Killen's agony by pounding in two runs in the ninth inning, to show that they were just as much in the game as at any other stage of the proceedings. The game was full of brilliant fielding, despite the many errors charged, Boston carrying the most of them. The throwing to second base by Criger, of the home team, was fast and accurate, cutting off several of the visitors when they attempted to steal there from first base. Stenzel, of the home team, and Duffy, of the champions, led their respective teams in batting, the former making four safe hits and the latter three. Boston put up a poor fielding game, having five errors charged to it, while St. Louis made only two. The visitors did not put up that snappy game they are wont to do when in their best playing trim. They batted the ball hard enough to win, but the hits were not collected in sufficient numbers to make them profitable. St. Louis made seventeen safe hits, including two double baggers by Wallace and one by Tebeau, off Killen, who gave three bases on balls, made a wild pitch and struck out one man. Powell, of the home team, was batted safely eleven times, including a triple bagger by Tenney and doubles by Long and Duffy and gave two bases on balls. He was very lucky, however, in keeping the hits so well apart that they netted only four runs. Time of game, 2h. 15m. The score:

St. Louis.....	0	1	1	2	1	2	0	0	2—9
Boston.....	0	1	0	0	0	2	0	1	0—4

The Bostons dished out championship ball on May 24, just as it is played when pennants are won, and the result was an easy victory for them. They went at "Cy" Young at the very start as though he were a novice, and made five clean singles, netting them three runs and giving them a lead they had no trouble to hold until the end. The visitors kept up their stick work all through the game, and the result was never in doubt. Lewis, although a bit unsteady in his delivery, pitched a fine game for the champions, and kept the home team's hits so well scattered that they could score only one run, and that was on a homer by Criger. The Bostons fielded brilliantly, not a misplay in that respect marring their good work. The locals were as much "off" in their fielding as they were weak in batting, as five errors were charged to them. Lewis held the St. Louis team down to eight safe hits, including the home run above mentioned, gave four bases on balls and struck out one man. Boston made thirteen safe hits, including a triple bagger by Bergen and a two baser by Long, off Young, who gave three bases on balls and struck out one man. Time of game, 1h. 45m. The score:

St. Louis.....	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0—1

Chicago vs. Philadelphia.

If the Philadelphias could get team work down to as fine a point as they are clever at slugging the ball what a wonderful team they would be! They demonstrated their ability to bat on May 23, at Chicago, Ill., when they defeated the home team. It was truly a slugging match, in which both teams took an active part, with the visitors slightly in the lead. Lajoie was particularly aggressive at the bat, making four safe drives, and two of them were long enough to net him several extra bases. The admirers of heavy batting contests were given a surfeit of that kind of dessert. Twice with three men on the bases were all sent home on triple baggers, and a similar thing happened with a homer. Probably no two men were so happy when the end came as were Pitchers Taylor, of the home team, and Donahue, of the Philadelphias. Each had played a leading role in the batting matinee, but neither one seemed to appreciate the attention he attracted from four thousand enthusiasts, and hailed with delight the last act. The Phillies gathered seventeen large ripe hits, including a homer and a triple bagger by Lajoie, a homer by Flick and a two baser by McFarland, off Taylor, who gave three bases on balls and struck out three men. Donohue was batted safely eleven times, including a home run by McCormick and triple baggers by De Montreville and Wolverton, and gave two bases on balls. The Chicagos put up a far better fielding game than did the visitors, making only one error against six charged to the latter. Time of game, 2h. 30m. The score:

Chicago.....	5	0	0	0	3	2	0	0	0—10

The Phillies resumed their batting streak on May 24 where they had laid it down on the preceding day, and continued it until the game was finished, and the result was a very one sided victory for them. While the visitors were paying particular attention to their batting, and displaying it to the best of their advantage, the locals were equally as solicitious about their error column; and, while they did not reach the proficiency in that respect the Phillies did in batting, they made more than a creditable showing. Katoll pitched fairly well for an inning or two, but after that the Phillies, awakening to the fact that they must do something, or they might lose, hit in terrific sequence, driving Katoll's choicest collection of curves all over the lot. Frazer started in to pitch for the visitors, but was so freely batted in the sixth inning that he gave way to Fifield. Chicago made ten safe hits, including a double bagger by Mertes, off Philadelphia's two pitchers. Frazer gave four bases on balls, made a wild pitch and struck out two men. Fifield gave one base on balls. Philadelphia batted Katoll safely sixteen times, including a triple bagger by Cooley and doubles by Flick, McFarland and Cross. He gave three bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out one man. The Phillies made three fielding errors and Chicago eight. Time of game, 2h. 30m. The score:

Philadelphia..	1	0	3	0	3	1	2	3	1—14

Pittsburg vs. Baltimore.

What may be sauce for the goose is not always so for the gentleman member of that family. This fact was fully demonstrated in Pitcher Rhine's case. A short time ago he held the Chicagos down to a couple of hits, and on May 23, at Pittsburg, Pa., he undertook to perform the same trick on the Baltimores, but after seven hits for thirteen bases, which netted seven runs, had been made off him in two innings he concluded that he could not hypnotize them, and he retired from the game much chagrined at his failure. Sparks succeeded him, and did much better work in the pitcher's position,

CHARLES HICKMAN.

When Manager Selee, of the Boston team, bought Pitcher Hickman's release from the New Castle Club, of the Inter-State League, great things were expected from him, but up to date he has not cut a very wide swath in baseball circles; that is, in the major league, the company the Bostons travel in. At the time Boston signed him he had a lame arm, and was in no condition to do himself justice. He was born March 4, 1876, at Dunkirk. His baseball career began at the University of West Virginia, and he started out as a catcher, but the pitcher of the team being unable to keep on, young Hickman essayed the position, and with such success that he won all the games in which he took part. He accepted his first professional engagement with the New Castle Club, of the Inter-State League, in June, 1896, making his first appearance with its team on June 29, in a game with the Wheelings, at New Castle, and although the home team lost it was no fault of Hickman, who pitched good ball, but received wretched support. That season he participated in seventeen championship contests, and ranked high as a batsman, with a percentage of .333. He was re-engaged by the New Castle Club for the season of 1897, but before that had advanced far his release was purchased by the Boston Club. He participated in twenty-three championship games in 1897, winning eighteen and losing five. On May 19 Manager Selee, after paying $1,500 for his release, took him away from New Castle, but, as his arm was sore, he got no chance to appear with the Bostons until Sept. 8, at St. Louis, Mo.; then, after Klobedanz had virtually won the game, Hickman was given a trial and did very well. He has remained with the Bostons ever since, but it was not until this season that he was given a fair chance to show what he can do. The remarkably clever game he pitched against the Cincinnatis on May 26, at Cincinnati, O., shutting them out without a run and allowing them only three scattering singles, looks as if he will be able to hold his own in the major league. He is a fine looking, athletic fellow, stands 5ft. 10in. in height, and weighs about 180lb.

allowing the visitors but six safe hits in the remaining seven innings, from which they scored only one run, but the change came too late to avert a defeat. The locals took a shy at Pitcher Kitson, touching him up quite lively, especially Donovan and Williams, who each made three safe hits. Baltimore made thirteen safe hits, including a home run by Sheckard, a triple bagger by Keister and doubles by Lachance and Robinson, off Pittsburg's two pitchers. Rhines gave one base on balls, and Sparks gave two and struck out one man. Kitson was batted safely by the home team eleven times, including doubles by Donovan, McCreery and Williams, gave two bases on balls and struck out two men. The Baltimores not only batted hard and consecutively, but they put up a faultless fielding game. It was quite a contrast to that of the home team, who were charged with six fielding errors. Time of game, 1h. 50m. The score:

Pittsburg.....	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	0—2

There was a hot time between these teams on May 24, and it required twelve innings before a result was reached. It was a hair raising finish and Baltimore carried off the scalp. It was something of a batting contest, in which the home team excelled, but clever pitching at critical times, aided by sharp fielding, kept the runs down to small figures in comparison to the number of safe hits made during the game. Pittsburg, with four hits, batted in two runs in the ninth inning, tieing the score. It was nip and tuck until the twelfth inning, when Brodie singled and reached second on McCarthy's wild throw in returning the ball on Sheckard's out. Keister hit for two bases and Brodie scored what proved the winning run. The home team batted McGinnity safely sixteen times, including a triple bagger by Clark and a double by McCreery. He gave two bases on balls and struck out two men. The Baltimores made thirteen safe hits, including a triple and double bagger by Keister off Leever, who gave four bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out five men. Pittsburg made two fielding errors and Baltimore five. Time of game, 2h. 35m. The score:

Cleveland vs. Washington.

These tailenders had a battle royal for supremacy on May 23, at Cleveland, O., and by a timely bunching of their hits in the fouth and sixth innings the locals managed to carry off a victory by a very small margin. The visitors outbatted and outfielded the home team, but their hits were more scattered and less effective than those made by the Clevelands, while the few errors they made were of that costly nature that proved disastrous, as the locals profited by them. It was something of a pitcher's contest, and with perfect fielding behind the manipulators of the sphere a much more interesting story might have been told about their work. The Washingtons tried two pitchers—Baker and McFarlan—and of the two McFarlan did by far the better work. The Clevelands were content to work only one man, and he did well enough to be credited with pitching a winning game. The locals made seven safe hits, including a home run by Cross, off the visiting pitchers. Baker gave two bases on balls and hit another batsman with a pitched ball. Hill was batted safely eight times, including a double bagger by Padden, gave three bases on balls and struck out four men. The Clevelands were charged with six fielding errors and Washington with three. Those made by the home team were mostly of that harmless nature that were of little benefit to the visitors. Time of game, 2h. 15m. The score:

Washington....	1	0	0	1	0	1	0	0	0—3
Cleveland.....	0	0	0	2	0	2	0	0	—4

The Washingtons batted out a victory on May 24, while the Clevelands put up a better fielding game than did the former. Carsey proved the easiest kind of a mark for the Washingtons, who made fifteen safe hits, including triple baggers by Slagle, Mercer and Freeman, off him, and he gave one base on balls. Dineen was also touched up in a pretty lively manner by the home team, who made twelve safe hits, including a two baser by Sullivan. He gave five bases on balls and struck out two men. It was something of a slugging contest, in which both teams used their bats pretty freely. Padden, of the Washingtons, carried off the fielding honors, accepting all of eleven chances at short field. The visitors were charged with making three fielding errors and the Clevelands two. Time of game, 1h. 45m. The score:

Washington....	2	0	0	0	3	1	2	0	0—8
Cleveland.....	0	0	1	0	0	0	2	0	3—6

St. Louis vs. Brooklyn.

The contest between the above named teams on May 25, at St. Louis, Mo., was like pitting a thoroughbred against a draught horse, with Brooklyn as the racer. The visitors won with ridiculous ease. There were a number of sensational plays in the game. Daly, of Brooklyn, made the feature play of the contest. After Tebeau had singled at the commencement of the seventh inning, Blake drove a liner over Pitcher Hughes' head. Daly ran at the ball sideways, and caught it with his right hand, and, while running at full speed, and without stopping or making an effort to steady himself he snapped the ball to McGann on first base, catching Tebeau in a sensational double play by a hair. Jimmy Hughes pitched a splendid game. He was effective throughout. Childs was the only one of the local batsmen who could connect with his deceptive delivery when a hit was needed to send in a run, St. Louis had a chance to score in the first inning, but threw it away by Criger batting out of his turn. Manager Hanlon discovered the blunder after the improper batsman had singled, and Criger was accordingly called out. Cuppy had been held in reserve for this special occasion, think the rest would put him in shape to pitch the game, etc., but somehow his shoots, slants and other mysterious deliveries, did not seem to puzzle the visitors in the least. They batted him safely thirteen times, including a triple by Keeler, and a double by Anderson, and he gave two bases on balls. Hughes allowed the locals eight safe hits, all singles, gave three bases on balls, and hit another batsman with a pitched ball. Brooklyn made one error and St. Louis five. Time of game, 2h. 12m. The score:

St. Louis.....	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0—1

It was a great game these teams put up May 26, and after battling for twelve innings the contest was called on account of darkness with the score a tie—3 to 3. It was a pitcher's battle, and right royally did they contest every inch of ground. Dunn, for Brooklyn, was opposed to Powell, of the home team. Both men were in fine form, and, though the home team batted Dunn a little harder than the visitors hit Powell, brilliant support behind the Brooklyn man headed off several runs. In the eighth inning St. Louis had a man each on second and third bases, with no one out. Both had got their bases on safe hits, one going clear to the right field seats. Then Dunn steadied himself, and, with the assistance of Kelly, Dahlen and Anderson, retired the side without a run. It was an excellent piece of work and virtually saved the game for the visitors. Kennedy succeeded Dunn after the ninth inning, pitched the last three innings and proved a puzzler to the locals. Hendrick, of the locals, led in batting, with four clean hits. The Brooklyns made their first tally in the opening inning. Casey walked. Childs fumbled Keeler's hit. Casey stole third and scored on Dahlen's out from Tebeau to O'Connor. It was not until the ninth that the visitors tallied again, and then they tied the score; the fun did not begin until two men were out. It was Dunn's turn at the bat. Manager Hanlon sent Jones up in his stead, and Jones got his base on balls. Keeler hit to left, Kelley got his base on balls and Dahlen hit to centre, scoring Jones and Keeler. Anderson went out on an infield hit, and it was 3 to 3, for St. Louis had got a run in the first, another in the third and it's third and last run in the ninth. In this inning Tebeau hit to left centre for a single. Anderson fumbled the ball, and Tebeau went to second. Blake dropped a nice but and Tebeau went to third on the out. Powell bobbed up with a pretty hit between short and third, scoring Tebeau. Stenzel hit to second, and a double play killed him and Powell. Brooklyn made five safe hits off Powell, who gave six bases on balls and struck out two men. St. Louis batted Brooklyn's two pitchers safely ten times, including a double bagger by Heidrick, while Dunn gave three bases on balls and struck out two men. Brooklyn made two fielding errors and St. Louis four. Time of game, 2h. 47m. The score:

St. Louis.....	1	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0—3

These teams had another hot time of it on May 27, but on this occasion the locals scored their first victory of the season over the Brooklyns. Both teams played the fastest kind of ball, and the result was in doubt until the last man went out in the ninth inning. It was one of those contests that keep the enthusiasts worked up to the highest pitch, and keep them on the anxious seat until the game ends. The score was twice tied, and the visitors had a man on third when the last batsman was retired. To some extent it was a pitcher's battle, and in spots both men were effective. There were times when a weakening on the part of either pitcher would have resulted disastrously for his team. However, that is another story, and both men deserve praise for the good work they did in the pitcher's position. The Brooklyns were weakened considerably by the loss of Captain Kelley, who filed an exception with Umpire O'Day over being called out on strikes in the first inning. It was not so much the objection to his ruling that O'Day didn't like as it was the manner in which it was made, and as Kelley insisted in demanding what he considered his rights, the umpire summoned a policeman and threatened to have the belligerent captain put out the grounds. Jones took Kelley's place in left field, and, while he made a very creditable showing out there, he was woefully deficient in his stick work. Daly and Kennedy both fielded finely, as did Tebeau, Childs and Wallace for the home team. There weren't so many runs scored when one considers the number of long safe hits made. Kennedy was batted safely nine times, including home runs by Burkett and Stenzel and a two baser by Tebeau, gave two bases on balls and struck out three men. The Brooklyns made ten safe hits, including a triple bagger by Casey and doubles by McGann and Farrell. He had perfect command of the ball and struck out one man. The locals played better in the field than did the visiters, the former making only one fielding error against three for Brooklyn. Time of game, 2h. 15m. The score:

Brooklyn.....	1	1	0	0	0	2	2	0	0	—6

The Brooklyns defeated the home team May 28, in a close and exciting game, and by doing so were able to leave for their home in the East in the lead in the pennant race. The brilliant work between these teams in this series of games was sufficient to draw out a large crowd to witness this contest. On account of the crowd hits to the outfield counted for only two bases. The Brooklyns presented Hughes as their pitcher, and he did great work. It was this fact chiefly that enabled the visitors to win. The locals could do little or nothing with his delivery, and two of the three hits credited to the home team were the merest scratches. The visitors put up a magnificent game in the field, only one error, and that not very costly, being charged to them. Casey made a fumble of a liner. Beside their good work in the field they batted Powell quite consistently, and when they needed a hit they managed to make it. Their work at the bat resulted in nine singles, two doubles and a triple. At a critical moment in the seventh inning, with a man on third and one on first, Daly cracked a beauty into right field crowd, sending in what proved the winning run. St. Louis was charged with two fielding errors. Wallace, of the home team, carried off the fielding honors, having eight assists at third base. Hughes allowed the locals three singles, gave seven bases on balls and struck out four men. The Brooklyns made twelve safe hits, including a triple bagger by Casey and doubles by Kelley and Daly, off Powell, who gave three bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out two men. Time of game, 2h. 10m. The score:

St. Louis.....	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	0— 1

Chicago vs. Washington.

The Washingtons easily convinced the Chicago people on May 25, at Chicago, Ill., that there were other heavy batting teams in the major league circuit besides the Philadelphias. They demonstrated this fact on the above date by hammering out a victory from the home team, pounding Callahan at will, while Weyhing, of the visiting team, was a puzzle in all except two innings—the first and seventh—and there the Chicagos fell upon him and batted in five runs. Weyhing was batted safely eight times, including a home run by Green and triple baggers by Ryan and Wolverton, gave one base on balls, made a wild pitch and struck out two men. The Washingtons gathered fourteen safe hits, including a home run by Freeman, triple baggers by Bonner and Padden, and a two baser by Weyhing, off Callahan, who hit two batsmen with pitched balls. McGuire led in batting, with four safe hits. Each team was credited with three fielding errors. Time of game, 1h. 55m. The score:

Chicago.....	3	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	0	0—6

McFarland, the pitcher turned over to Washington by Brooklyn in the deal that brought Farrell and Casey to Brooklyn, pitched a game against the Chicagos on May 26 that must have made Manager Hanlon scratch his cranium and think how nicely the young man would fit in his team. But he only sighed and said: "It might have been." The young man pitched such gilt edge ball that the great Windy City aggregation made only six safe hits, including a two bagger by Wolverton off his delivery, and they were kept so wide apart that not a run could be obtained to break the monotony of cyphers. He gave three bases on balls and hit another batsman with a pitched ball, but still they could not score. Taylor, too, pitched superbly, but received poor support. He allowed the visitors only two safe hits, and they were double baggers by Cassidy and Padden, and he struck out two men. Chicago made only two errors, but as they were bunched in the fourth inning, and were followed by Cassidy's double bagger, two runs resulted. Washington also made two fielding errors, but they were of no benefit to the locals. Time of game, 1h. 40m. The score:

From the way the game started between these teams on May 27 it looked as if another sensational struggle might be witnessed. For five innings not the least semblance of a run was sighted, while safe hits were few and far between. Both teams were playing the fastest kind of ball, and it was a pitcher's battle in every sense of the word. In the sixth inning, however, a climax was reached. In that inning the locals grouped four singles and a double, and, aided by three errors, chased five men across the plate with as many runs, and virually won the game right there. In the seventh inning the visitor tallied a run and broke the long string of ciphers they were collecting as a souvenir for their afternoon's outing. Two sensational catches by Green, of the home team, were the cause of stirring the enthusiasts up to the highest pitch. Both pitchers did great work, but Griffith received the better support and was also more effective at critical times. The Washingtons made six safe hits, including double baggers by Cassidy and O'Brien, off Griffith, who gave two bases on balls and struck out two men. Dineen had better command, but was unfortunate in having five of the seven safe hits, including a two baser by Green, bunched in the sixth inning, when all of the runs scored by the locals were made. He also struck out two men. The visitors were charged with six fielding errors while the home team made only one. Time of game, 1h. 40m. The score:

Chicago.....	0	0	0	0	0	5	0	0	—5

The Washingtons won the final game of this series May 28, in a contest that had a close and exciting finish. The Chicagos led up to the ninth inning, and it then looked as if it was all over with the visitors, except the shouting. But after two hands had been quickly disposed of in the ninth the Washingtons developed a batting streak, and pounded Phyle for four singles and a double, which netted three runs and gave them a lead the locals could not overcome. The sudden batting streak seemed to paralyze the home team, and before they recovered from its effects the game was finished. Carelessness in running the bases cost the Chicagos one or more runs in the sixth inning, the only one in which they batted Weyhing to any extent. They seemed to think they had such a sure thing that they grew indifferent. Weyhing started in to pitch for the visitors, and did exceedingly well until the sixth inning, when the locals began to bat his delivery quite freely. He was then replaced by Baker. The Chicagos made eight safe hits off Washington's two pitchers. Weyhing gave four bases on balls and struck out one man. The visitors made fourteen safe hits, including a two baser by Mercer, off Phyle, who gave two bases on balls and struck out one man. The Chicagos put up a perfect fielding game, while Washington made three errors. Time of game, 1h. 40m. The score:

Washington...	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	3—4

Louisville vs. New York.

All the phraseollgies in the English language would be inadequate to describe what really happened to the New Yorks on May 25, at Louisville, Ky. There are a few sentences used in the baseball vocabulary, such as blanked, whitewashed, shut out and skunked, but they only faintly tell the harrowing tale. It was not bad enough to prevent the visitors from getting a run, but the locals had to add insult to injury by shutting them out without a solitary safe hit. Philippi pitched a superb game and was practically invincible to the New Yorks. It is a mooted question whether Philippi pitched a no hit game or whether Louisville played without an error. The only room for doubt was Doheny's grounder to Ritchey in the eighth inning. It was hot, but there was a chance to force a man at second base and Ritchey failed to hold the ball. Doheny was not batted hard, but he was very unsteady in his delivery. Then, too, George Davis saved him from a drubbing by some sensational stops when men were on bases. Davis accepted all except one of thirteen chances. Doheny was batted safely four times, gave eight bases on balls, hit two other batsmen with pitched balls and struck out three men. Philippi gave two bases on balls and struck out one man. New York was charged with six errors and Louisville with one. Time of game 1h. 45m. The score:

While the New Yorks did not repeat the trick on the home team, May 26, that the latter worked off on them the day before, they came near doing so. They shut the locals out without a run, even if they did fail to add the "no hit" accompaniment. Carrick has been playing in "a run of hard luck" all season. He has been unfortunate in drawing the losing end in a majority of the games he has pitched thus far this year, and, thinking it about time he had reached the turn in his lane, he went into this contest with considerable confidence in his ability to throw down the home team, and he succeeded most admirably. The game was an errorless one, nothing approaching a miscue being made on either side, and after the second inning there was not the semblance of a run. Cunningham was counted on to repeat Philippi's performance of the preceding day, but while his intentions were good, his actions were a failure. He was hit hard and often, but after the second inning he kept the hits so far apart that they went for naught. Davis and Gleason, by the fastest kind of fielding, cut down many a promising hit around short and second base. In fact, their work was of the highest order, Davis accepting all of ten chances and Gleason all of eight, at short and second, respectively. The New Yorks won the game by bunching their hits in the first and second innings. The visitors made thirteen safe hits, including double baggers by Van Haltren and Grady, off Cunningham, who struck out one man. Carrick was batted safely six times, including a two baser by Ritchey, and struck out one man. Both pitchers had excellent command and had no misplays charged to them. It was a short, sharp game and abounded in many sensational plays. It required only 1h. 20m. to play. The score:

The New Yorks won again May 27, and, while it was not a particularly brilliant fielding contest, the visitors did not play as loosely in the field as did the home team. Then, too, New York hit the ball harder and oftener than did the Louisvilles, and to that cause more than anything else can its success be accounted for. Meekin pitched a very good game when all things are considered. In only two innings—the third and fourth—could the locals bunch their hits to any extent, when they made five of the six runs that went to their credit, and things looked interesting for a few minutes. In the ninth the Louisvilles made another bid

New York scored another victory May 25, taking three of the four games played with the Louisvilles. For four innings the game was beautifully contested, with the locals in the van. In the fifth, however, the visitors bunched three triple baggers and scored as many runs, and took a lead they held until the end. Though the Louisvilles played poorly in the field, their seven errors gave only one run, Leach falling down twice in the third inning, and New York scored its first run. Both Doheny and Philippi pitched excellent ball, but the three long safe hits in the fifth won the game for the Gothamites. Grady led in batting, with three safe drives. Foster made two of the remaining three hits credited to New York. Louisville scored two runs in the second inning. Decker was hit with a pitched ball and Ritchey followed with a safe one back of Gleason. Both scored on Kittridge's triple bagger. Two errors by Leach, of the home team, and Grady's single enabled Foster to score in the third inning. Foster started the fifth inning with a triple bagger. Van Haltren also tripled, and Grady, not to be outdone, likewise hit for three bases. The latter scored on Wilson's long fly. Louisville again scored in the seventh, and that ended the run getting. New York played faultlessly in the field. Doheny was batted safely six times, including a triple bagger, gave two bases on balls, hit another batsmen with a pitched ball and struck out one man. New York batted Philippi safely six times, including three triple baggers. He gave one base on balls, made a wild pitch and struck out one man. Time of game, 1h. 30m. The score:

Pittsburg vs. Philadelphia.

There must be something wrong with the Pittsburg air. It must be infectious for extra inning games. There have been more of that kind of contests there this season than in almost all the other cities put together. On May 25, at Smoketown, the Philadelphia and Pittsburg teams lengthened their arguments into ten innings before the latter would concede a victory to the visitors. Both pitchers were touched up quite lively, but each succeeded in extricating himself from several bad places, and runs came at rare intervals. Childs, who is playing in Delehanty's place, during the latter's temporary absence, was very much in evidence at the bat, making four safe drives. Pittsburg tied the score in the eighth inning, but neither side scored in the ninth. In the tenth singles by Childs, Lajoie and Flick gave the Phillies what proved to be the winning run. The Pittsburgs made ten safe hits, including triple baggers by McCarthy, Williams and Clark and two doubles by Ely, off Platt, who gave two bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out one man. The Phillies batted Paine safely eleven times, including a triple bagger by Childs and a two baser Lauder. He gave one base on balls, hit a another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out four men. Time of game, 2h. 20m. The score:

Philadelphia.....	2	0	0	1	0	2	0	0	0	1	—6
Pittsburg.....	0	2	1	0	1	0	0	1	0	0	—5

The Philadelphias acted as if they were in a trance during the first five innings of the game played May 26, but when they did realize the hopeless condition they were in they made things hum for awhile. However they began their good work too late, and then stopped it too early to reap the benefits they should have derived from it had they continued it a little longer. In the seventh and eighth innings, with men on the bases, the Phillies had elegant opportunities to score a tieing run, even if they had not sent in enough to give them a victory, but they were not equal to the emergency on those occasions. Pitcher Fifield, although quite freely batted, would have landed his team a winner had they done the batting they were capable of doing, or have done at other times. Rhines, who began pitching for the home team, prevented the visitors from making a solitary safe hit until the sixth inning, when one hit and an error brought in a run. In the seventh and eighth innings six hits, including a double bagger by Lajoie, netted four runs. Tannehill replaced Rhines in the ninth inning, and retired the Phillies in the order they came to the bat. Rhines gave three bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out one man. The locals batted Fifield safely fourteen times, including triple baggers by Donovan and Ely, and doubles by McCreery and Williams. He gave four bases on balls, and hit another batsman with a pitched ball. Philadelphia made one error and Pittsburg two. Time of game, 2h 10m. The score:

Philadelphia...	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	2	0	—5

Cincinnati vs. Boston.

The Western teams are beginning to realize that they are not the "whole thing" in the major league pennant race. The Eastern end of the circuit is what has caused the trouble and set the Westerners to thinking. The champion Bostons dropped into Cincinnati on May 25, to give the locals a brief argument before returning home, and the first day's session was a hummer, in which the visitors did all the storming. The locals were fortunate in that they were not shut out without a run, and are congratulating themselves that they managed to chase one man across the plate and saved themselves from that ignominy. The locals touched Nichols up quite lively, but as a rule the hits were so far apart that they proved unprofitable. Dwyer pitched for the home team and did exceedingly well for four innings, but was batted so freely in the next three innings that three runs resulted. Hahn relieved him in the eighth. Cincinnati made eight safe hits, including a double bagger by Beckley, off Nichols, who gave one base on balls and struck out four men. Boston made ten safe hits, including double baggers by Stahl and Collins, off the two local pitchers. Dwyer gave three bases on balls, hit another batsman with a pitched ball and struck out one man. Not a fielding error was made on either side. Time of game, 1h. 45m. The score:

Boston.....	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	0	0	—3

The champions held a straight flush on May 26, and made the Cincinnatis look like a pair of duces. They not only beat the latter, but they shut them out without a run. Pitcher Hickman, whose picture appears in another column, was given an opportunity to show whether or not he is of the major league calibre. Of course one game does not win a pennant, at least not at this stage of the proceedings, but he did well enough to be given another trial in the near future. He was not as steady in his delivery as one would wish, but for all that he was practically invincible when men were on the bases and a hit was needed. Then, too, his support was almost perfect, only one error being made behind him. In fact, the locals also fielded finely, only one error being charged to them. Hahn was an easy mark for the Bostons, and they hammered away at him all through the contest. He was lucky enough to keep the hits so well apart that they never yielded more than one run until the eighth inning, when they made as many as they had scored in all the other innings. The visitors batted him safely twelve times, including triple baggers by Stahl (twice) and Collins (twice), the latter also making a two baser, and doubles by Long, Duffy, Lowe and Clarke. He struck out three men. The Cincinnatis made only three scattering singles off Hickman, who gave two bases on balls, hit two other batsmen with pitched balls, and struck out one man. Time of game, 1h. 40m. The score:

It was plainly evident that the Cincinnatis are not in Boston's class; at least no other conclusion could be formed after seeing the results of the three games in the opening series, for Boston again won on May 27, making it three straight victories. On this occasion the champions outclassed the locals in all points of play. Lewis pitched a much better and more effective game than did Phillips, and the visitors outbatted and outfielded the home team. Duffy and Beckley led their respective teams in batting, the former making four safe hits and the latter three. Stafford's fielding was a feature. He captured five difficult fly balls, several of which had the appearance of being good for extra bases. The Cincinnatis carried a look of distress and acted as if they would be glad when the agony was over and the champions had departed for the East or any other old place so long as they got out of their bailiwick. If the Cincinnatis had any championship aspirations before the Bostons arrived in their city they must hold dubious views on that subject now, for they certainly made a poor showing against the champions in these three games. Thus far this season the Bostons have demonstrated one fact, and that is they are stronger in the pitcher's position than they have ever before been at this stage of the proceedings. In Nichols, Willis, Lewis and Hickman they have a quartet of pitchers to draw a winner from. Lewis did great work in this game, allowing the Cincinnatis seven safe hits, including a triple bagger by Beckley and doubles by Smith and McPhee, gave one base on balls and struck out five men. The champions made twelve safe hits, including double baggers by Stahl, Stafford and Bergen, off Phillips, who gave three bases on balls and struck out three men. Boston made only one fielding error and Cincinnati three. Time of game, 2h. The score:

Cleveland vs. Baltimore.

The uncertainties of the national game were fully illustrated in the contest between the above named teams on May 25, at Cleveland, O. The Baltimores were naturally selected as the winners by long odds, they having played such wonderfully strong games all season, but a "sure thing" sometimes goes contrary when one least expects it. This was the case with the Baltimores. Pitcher Hughey proved the stumbling block in the way of the visitors' success. He proved very effective and struck out some of Baltimore's best batsmen at critical junctures. He was hit quite hard at times, but was a puzzler when hits were needed to send in runs. He was batted safely eight times, including a triple bagger by Lachance and doubles by McGraw (twice), Holmes and McKenna, gave four bases on balls, hit two other batsmen with pitched balls and struck out five men. Miller and McKenna, the visitors' two pitchers, were hit safely nine times, all singles, but they were bunched at the right time and few were wasted. Miller gave two bases on balls. McKenna hit one batsman with a pitched ball and struck out one man. Miller was replaced by McKenna in the fourth inning. Baltimore made five fielding errors and Cleveland four. Time of game, 2h. 20m. The score:

Baltimore.....	1	0	0	0	0	3	0	2	0	—6
Cleveland.....	1	0	4	1	0	0	0	2		—8

The Baltimores easily reversed the above result on May 26, and in doing so gave the Forest City enthusiasts a batting matinee. They hit the ball hard and often, and fielded brilliantly, not a misplay marring their good work in the field. The visitors' all around work was quite a contrast to that done by the home team. The latter were weak at the bat and fielded like a lot of amateurs. While only two fielding errors were charged to them, this did not begin to tell the story of their poor work. Sudhoff started in to pitch for the Clevelands, but he was so freely batted and had such poor command of the ball that he was replaced by Knepper, but the latter was no improvement over his predecessor. The Baltimores made nineteen safe hits, including a triple bagger by Holmes and a two baser by Lachance, off Cleveland's two pitchers. Sudhoff gave four bases on balls and struck out one man. Knepper gave two bases on balls and struck out two men. Kitson began pitching for the Baltimores, but afterwards gave way to Miller. Cleveland made six safe hits off the two men. Kitson gave two bases on balls and struck out three men. Miller gave one base on balls and struck out one man. Time of game, 1h. 45m. The score:

Cincinnati vs. Baltimore.

The glorious uncertainties of the game were fully exemplified in the contest between the above named teams on May 28, at Cincinnati, O. Of course, poor pitching and a few errors were chiefly responsible for the meteoric changes in the score, in which one side lead and then the other. It was a pitcher's "At home," and the callers were so numerous that three of the local "twirlers" were completely used up. Manager Ewing, of the home team, first presented Dammann, but one inning sufficed him. Hawley was next trotted to the post, and he held the centre of the diamond for seven rounds, when he was knocked out. Taylor pitched the last inning, and did far worse for the short time he was in the scuffle than either of his predecessors. The Baltimores made sixteen safe hits, including a home run drive by O'Brien, a triple and double bagger by Holmes and a two baser by Brodie, off the three local pitchers. Dammann gave one base on balls. Hawley gave four bases on balls, made a balk and struck out two men. Taylor hit two batsmen with pitched balls and struck out one man. The Cincinnatis batted McGinnity safely ten times, including double baggers by Smith and Beckley. He gave two bases on balls and hit two other batsmen with pitched balls. Cincinnati made two fielding errors and Baltimore four. Time of game, 2h. The score:

Baltimore....	2	0	2	0	0	0	2	3	6	—15
Cincinnati ...	0	0	6	2	0	0	0	0	1	— 9

Philadelphia vs. Cleveland.

These teams met May 29, at Philadelphia, Pa., and played off the game originally scheduled for May 18, at Cleveland, but was then postponed by rain. Superior batting helped the Phillies to a victory, as their fielding was poor, especially at short, when Cross was charged with three errors. Donahue was in good form and pitched effectively, allowing the visitors only five safe hits, including a triple bagger by Harley, which sent in the only run scored by the visitors. Besides this he gave two bases on balls and hit another batsman with a pitched ball. The Phillies found Hughey's pitching quite to their liking. This was particularly true in the case of Flick, who rapped out four safe singles. While the home team, as a committee on the whole, gathered fourteen safe hits, including a triple bagger by Cooley and a two baser by Douglass, off Hughey's delivery. Otherwise he was very steady, having excellent command, striking out four of the home batsmen. The Phillies were charged with making four fielding errors and the Clevelands three. Flick's all around work was a feature. He batted well and fielded finely. Time of game, 1h. 45m. The score:

Cleveland.....	0	0	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	—1

DIAMOND FIELD GOSSIP.

Latest Sayings and Doings of the Baseball Fraternity.

There were several changes made recently by the clubs of the Inter-State League. Eddie Zinram, catcher of Ft. Wayne, was released and is now a regular Inter-State umpire and making a success of it. George Keib was released by Ft. Wayne and resigned by the same club. Wheeling released Young, who was formerly of Dayton. Pitchers Streaker and Heiberger have both been released by Dayton. Streaker pitched a fine game in New Castle last week, and many there thought he would prove to be a good one. Otto Rapp, a former infielder of Springfield, has been signed by Dayton in order to give Jimmy Downey a good rest. Right Fielder McCready, of Youngstown, was so badly injured in a game at Ft. Wayne that the doctors say he will not be able to play again this season. Armour's Dayton pitchers are in good shape, and Morris, Carter and Gilpatrick are out of the game.

Manager Manning, of the Kansas City team, is dissatisfied with the showing his men are making in the Western League race, and is busy signing new men to strengthen the team. New material signed last week are Jack Boyle, catcher; William Hulen, short stop, and Jake Gettman, outfielder. Egan, pitcher of Kansas City, shut out the Milwaukee team, 2 to 0, last week.

Harry Steinfeldt, of the Cincinnati team, in speaking about Capt. Gleason's action in holding Carrick on third base in the first game between Cincinnati and New York, May 22, at Cincinnati, O., said: "I think Gleason exercised good judgment in holding Pitcher Carrick on third base in the ninth inning of the opening game. Had he tried to score, and Miller's ball would have come to me right, I would have caught him by ten feet. I was only about ten feet behind second, and the throw to the plate would have been an easy one. By stopping Carrick on third the New Yorks lost the game, but it was baseball. There were two good batters coming up. A fly to the outfield by Davis would have scored him. It broke bad for the New Yorks, but it was baseball, and playing the game will win nine times out of ten."

The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle springs a bird story in which Dennis Brouthers figures as the hero. According to that paper it was: "Away back in 1884, when Brouthers was a colt, he was playing with Detroit." There is a lot more, but this will do for the present. We will say that Brouthers was not a "colt," in the sense it means, in 1884, nor was he playing with Detroit that year. Big "Dan" commenced playing ball nearly ten years before that period. He joined the Buffalos in 1881, and remained with them until the end of the season of 1885, when he, White, Richardson and Rowe were sold to the Detroit Club, and that was Buffalo's last year in the National League. So he could not possibly have played with Detroit against Buffalo in 1884. It may have happened in some other city, and in some other year, and possibly to some other bird while "Dan" may have been an "old boss." Try again. You still have one guess and two thinks coming.

Phil Glade, left fielder of the Cedar Rapids Western Association team, has been released. His brother Fred Glade, the pitcher, has been given leave of absence to get his arm in shape. Rule 46—The umpires shall not order a batsman out unless appealed to by the other side. N. The two teams will be of nearly equal strength, and so far as possible the same in each of the two games with the other clubs. The Belfield team had made a total of 68, with one wicket down, when the stumps were drawn. Wood, who had scored 100 and 101 on the same grounds on preceding Saturdays, thus accomplished the wonderful batting feat of making three centuries in three consecutive unfinished innings, being not out each time.

A CABLEGRAM states that J. Hearne and A. E. Trott bowled in sensational form for Middlesex against Somersetshire on May 23, at Lord's, London, Eng., the former taking five wickets for fourteen runs in the first inning, and the latter securing seven wickets for eighteen runs in the second inning. The Somersetshire eleven were retired for a total of 35 in the first inning.

Sharpless made 45 of a total of 170 for three wickets compiled by the Haverford College team against an eleven of the Philadelphia Club, May 16, at Philadelphia, Pa. The collegians declared their inning closed after three wickets were down, and then disposed of the home team for a total of 54, of which H. L. Clark got 24.

ELEVENS of the Linden and Merion Clubs played May 20, at Haverford, Pa., the former team winning by a score of 117 to 90. G. Morris bowled three wickets of the Linden team for 2 runs.

BOLD AND WALKER bowled effectively for the Lawrence eleven against the Lynn Wanderers, May 20, at Lynn, Mass., the former taking four wickets for sixteen runs, and the latter securing six wickets for thirty runs. A MEETING of the Associated Cricket Clubs of Philadelphia, Pa., was held May 24, when it was decided that each contestant in local championship games should alternate in having choice of innings, the choice in the first match being given to the captain of the visiting team. The change was the result of the Germantown Club entering two teams in the championship series and playing the majority of games on its opponents' grounds. It was announced that nothing definite had yet been heard from the Australian team in relation to the visit to Philadelphia, although it is probable that the Australians will decide to accept the liberal terms guaranteed for a series of games in the United States in preference to returning home by way of South Africa, which tour would be sure to prove a financial failure.

TWO CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES of the Metropolitan District Cricket League series were played May 27, at Bergen Point, N. J., the two teams of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club defeating the New York and Newark teams, respectively. C. P. Harditch scored 101 of a total of 190 for four wickets compiled by team A against the New York team, it being the first century of the season in this vicinity. F. W. T. Stiles made 48 and helped Harditch to secure the victory. The New York team presented only eight men and had previously been dismissed for a total of 67, of which C. Byers contributed 24. The Knickerbocker Athletic Club's team B defeated the Newark team by totals of 127 to 89. G. A. Gittens, with 31, and A. Backus, with 37, were the highest scorers for their respective elevens.

F. H. BATES SCORED 122 of a total of 269 made by an eleven of the Germantown Club against the Merion Club in the opening championship contest, May 27, at Haverford, Pa. The game was left unfinished, the Merion team having made 55 for five wickets at the call of time. Another eleven of the Germantown Club defeated the Radnor eleven by a score of 305 for nine wickets to 34, in a championship game on the same day at Philadelphia. W. L. Freeland compiled 88, H. I. Brown 65 and F. Pearson got 64 of the home team's total. E. T. Comfort took six wickets of the Radnor team at the cost of fourteen runs.

R. MACDONALD, who is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and formerly played with the Belmont Club, of Philadelphia, Pa., had the best batting average in the Queensland Cricket Association's championship series last season, scoring an aggregate of 812 runs in twelve innings, in which he was eight times not out. He scored three centuries—200, 149 and 141—without being retired once. Dr. Macdonald recently left Queensland for a trip to England.

THE DECIDING CONTEST for the championship of the Intercollegiate Association took place May 27, at Boston, Mass., the Harvard University eleven then defeating the Haverford College eleven by 96 to 38, the totals of the first inning. J. A. Lester and A. C. Wood bowled very successfully for their respective elevens, the former securing seven wickets at the cost of fifteen runs, and the latter taking five wickets for twenty runs.

Gilbert scored 22, not out, for the visitors, and succeeded in securing a draw.

THE SIXTH GAME of the Australian team's tour in England was played May 25, 26, at Manchester, the visitors then batting first and scoring a total of 267, which proved to be sufficient to defeat the Lancashire County eleven by an inning and 84 runs, and thus securing their third victory.

INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPIONS.

University of Pennsylvania Makes a Sweep—Three New Records.

Among the most successful field meetings ever held by the Intercollegiate Athletic Association was that which took place at Manhattan Field, this city, May 26, 27, and which, agreeably to general expectation, terminated in a point victory for the representatives of the University of Pennsylvania, for the third time in succession, their score footing up 57 to 28 for Harvard and 22½ for Yale. On the opening day, when the preliminary heats were decided, the special feature of the performances was the placing by A. C. Kraenzlein of the running long jump to his credit, he covering a distance of 24ft. 4½in., thus surpassing last year's achievement of Myer Prinstein, who on this occasion got second place, Kraenzlein not competing in the final, as the above achievement rendered him safe, and he consequently reserved his powers. On the second day the latter created a fresh collegiate record by lowering the figures for the high hurdle race to 15⅗s., thus beating by one-fifth second the former record. Kraenzlein's best record for the event is 15¼s., which constitutes the best amateur performance. The other intercollegiate record performance was that of Long, of Columbia, who reduced the time for the quarter mile run to 49⅗s. The collegiate record is 49s., made by W. C. Downs, in a trial on the Harvard University grounds, some years ago. The other events were all spiritedly contested, and awoke the enthusiasm of the three thousand or so spectators present on the closing day. Summary:

The Turf.

BANASTAR WINS THE HANDICAP.

W. H. Clark's Four Year Old Takes the Big Classic Handily—Lanky Bob Second, with the Favorite, Filigrane, Third.

About twenty-five thousand enthusiasts journeyed to Gravesend, L. I., N. Y., May 27, to witness the annual renewal of the Brooklyn Handicap, the feature of the card provided by the Brooklyn Jockey Club for the inauguration of its Spring meeting. The big affair was the fourth number on the card, and after quite a long delay at the post, caused by the bad onduct of several horses, the field was sent away on the sixth break to a good start. As they shot past the timers' stand Filigrane showed in front, with imp. Lanky Bob, Maxine and George Keene, head and head, in second place. Before the sixteenth post was reached, however, George Keene detached himself from the bunch and jolted Filigrane. The two set a terrific pace for the next quarter of a mile, opening up a couple of lengths. On the turn Don de Oro, Algol and Banastar closed up close to the leaders, keeping their positions to the three-quarters. Filigrane, still in the lead, finished the mile, with Keene hanging on his stirrup, in the fast time of 1:39¾. At this point, however, Maher let out a rap on Banastar, and coming like a whirlwind on the rail took command. George Keene threw up the fight and went back, but Filigrane hung on gamely. Banastar, once in the lead, won as he pleased. Little Maher, when he saw that the race was practically won, simply steadied his mount, landing him winner by three lengths from Lanky Bob, who came very fast in the last sixteenth and beat Filigrane out a length for the place. The time, 2:06¾, not only made a new handicap record, but a track record as well. Filigrane was a heavily played favorite, but Banastar was the strongest second choice in the groupe and his victor was in consequence popular with a majority of the crowd. Lanky Bob furnished the surprise of the season in finishing second among such a strong field of known "good 'uns." The remaining races on the card attracted the customary amount of attention before and after the star event. Summary: First race—All ages, six furlongs—The Oneck Stable's Armament, 99, Odom, 8 to 1, won; Cormorant, 113, Taral, 8 to 1, second; Dr. Parker, 102, McCue, 15 to 1, third. PROF. FRED MACART'S

AFRICAN BABOON, DOG AND MONKEY COMEDIANS.

GREATEST ANIMAL SHOW ON EARTH.

After 11 months' engagement with Barnum & Bailey's Circus, Prof. Macart returned to America. Opened on Hopkins', Kohl, Castle and Orpheum circuits for 20 weeks, May 24, Gilmore's Auditorium, Phila., with the funniest, smartest, cleverest, most amusing, attractive and pleasing animal act before the American public. Some of the novelties in this most wonderful act:

BABOON CLOWN, BABOON GROOM,
BABOON BICYCLIST,
SOMERSAULT MONKEYS, JOCKEY MONKEYS,
HOOCHEE COOCHEE DOG,
SKIRT DANCING DOG, ACROBATIC DOG,
COMPANY OF ACTING DOGS
Presenting an EMOTIONAL DRAMA, Entitled
"A WIDOW'S DEVOTION."
Introducing the Sensational Effect,
THE RESCUE OF A CHILD FROM A BURNING COTTAGE.

READ HALF A DOZEN OF THE THOUSANDS OF PRESS NOTICES THESE ANIMALS HAVE RECEIVED.

Fashion and people turned out with the usual unanimity last night to see the great dog and monkey turn, and the rest of the bill, and they were not disappointed. The four legged contingent alone would carry any show. Prof. Macart is credited on the programme with being the proprietor and trainer of the troupe—but he isn't. He belongs, with the rest, to a large, rampant, tempestuous monkey, who runs the entire performance, and runs it to a finish. That monkey is a dream. He is the concentrated quintessence of the Baudar log. What he dosen't think of to do he does by accident, and it is just as funny. He owned the house before he had been on the stage a minute, and everybody was writhing with joy by the time the curtain dropped. The only second he was quiet was while a nondescript dog, in costume, danced the hula hula, when he discreetly, not to say disapprovingly, turned his back, with a haughty New England scorn. Then the dogs. They are the cleverest things that have been seen here. They do all kinds of novel and quaint tricks from a series of clean, graceful bareback somersaults by a fox terrier, to a serpentine dance by an unclassified but truly dog, which swirled and swayed on his hind legs and waived his voluminous draperies, until he looked like a pocket edition of Papinta in the lily dance.—LOS ANGELES TIMES.

Prof. Macart's Dog and Monkey Show was most interesting. The professor had the dogs trained to do anything and everything, much the same way that rational human beings would have done them. The monkeys rode bicycles and performed other feats equally as interesting. There have been many magnificent animal shows in this city, but nothing like the Macart entertainment. The dogs and monkeys present a regular drama, doing all sorts of delightful and mystifying things. They are trained to a degree of excellence, which it is impossible to describe adequately in words. From the clown monkey to the most sedate canine the standard of brute intelligence exhibited by Prof. Macart is nothing short of wonderful. It is a performance that will have to be seen to be appreciated.—NEW ORLEANS DAILY PICAYUNE.

Prof. Macart's performing dogs and monkeys are great favorites. They close the show, and many who go to the theatre solely to see them sit patiently through the entire bill to witness their performance Dogs do everything. Some of them box with regulation gloves, others dance drapery dances and couchee couchee dances, and four of them enact a drama. Then there are monkeys who ride dogs with the grace of veteran circus riders, and who perform all manner of feats.—OMAHA DAILY BEE.

The feature of the Auditorium show at Fairmount Park this week is the performance of Macart's trained dogs and monkeys. The excellence of the act lies more in the quality than in the number of dogs and monkeys shown. Prof. Macart works his pets with a rapidity unusual in trained animal performances, and the dogs and monkeys go through their performance in dashing style. The performance is conspicuous for the absence of the usual simple but attractive tricks, new and novel features being the order. The special features are the dancing and the boxing dogs. Three of the dogs, arrayed in ample skirts, represent Papinta, La Loie Fuller and Zerito, and their evolutions furnish a world of amusement to the audience, and especially the little folks. Pepper and Mustard, a pair of dogs of uncertain breed, but with a flavor of the Scotch terrier, give a three round boxing bout of the whirlwind order. They appear in ring costume a la Fitzsimmons and Corbett, with their forefeet encased in boxing gloves, and at the call of time advance toward each other in an upright position and maul away at each other like a pair of young colored amateurs. At the close of the third round a third dog appears on the scene as a policeman and arrests the fighters, and a second later a team of spaniels dashes on the stage with a patrol wagon, into which the pugilists are hustled. A breakdown occurs, and in the excitement the offenders make good their escape. Another clever act is a fire scene, in which the dogs take the part of firemen and rescue doll babies from a burning building, followed by a funeral scene. The dogs are nearly all expert acrobats and throw somersaults with an ease and grace that is astonishing. The monkeys appear as tight rope walkers, circus riders and acrobats.—KANSAS CITY STAR.

Macart's monkeys, or to speak with fine accuracy, monkey, gathered the lion's—or rather, monkey's—share of the laughing encores. He, the prize ape, was unanimously voted the hottest thing that ever twisted a tail before a vaudeville audience. Strong men wept tears of joy, while little children and delicate women shrieked in ecstacy during his mad career on the Orpheum boards.—LOS ANGELES RECORD.

One of the greatest "special cards" presented to the public has been Macart's Great Dog and Monkey Show. It is impossible to conceive of the value of this offering unless one witnesses the performance given by Prof. Macart's pets. As an exhibition of animal cuteness it has no peer in this or any other country. The dog and monkey show will remain a feature of the supplemental bill for another week, and will be sure to amuse the amusement lovers of this city. The eminent office of the vaudeville is to amuse, and the Macart specialty fulfills its destiny accurately. In fact, the admirable character of this attraction is so generally recognized that it has advanced Hopkins' St. Charles Theatre another degree in the standard of excellence.—DAILY ITEM, New Orleans.

New Plays.

"His Japanese Wife,"

A farcical comedy, in three acts, by Clay M. Greene, was given its first production on any stage May 8, at the Alcazar Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., by the house stock. The first act transpires in the study of Harry Merrifeld, a traveler and would-be author, who is just completing his first work, a treatise on Japan. In this he has been continuously interrupted by the persistent complaint of his jealous wife, Constance, who is assisted by her father in law, John Jewell, both believing that the subject of the book is improper, and tells the story of a love episode in Japan, in which both believe Merrifeld to have been implicated, in company with his friend and traveling companion, Michael Patrick McGuffin. It has been arranged by Mrs. Jewell, the angelic mother in law of Merrifeld, that in order to complete his book in peace he shall go alone to some place in the country whose whereabouts shall remain his secret. McGuffin, his friend, appears, and also objects to the publication of the Japanese marriage for two reasons, first, that his fiance, Bessie Stowe, would discard him, and second, because under the terms of his father's will neither he nor his juvenile stepmother, Ethel McGuffin, may marry without the consent of the other, except by loss of his or her interest in the estate. Ethel is suspicious that Michael is the husband of the Japanese marriage and is anxious to fasten it upon him, on account of his objections to her marriage with Livingstone Mudd. Merrifeld refuses to cut or alter his story, and when one of the suspicious ones is endeavoring to prove whether it be fact or fiction Miss Go, of Japan, the Japanese wife, suddenly appears upon the scene in company with her father, Sankiriki, a famous wrestler. On account of Michael's approaching marriage it is necessary that these newcomers be quartered out of the way, and Merrifeld is also anxious for this owing to the offensiveness of his father in law and the jealousy of his wife. It is agreed that Merrifeld shall take the two Japanese with him to his quiet retreat in the country, where, on the next day, Michael is to join them and propose some terms of settlement with reference to the escapades of the marriage contract. Merrifeld and the Japanese take their departure, but not before the watchful father in law has overheard the name of their proposed hiding place, and, in spite of the protest of his peacefully inclined wife, he starts in pursuit of the runaways, in company with Constance and Bessie. Act two is located at Summit Gap in the Catskills, a picturesque spot overlooking the valley of the Hudson. To this place Ethel and her lover with the name which prevents her marriage (Mudd) have come for the purpose of being away from the prying eyes of Michael, confident in the belief that their whereabouts will not be disclosed. This, however, is also the place which Merrifeld has chosen for his own retreat, and he is much depressed upon his arrival there with the two Japanese to find that his hiding place is no hiding place at all. The other two, however, being also to some extent compromised by being together in such a place, promise to keep it secret, but not until Merrifeld has been taken to task for having registered the Japanese woman at the hotel as his wife. Merrifeld attempts to clear himself by explaining that he had not registered himself at once, but to his surprise and horror found out that the landlord did. At this junction Michael arrives, and before he can effect an arrangement to get the Japanese out of the care of his friend, and prove to his step mother that he is not the hero of the Japanese story, his sweetheart arrives in company with Constance and Jewell, and Merrifeld's attempted concealment of his own apparent guilt leads to many complications and amusing situations. The act ends by the discovery of his name upon the registry, and, although the Japanese have been taken away by Michael, this is considered ample proof of his guilt and just grounds for a divorce. Act three occurs in the library of Merrifeld on the following morning. Nothing has been heard from the absent ones, and the waiting wife and mother are frantic. Sankiriki enters in great anger, and apparently bent on revenge. He tells a story of his daughter being abducted and himself cast into jail, but, his English being so imperfect, Mrs. Jewell can gather only a general idea of what he is saying, and Sankiriki withdraws to find his victim, leaving Mrs. Jewell in doubt who the party really is. Constance, Bessie and Jewell return from their chase after the runaway husband, and Bessie is happy over the supposed discovery that Michael is innocent. The others seem to have ample proof that Merrifeld is even more guilty than could have been believed possible, which is further strengthened by the appearance of Ethel and Mudd. At the same time Mr. Flogg, head of the Japanese mission, arrives and tells of a disgraceful story of the abandonment of Go by some man whose name is unknown to him, but he believes it to be Merrifeld. Michael comes to the house in search of Merrifeld and is horrified at seeing Go. She refuses, however, to notice him, having come to the conclusion that Merrifeld would be more to her liking. This strengthens the evidence in favor of Michael, as well as that against Merrifeld, who appear upon the scene, and Go declares her love for him and her rejection of Michael. Sankiriki returns to set upon injury to Michael, and in the complications which follow the latter is compelled to acknowledge his own guilt in order to clear his friend. Through the intervention of Mudd, the lawyer, it is apparent that the supposed marriage was only a promise to marry, and since Go has come to the conclusion that all "United States'" men are wicked she returns to Japan and her old lover, who she had discarded for Michael, the play ending happily.

"Private John Allen,"

A four act play, by Lee Arthur, secured its original production at Luckett & Dwyer's Columbia Theatre, Washington, D. C., May 22. The story: Private John Allen, the hero, wins his peculiar title through his humble but efficient service in the Confederate Army, and after the close of the war he became the leader of the democratic party in his native State, Louisiana. He aspires to the governorship, but is opposed by enemies in his own, as well as in the opposite, party. His war record is impugned, and in order to exonerate himself it becomes necessary for him to drag the woman he loves into the affair. This he refuses to do, and throws all his political strength in favor of his rival, Alexis Lemme, a creole gentleman, with whom he has formerly been at swords' point. Unknown to Allen, Lemme has secretly married his daughter, although there still stands to his discredit an entanglement with "Queen Bess" Stokes, a New York adventuress, who comes to Louisiana after Lemme's nomination in order to bring suit for the support of their child. Lemme applies to Allen for assistance in his dilemma, and the latter, in order to avoid a scandal at the expense of the leader of his party, consents to treat with the woman. His manly bearing so wins upon her that she consents to withdraw her suit and leave her child in Allen's care. This fact becomes known to Lem Blackman, Allen's political enemy and a brother in law to his betrothed. He stirs up a great scandal in the neighborhood, that Allen is living under the same roof with his innocent daughter. After the impetuous fashion of southern communities, and urged on by Blackman, the neighbors organize a committee, and call upon Allen for explanations, threatening unless they prove satisfactory to run him out of the State. Matters so shape themselves that Allen cannot explain without jeopardizing the success of his party at the polls, but, although his own political career is ended, he is vindicated in the eyes of the woman he loves, and the play ends happily. The following is the original cast: John Allen, Charles B. Hanford; Hon. Alexis Lemme, Harrington Reynolds; Col. Nat Stone, Charles W. King; Maj. Edgar Wasworth, Frank Mathieu; Phillip Stone, Alfred Hickman; Lem Blackman, Geoffrey Stein; Billy Wasson, J. R. Amory; Uncle Si, George Gaston; Tom Gibbon, J. B. Hollis; Ruth Blackman, Selene Johnson; Mildred Allen, Mary Van Buren; Rai Wasworth, Georgia Welles; Bessie Stokes, Alice Johnson.

"The Gunner's Mate,"

A melodrama, in four acts, by W. S. McKiernan and H. J. Gallagher, was given its first production on any stage May 15, at the Columbia Theatre, Newark, N. J., by the house stock. The story: Clement Carroll, gunner's mate of the U. S. S. New York, has a protege in the person of Arthur Gladden, a little boy known to the inmates of the lodging house as Blizzard. The lad's father was a shipmate of Clems, who died on a previous cruise. Before he died he entrusted his son to Clem's care and told him of his wrecked life. The boy is heir to a large fortune, but between him and it stands Dr. Herbert Quayley. The doctor is anxious to get the child out of the way, and when he discovers him in the lodging house he conceives a plan to innoculate Blizzard with the germs of a fatal disease. At this juncture Clem arrives home in time to save the boy's life. Foiled in this, the physician, with the assistance of Lukens, decides to shanghai the boy and send him off in a rotten vessel that will never return. Plum Duff, a waif of the streets, and her friend, "Brockie" Burns, learn of this scheme and inform Clem, and as the curtain falls on the first act Clem once more rescues the boy from the grasp of the villain. The second act takes place on board the flagship New York, at anchor off Tompkinsville. Dr. Quayley had been formerly a surgeon in the navy and was court martialed and suspended. He was afterward reinstated as ship's physician on the New York. Preparations are being made to get the ship to sea under sealed orders. A foreign sailor is desirous of having a letter, written in English, to an American girl, whom he has compromised. Clem is appealed to to do the task. He writes the letter, but before it can be delivered it falls into the hands of the doctor. As he is in love with Miss Emerson, he uses it to injure Clem in her estimation. The first scene of the third act shows the gun deck of the ship. She has put to sea, having been ordered to Bluefields. The discovery is made that the back connection of one of the boilers is leaking, and, as the fires cannot be drawn, volunteers are called for to undertake the dangerous task of repairing it. It falls to Clem's lot to do the work. The scene changes to the fire room, where Clem succeeds with his hazardous job and is duly rewarded. The last act brings us to the home of Miss Emerson, a year later. The doctor has foreigned her into an agreement to marry him, and it is the wedding day. All preparations are complete, and the clergyman is awaited to perform the ceremony. The New York has put into port that same day, and the friends of the little heir arrive to present the proofs of his identity. Mutual friends resort to a ruse to bring Clem and Mildred together, but Mildred seems broken spirited, and Clem is proud, and she leaves him as the strains of her wedding march are heard. Clem comes to his senses as the minister repeats the all important question, and stops the ceremony. At this juncture Lukens, whose mind has been affected, makes his appearance, and seeing the doctor, the cause of his ruin, a scuffle ensues, and they fall from the balcony together and are killed. The lovers are reunited, and the curtain falls. The cast: Clement Carroll, H. Coulter Brinker; Herbert Quayley, M. D., Robert Neil; Philip Farnsworth, John Shaw; Robert A. Burn, Joseph Totten; Ben Lukens, Frank Richardson; Arthur Gladden, Juliette de Drignan; 'Frisco Pete, Sedley Brown; Yorker, John Douglass; Jimmy Legs, George Neville; Marine, Harry Green; Gustave Ohlsen, Clement Hopkins; Jack Huntley, Charles Harrison; Bill Smith, Fred Pierson; Mildred Emerson, Una Abell; Plum Duff, Sadie Handy; Mrs. Lukens, Amy Stone; Nora, Alice May.

"V. C."

A melodrama, in one act, by Sutton Vane, was given its first production in this country May 22, at Forepaugh's Theatre, Philadelphia, Pa., by the stock company of the house. Originally produced April 13, 1891, at the Parkhurst Theatre, London, Eng., by the author and company. The story: Reginald St. John has proven to be the black sheep of the noble St. John family, and for some crime has received a life sentence, being incarcerated in Dartmoor prison. His brother, John St. John, owing to this disgrace to the family, has given up a brilliant military career and resigned his commission in the English army. John is living in seclusion in a house overlooking the prison, having with him Elsie, Reginald's young daughter, who does not know that her father is living. The shock of Reginald's downfall has caused the death of his wife, who previous to her marriage was also beloved by John. Reginald escapes and puts in an appearance, still dressed in his prison garb, at John's house. The brothers have a stormy interview. John upbraids Reginald, while he mocks at the Victoria Cross which was bestowed on John years before, and which Elsie had just playfully pinned on his coat. He bitterly compares John St. John, V. C.—Victoria Cross—with Reginald St. John, V. C.—vagabond convict; but the brothers are saved from a collision by the entrance of Elsie. The sight of the child who he learns is his, softens Reginald, and he pleads with his brother to help him escape. For the sake of the child and the woman they both loved he consents; but they are interrupted by the appearance of the officers in search of the escaped convict. Reginald, covered with a long coat and seated by the fire, is passed off as a servant, and Warden Young, who has entered, and who proves to be an old comrade in arms, whose life was saved by John, takes his word that there is no one in the house. A chance word from Elsie, however, spoils the almost successful stratagem, and Reginald gives himself up. Warden Young decides to take his man back to prison and say nothing about John's offense in aiding a convict to escape, but when John confesses to him that the convict is his brother, he shows his gratitude for John's act of bravery in saving his life by departing without Reginald, who is thus enabled to escape. The cast: John St. John, Harry Burkhardt; Reginald St. John, W. C. Carr; Warden Young, Walter B. Gilbert, and Elsie, Baby Miller.

MME. SEMBRICH'S CHOICE OF A NAME.

Mme. Sembrich tells an interesting story of the evolution of her name. "My father's surname," she says, "was Kochanska, and I thought there were too many "K's" in it for a prima donna, so I took my mother's maiden name, Sembrich, when I went on the stage. My full name was Paxede Marcelline Kochanska, and, thinking my middle name would prove less of a pronunciation puzzle to people outside my own Galicia than Paxede, I decided to give it preference.

"So I finally became Marcella Sembrich; but that was a long time after I began to study music. However, I can scarcely remember the time when I was not studying music. At four I was playing the piano. At six I took up the violin. Within two years I was playing with my father in concerts. I continued to study these instruments until I was fifteen, and then I discovered I had a voice. Soon afterward I went to Milan, and commenced studying under Lamperti."

Motor Race a Fizzle.

The fifteen miles motor paced match race between Eddie McDuffee and "Major" Taylor, that was to have taken place at Woodside Park, Philadelphia, Pa., May 27, proved a failure. In the last lap of the third mile McDuffee's steam motor began to leak and the race was stopped. Another trial was made, but after a second breakdown the event was declared off. Taylor and McDuffee then rode a five miles pursuit race, unpaced. McDuffee caught Taylor at two and three-quarter miles, in 6m. 28s. The five miles were finished by McDuffee in 12m. 1s. A one third mile race, professional, was won by Taylor in 53⅘s; Bobby Thompson, of Toronto, second; E. S. Aker, Philadelphia, third. The two miles handicap, professional, was won by Charles A. Church, Philadelphia; John Zimmerman, Philadelphia, second; Nat Butler, Boston, third. Time, 5m. 47⅘s.

Racing at Binghamton.

The initial race meet in the interior of the Empire State was held on Wednesday afternoon, May 24, at the track in Binghamton, N. Y., and it was attended by a goodly crowd, who were well entertained by the amateur riders participating. Summary:

Half mile, open.—Won by W. D. Scott, of Elmira; second, William McMichael, of Berwick, Pa.; third, G. H. Carrier, of Elmira. Time, 1m. 10s.

THE PROSPECT WHEELMEN, of North New York, N. Y., held an open century run on Sunday, May 28, the weekly run of the Century Road Club being merged with it, and there being 160 starters, including nine women, members of different clubs, of whom two were ladies of color. An unusual circumstance connected with the affair was that every one of the starters finished the course.

CHARLES M. MURPHY, of the Kings County Wheelmen, has not yet abandoned his pet idea of riding one mile in 1m. behind a locomotive and one car, on a stretch of smooth boards laid between the rails. He contemplates again making the attempt on a level stretch of ground near Babylon, L. I., during the State Division meet, June 29, 30, or July 1.

HERBERT C. GURNEE is stated to have completed, at Minneapolis, Minn., on May 21, a ride of five hundred miles, in 49h. 31m., according to Century Club rules. His actual riding time was 40h., he taking an hour's rest at the end of each fifty miles.

THE THOMSON BROTHERS (George, William and Morris) and J. R. Sanderson, in a trial against time at Glasgow, Scot., on May 15, created a fresh amateur quarter mile "quad" record by going the distance in 2⅘s.

The Ring.

"KID" MCPARTLAND AND "SPIKE" SULLIVAN were principals in an up and down fight, governed by no rules, that took place before the Lenox Athletic Club, this city, on Tuesday evening, May 23, the referee, who was supposed to understand the rules perfectly, allowing the boxers to violate them with impunity. The men fought victously throughout, Sullivan, who was the favorite, receiving the lion's share of punishment, although on a couple of occasions he put his opponent to sleep, pugilistically speaking. The ultimate result, the bout going the full twenty-five rounds agreed upon, was a decision in favor of McPartland. The winner had for attendants Bob Clark, Charley Duryea, Billy Needham and Al. McPartland, while those who waited upon "Spike" were Patsy Sweeny, Billy Gardner and Jack Sullivan. Rules were made to be observed, and a few more such engagements as this one should serve to keep away from the Lenox Club those who desire to support the game when properly conducted, under the direction of a referee who will enforce the rules.

JACK O'BRIEN AND MARTIN FLAHERTY furnished fistic fun for the patrons of the Lenox Athletic Club, in this city, on Monday evening, May 25. They were matched to go twenty-five rounds, at 126lb, and this they did, the fighting being rather rough and punctuated with fouls on the part of both men, which the referee allowed to continue, and both principals were considerably punished during the scrap. When the end of the twenty-fifth round came the referee gave the verdict in favor of O'Brien on the score of points.

CAFFER LEON AND "PINKY" EVANS came together for the second time on the evening of May 25, before the Waverly Athletic Club, of Yonkers, N. Y., the result of the first meeting not having proved satisfactory to the latter's friends, which resulted in favor of the former. The weight limit was 115lb, scaling at the ringside, and the outcome of a good fight was again in favor of Leon, who clearly demonstrated his superiority over his antagonist. Leon was seconded by his brother Benny and Charley White, while Paddy Mansfield and Simon Sullivan waited upon the loser.

TEDDY MCGOVERN AND SAMMY KELLY were principals to a very one sided boxing match before the Broadway Athletic Club, in this city, on Friday evening, May 26. They were scheduled to fight twenty-five rounds, but Kelly was so greatly outclassed that he never had a chance from the beginning, and, after being outfought at all points, he was finally knocked clean out in the fifth round. McGovern was a big favorite.

"DOC" HAMILTON AND JOE CAIN encountered each other before the Pelican Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, N. Y., on Saturday evening, May 27, having been matched to fight twenty rounds. Cain had a bit the best of the affair up to the eleventh round, in which Hamilton managed to plant a blow where it did the most good for him, as it put his adversary out of the battle, and he gained the decision.

MARTY MCCUE added another to his list of victories by defeating Danny McBride in a boxing match before the Greenwood Athletic Club, of Brooklyn, N. Y., on Saturday evening, May 27, the police interfering and stopping the fight in the tenth round, in order to save the latter from a knockout; consequently the referee declared Marty the victor.

JIM POFF got the verdict in the fifteenth round of a glove contest with Otto Seiloff, in the arena of the Hawthorne Athletic Club, Buffalo, N. Y., on the afternoon of May 27, the fight taking place in the open air and in the midst of a rainstorm. Seiloff was counted out.

HARRY FORBES, a Chicago product, and "Turkey Bill" Smith, hailing from the City of Quakers, contended for gate money, at 116lb, before the West End Club, of St. Louis, Mo., May 29, Smith suffering defeat in twelve rounds, he being unable to respond to the call for the thirteenth.

BOBBY DOBBS AND JERRY DRISCOLL fought at the National Sporting Club, London, Eng., May 29, the match being for fifteen rounds, for $500 a side and a purse of $500, at 152lb., and Dobbs won in the fourteenth round.

CHANGING HIS NAME.

Deborah Hancock was busily engaged in decorating her birthday cake. She sighed as she placed the last candle, one more than the previous year. How fast those little waxen milestones seem to multiply!

Several years before, when the whole surface of the cake was so thickly studded that she could find no place for the new taper, Miss Hancock paused to ponder.

Was not thirty-five a good age at which to lose count.

The temptation was great. But all false pretense was abhorrent to the sturdy Hancock nature. Prevarication even to one's self was not to be tolerated. And what folly could equal in silliness that of attempting to conceal one's age?

The tapers were red, white and blue. The Republic and Miss Deborah celebrated the anniversary of their birth upon the same day.

A light tap sounded at the door. Deborah carefully locked her pantry door before admitting her visitor.

"Mother wants to know if you won't go over to the picnic with us tomorrow."

"Me go to the picnic! Why, Ellen Ann, I ain't been to a picnic for twenty years! Thank your ma, but ——"

"Oh, do come, Miss Deb. You know we're going to celebrate the incorporation of Hilton, as well as the Fourth."

"Come in and I'll think it over."

With a blush and a giggle the girl cast a backward glance over her shoulder. "I can't come in to-night. But you be ready and we will stop for you in the morning."

Miss Deborah followed the girl's glance and smiled as she caught sight of a dark figure lurking in the shadow of the lilacs beside the fence.

"Oh, it's Joel," she said.

Ellen Ann giggled.

Perhaps it was the remembrance of her own unfinished romance which made her heart particularly tender toward all lovers. Be that as it may, she was the village confidante. Many awkward youths and shy village maids blessed her for the kindly way in which she sped their wooing.

The next morning, when Ellen Ann's brother with a flourish brought his hay wagon to a stand before Miss Deborah's door, he found her waiting, lunch basket beside her.

The exercises were opened by a long and fervent prayer by Parson Elihu Griffin. Then the schoolmaster, a spare, stoop shouldered young man, with a peculiar intonation which made the thinness of his voice painfully apparent, delivered the Declaration of Independence.

Then the whole assemblage awoke the echoes with "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and the people cheered again. Then 'Squire Cooper, who had been recently elected to office, rose and made some remarks, but, detecting signs of restlessness among the younger people, he brought his remarks down to the pith of his address.

"Fellow Townspeople: I have a surprise in store for you." Hearing that this day was to be of especial interest to the inhabitants of his birthplace, one of our sons who has made a name for himself in the political world, yet has still retained in his heart a warm regard for his old home, has come down to join in our festivities, and has consented to make a few remarks. Friends, I ask you to join me in welcoming the Hon. John Smith."

The cheering mercifully drowned Miss Deborah's painful little gasps of consternation. No one noted her pale face. All eyes were upon their illustrious townsman.

The Hon. John Smith did not detain his hearers long. He referred to the fact that they were all more eager to attend to the contents of their well-filled hampers than to any thing he might have to say. He also said that he was anxious to leave the platform and come down among them and seek out and shake hands with his old friends.

Deborah felt that she must go away by herself and recover her lost equanimity. Seizing upon two pails she insisted on going to the spring for water. She started off briskly, but behind the first clump of bushes she cast aside the pails and sat down to give her thoughts full sway.

Miss Deborah smiled as she contemplated the mental pictures of her youthful self. There she stood in her girlish pride, her head saucily a-tilt, and a mischievous light in her eyes. But the smile was quickly followed by a sigh, as ever faithful memory drew the outline of a tall, awkward country boy who stood beside the maid.

Ah, now the girl's lips parted, and, bending her head, Miss Deborah hears the sound of a light laugh. At the sound the youth frowns, then speaks:

"Dan Quincy is a common feller, and the girl I've kept steady company with shan't dance with him."

Again the girl laughs, and then in mocking tone replies:

"A common feller, is he? Well, his name ain't as common as some I know of, John Smith."

"If yer ashamed of my name now, what'll ye be when it's yer own?"

"Who says I'll ever bear any such common name as John Smith? If I was you I'd ask the Legislature to help me to a finer name.

"Do you mean that, Deb?"

"Yes, I do."

Thus Deborah declared her independence. She supposed John would come around that evening and "make up," as he had done so often before; but no, he had gone away from Hilton without a word.

At this point her reverie was broken in upon by the voice Deborah had listened to so long.

"Why, Miss Hancock, what are you doing here all alone?"

"I was going for water," Deborah faltered, pointing to the forgotten pails.

"Down to the old spring? I'll go and help you. I haven't forgotten the way. I believe I remember every incident of my life here. Do you remember the picnic just before I went away?"

Deborah nodded.

"Do you know I've often thought of that day. You see, I took your advice and went to the Legislature. It took time, but I finally reached there. But I decided that if I could obtain a handle to my name it would answer just as well as if I changed it."

"I'm afraid I was rude," Deborah stammered.

"It was the best rudeness I ever encountered. It made me leave here, otherwise I suppose I should have lived right along in the groove made by my ancestors. I have always been grateful for your scorn. It hurt dreadfully at first, but I came to see the other side of the question."

John talked of this and that, but suddenly he seemed to become aware of his companion's silence. He glanced at her, and in a whimsical tone said:

"Deborah, doesn't the honorable modify the Smith a little?"

"What does a name matter anyway?" Deborah asked, impatiently, "but here we are at the spring."

"If the name doesn't matter, Deb, perhaps you'll not scorn to share it with me now. Will you, dear?" and the congressman bent low to look under Deborah's hat.

"John, there's Ellen Ann staring at us," and with a blush Miss Deborah withdrew her hand, but not until she had returned the pressure of the one which held it.—The Home.

SOCIAL CUSTOM IN DETROIT PUZZLES BRIDGET.

There is a Detroit family that arranged to spend the cold season in the Bermudas, and due announcement of the fact was made in the usual way. An unforeseen event deferred the proposed trip, and the pride of the good wife did not permit of her acknowledging a change in the plan of campaign, as proclaimed to the world through the newspapers. They would go later, and meantime they would have it believed that they had already departed.

All the servants but one had been dismissed. The front of the house was made to look as though the place was closed, and temporary residence was taken up in rear apartments. A friend of the family, who had just returned to the city, called and was bent upon letting the folks know that she was back. Her persistent manipulation of the bell led the servant to show her beaming countenance through a crack of the door.

"Is your mistress at home?"

"She s'id to till yez they air in the Barmudiz."

"Oh, away from home?"

"They air at home in the Barmudiz."

"But they must have gone from home in order to be so far away."

"If yez'll wait I'll ask the misthress. Shure I can't be ramimberin' how it is, at all, at all."

The friend waited patiently; even gayly.

"It was roight I was all the toime," announced the faithful handmaid. "The misthress is here in the Barmudiz. Would yez be l'avin' a carrud?"—Detroit Free Press.

J. T. R. CLARK'S
Open Letter to Medicine Men.

GENTLEMEN—You are no doubt aware of the fact that the day for "Gratters," "Pakira" and the long haired Indian medicine men has past, and that the man who depends upon the public for his support must be able to present at least a half way legitimate proposition. Five years ago, with these facts before me, I organized a co. consisting of seven people. The business steadily grew until I found myself carrying 45 people, traveling in my own special train of four cars, with six people ahead, using special advance car, billing the country thoroughly from house to house, and covering the walls like a circus, within a radius of 20 miles of each stand. Sometime since we came to Kansas City, one of the most wide awake and progressive business towns, as well as the greatest railroad centre in the United States. A tour of inspection disclosed overwhelming proofs of the superior advantages of this city for a headquarters. So, after twenty years of experience, I concluded to "quit the road," and open up a medicine supply house in conjunction with America's foremost specialists, "The German-American Staff of Physicians and Surgeons." I have located here permanently, have the most desirable offices and perfect equipment in the finest and largest business block in the whole city, situated on one of the principal street, and directly opposite the Post Office. I own my own printing establishment, box and soap factory, and with the assistance and backing I am now prepared to give, by carefully following the plans, which I shall take pleasure in outlining to you, there is no reason why you or any person with a little "horse sense" and business energy cannot clear from $5,000 to $10,000 a year, or even more. The success of a business enterprise of this character depends almost wholly upon the manner in which it is advertisrd, and I positively have the finest, most artistic and complete line of advertising matter of any similar house on earth. The next essential is a "headquarters" and the ability to give references, both commercially and from those who will vouch for the efficacy of your remedies. All of this I am abundantly prepared to furnish. When you send a patient to your main offices, or in case one of them should doubt your statement and writes to friends here to investigate, everything is found to be far beyond their expectations, and their report, instead of proving a "knocker," is one of the best advertisements. I am fully aware of the fact that there are medicine cos. who will furnish you with printing, and in some cases their remedies, free of charge, but always with the understanding that they shall receive the drug rate, etc. There are also those who deal exclusively in "slum," which may be all right for one or two day "street corner pitches," and a "quick get away." Such remedies may give satisfaction to the man who would "do" someone for a dollar, in preference to making TWO DOLLARS selling legitimate remedies that not only make friends and increase business, but leaves the town so that he can return to it at any time. By carefully following the "Pointers" which I send with your first order, you CANNOT FAIL to succeed, as every "move" for each day's work, from the opening to the closing of a town, is carefully outlined, so that any person with ordinary intelligence can readily understand just what to do, AND HOW TO DO IT. As soon as you have played a few towns you will find that your percentage will more than pay for your stock and printing, and in many cases cover your entire expense, leaving your gross receipts a NET profit. I'm not "talking through my hat," but know whereof I speak, and have over two hundred people handling my remedies who will vouch for the correctness of the assertion, and I am positive that I can offer you the STRONGEST, LEGITIMATE, money making proposition of any medicine supply house in America. "The German-American Staff of Physicians and Surgeons" SUCCESSFULLY treat all character of Deformities, Hernia, Fistula, Blood Poison, Cancer, and all complicated, deep seated chronic troubles, here at our offices and by mail, and can furnish the names of hundreds of CURED patients in all parts of the United States and Canada, who will vouch for the efficacy of their treatment. Advertise the country thoroughly, look up these cases, send us their names. A cure costs from $25 to $1,000, and YOU get a LIBERAL percentage of all business you send us, directly or indirectly. The "Slum" manufacturers cannot offer you such an opportunity. When you have sold their "cheap remedies" your income ceases right then and there, while with me it has JUST COMMENCED. I am not looking for "angels" upon whom I can unload a lot of TRASH. If you purchase a stock of my goods and ANYTHING happens that you are not able to dispose of same send them back, and I will refund your money. If you doubt my honesty and reliability I most respectfully refer you to "the National Bank of Commerce," Faxon, Horton and Gallagher, M. L. Hudson, Kollman Bros., Hunter, Ridge & Bryant, Kansas City; Gees Lithographic Co., Central Printing and Engraving Co., McIntosh Battery and Optical Co., S. S. White Dental Mfg. Co., Truax Green & Co., Murray & Co., Chicago, Ill.; Donaldson Lithographing Co., Cincinnati, O.; Nelson Baker & Co., Detroit, Michigan; F. A. Weeks & Co., Reddington & Co., S. F. Calcium Light Co.; Occident Printing Co., San Francisco, Cal.; F. W. Brown & Co., M. Sale & Sons, Los Angeles, Cal.; Potts' Drug Co., Witchita, Kan., and lots of others if necessary. I have no "strings" on my agents and permit them to sell to anyone, including all retail druggists in their territory. "Lectures" and "Pointers" will be furnished with your first order. A complete line of samples will be supplied absolutely FREE; you pay express charges. All medicines properly stamped, beautifully put up, and at prices LOWER than you pay for "slum." Now be honest with yourself, sit down and think it over. If you are not already engaged in the business that makes no difference, you can HIRE performers and a lecturer. Your success depends solely upon your business ability. Send for Price List and further particulars today.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes' time, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make in your own kitchen, a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the Soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire, and cool in convenient dishes (not tin.) It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.
